Burglars Force Office Safe of Ellenville Firm

A small amount of cash was stolen from a register in the Center Electric Co., Inc., Ellenville, some time late Saturday night or Sunday morning but the burglars found nothing in a small steel safe when they cut it open with an acetylene torch.

Chief Abe Rand of the Ellenville Police Department told The Freeman that the store was locked up at 7 p. m. Saturday.

At 9 p. m. one of the Tennenbaum brothers checked the premises and found everything in order.

At 8 a. m. Sunday Norman Tennenbaum entered the store but did not immediately notice anything wrong. About 9 a. m. however, he observed that a small safe had been removed from the office. He called the village police department.

An investigation disclosed that some $30 to $35 had been taken from a cash register in the store.

The safe, about 30 inches high by 24 wide, was found in a workshop in the back of the building. The door of the steel safe had apparently been cut out by an acetylene torch found in the store.

Entrance to the building was gained by removing a small window under a rear platform. Chief Rand said the entire frame was taken out.

The burglar, or burglars, then entered the cellar and mounted a flight of stairs into the main section of the store.

Vehicle Goes Out of Control

Daniel Helmer, 20 of 22 James Street, Rosendale died of injuries sustained early Sunday morning when the car he was driving struck a bridge girder near the intersection of Routes 32 and 213 in the Town of Rosendale.

State police said Helmer suffered two fractures of the thighbone, a broken jaw and fractured skull. He was taken to Benedictine Hospital in grave condition and died at 7:07 a. m. less than six hours after the mishap.

Kingston Trooper Richard Ryan said Helmer was traveling north in his 1951 sedan on Route 32 when the vehicle apparently went out of control, crossed the highway, struck the Wallkill River bridge girder on the west side and rolled over, throwing the driver to the pavement.

Coroner Francis J. McCordie issued a verdict of accidental death due to a subdural brain hemorrhage.

Troopers said the mishap occurred at 1:15 a. m. In addition to Lake Katrine, troopers from the Thruway, Ellenville and Highland were at the scene, and Patrolman T. F. Walsh, of New Paltz Police Department.

The 1951 sedan was described as a total loss by troopers.

Helmer was employed as a clerk at Electrol Inc., 85 Grand Street, Kingston, and was a member of Rosendale Fire Company and Kingston Council 275, Knights of Columbus.

He was a son of John and Genevieve Buckley Helmer of Rosendale. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, James and John, both of Rosendale.

The funeral will be held from George J. Moylan Funeral Home, Main Street, Rosendale on Wednesday 9:30 a. m.; thence to St. Peter's Church, Rosendale where at 10 a. m. a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul.

Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery, Rosendale. Friends may call at the funeral home today and Tuesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 10 p. m.

Johnson Told Crash of Red China Could Occur in Year

By SPENCER DAVIS
HONG KONG (AP)—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has received information indicating the Communist regime in China conceivably could collapse in a year to 18 months due to internal stresses.

An authoritative source, reporting this today, said these views came to Johnson from respectable sources and are worthy of consideration.

Johnson arrived here today from Formosa, where he conferred with Chiang Kai-shek.

The estimate of Chinese prospects does not square with available information from most informed sources in Hong Kong. These persons say no flat prediction of an upset in China can be made.

The information given to Johnson was reported to be based on a variety of considerations, principally these:

1. The Chinese Red army was said to be nearing revolt stage due to unhappiness with the role they were required to play under the regime of Mao Tze-tung.

2. Doctors coming out of the mainland are reporting 30 to 40 per cent of the population is in

Judge Loughran Portrait to Be Unveiled May 26

A life-sized portrait of Justice John T. Loughran, late chief judge of the Court of Appeals of New York State, a gift of Ulster County Bar Association will be unveiled in the Supreme Court room of Ulster County Court House Friday, May 26 at 11 a. m.

Judge Loughran served on the Court of Appeals bench from 1945 until the time of his death, March 31, 1953.

The portrait five by seven feet was commissioned by the local Bar Association and painted by Paul Wesley Arndt of Woodstock, well-known portrait painter.

All Judges Expected
Expected to attend the unveiling are all judges of the Court of Appeals, the Appellate Division of the Third Department, and all Supreme Court judges of the Third Judicial District.

The principal speakers will be Charles S. Desmond, chief judge of the Court of Appeals and Francis Egan, presiding judge of the Appellate Division, according to Hugh R. Elwyn, president of the local Bar Association.

Before becoming chief judge of the Court of Appeals, Judge Loughran, a native of Kingston, served as an associate judge of that court, as a justice of the Supreme Court, and at one time was a professor of law at Fordham University, New York City.

One of Greatest Judges
His thorough knowledge of the law and his many fine human qualities earned for him the respect and love of all who knew him, Attorney Elwyn said. He is universally recognized in legal and judicial circles as one of the great chief judges of the state, he said.

Judge Loughran was 64 at the time of his death, caused by coronary occlusion. He had reportedly been suffering from a heart ailment for some time.

On April 25, 1946, he was appointed chief judge by Thomas E. Dewey, then governor of New York. He was elected November (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Kennedy-Khrushchev Meeting Is Now Under Consideration

Rival Laotians Balk at Plans For Compromise

GENEVA (AP)—The opening of the 14-nation conference on Laos was delayed again today as rival Laotian delegations balked at a big power compromise plan designed to get the talks going.

All three competing factions from Laos rejected British Foreign Secretary Lord Home's proposal that they come to the conference table as observers, not as full negotiating members.

The three groups represent the pro-Western Laotian government, the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels and their allies, Prince Souvanna Phouma's self-styled neutralists.

Phoumi Vongvichit of the Pathet Lao declared his forces were "the masters of the country" and would not be relegated to the subordinate role. He added that any decision the conference made without participation of the Pathet Lao would be invalid.

Won't Accept Plan
The head of Souvanna Phouma's mission asserted, "We would not come as observers in the ordinary sense of the word, that is, as people who can only look on." The Pathet Lao, the Soviet Union, Red China and Souvanna Phouma all contend that he heads the only legal Laotian government.

A royal government spokesman said his group could not accept the plan because the full delegation has not yet arrived in Geneva. He also contended that a cease-fire actually is not in effect in Laos because Pathet Lao artillery is attacking a village held by Meo tribesmen loyal to the royal government.

Greene Nursing Home Burns, 7 Patients Removed

Seven patients in a Kiskatom nursing home operated by Mrs. Helen Mower were removed without incident Saturday afternoon when fire badly damaged the structure. They were taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill, by Catskill Hospital Company No. 1, and Catskill Rescue Squad.

Fire which was reported to have started in a chimney badly damaged the nursing home which is located on Route 23-A about five miles west of Catskill on Palenville road.

Spreads From Chimney
Undersheriff Joseph Pavlak of Greene County said the fire originated in the chimney and spread to other sections of house which was badly gutted. There was also considerable water damage.

In addition to the Kiskatom Fire Department, Citizens Hose No. 1, Catskill, and the Palenville departments responded. The seven elderly persons were removed by the Catskill Rescue unit and taken to the Catskill hospital.

Businessmen Will Discuss Hours Tonight

A full attendance of members of the Uptown Businessmen's Association tonight was urged by president Clyde E. Wonderly Jr.

This special meeting of the Uptown group at 7:30 pm in the Stuyvesant-Kingston Hotel was voted by members for the purpose of discussing additional night store hours. There is a possibility that a progress report on off-street parking will be also given.

Since the regular meeting of the Uptown business group last Monday, a special parking committee met with the Parking Committee of the Kingston Common Council and other city officials.

Police Probing Factory Theft, Market Attempt

Theft of women's wear valued at $2,475 from the Sunray Factory Outlet, 83 Smith Avenue, and an apparent attempt to enter the uptown Bull Market, Washington and Hurley Avenues, were under police probe today.

Ten types of women's apparel in various sized lots were reported stolen from Sunray, the largest haul being 138 teenage dresses valued at $725.62. Next highest in value of the loss reported was 100 women's raincoats, valued at $603.58.

Use Upper Window
Entrance was gained through an upper floor window through use of a ladder which had apparently been left in the area, Lt. Lemuel Howard said. The ladder was used to get atop a small structure adjacent to the main building, and from there to a rooftop from which the window was reached. An attempt had been made to break through another window before entrance was finally gained.

The window entered was on the side of the building housing the Prim-Rose Sportsware, and from there entrance was gained to the other plant. It was also indicated that an elevator had been used in removing the merchandise. Nothing was reported missing from the Prim-Rose factory. The lower floor of the building also houses the midtown Bull Market.

Other Thefts
Other garments reported taken from Sunray and values of them were: 42 women's dresses, $375.90, spring coats (26) valued at $494.70, women's dusters (11) valued at $54.89, eight jackets, $55.92, and six girls' toppers, valued at $41.94.

Time of the burglary was fixed at between 9:20 p. m., Friday and Saturday morning.

A police report at 3:16 a. m. Sunday, said an unidentified man had telephoned police head-

Could Have Fateful World Peace Results

(Editor's Note: What results might a meeting between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev produce? What about Kennedy's bargaining position — the issues that might be discussed? A veteran Associated Press diplomatic writer analyzes these points in the following article.)

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The prospective meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev could have fateful results for world peace.

Kennedy will go into the conference, assuming it is arranged, in an apparently weaker bargaining position than he might have wished.

But any weakness is considered by some of the President's closest advisers to be more apparent than real. For they think it more likely than not that Khrushchev sees the recent U.S. setbacks in Cuba and Laos as evidence not of inadequate U.S. power, but of restraint on the use of that power.

Yet there is concern in some responsible quarters here about Khrushchev's extremely confident attitude, at least as he has shown it publicly. And if this attitude of his holds up in his private talks with Kennedy, the result of the meeting could be to increase East-West tensions instead of opening the way for an improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations.

Two Major Themes

Kennedy has not indicated publicly what he would like to talk about with Khrushchev. But it is understood that he almost certainly has two major themes in mind: 1. He would like to persuade the Soviet leader to modify the Soviet Union's position in the deadlocked negotiations at Geneva for a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests under international inspection safeguards.

2. He would like to warn Khrushchev against miscalculating restraints on the use of power by the United States and its allies as evidence that they will not hold their ground on issues of vital importance. One such issue is West Berlin, to the protection of which the United States, Britain and France are strongly committed despite recurrent threats against the city from the Communist side.

Viaduct, Rondout Creek Bridge Up For Talk Tuesday

Washington Avenue viaduct project plans and replacement of the Rondout Creek Bridge are to be discussed at the state's district engineering office, Poughkeepsie Tuesday, Mayor Edwin F. Radel said today.

David Ornstein, of Raymond & May Associates, the city's planning consultants, will join the mayor in a discussion of plans for both projects, insofar as they have materialized, to date.

A state engineer said last week that it was planned soon to map the alignment of the viaduct and Esopus Creek Bridge project, but some delay has been experienced in designing proposed changes in the building of a new Rondout Creek Bridge.

Changes were requested locally after review of the engineers' first proposed location of the new span, and the state men, by this time, had expected to base plans on a new location. A spokesman for them said recently, however, that planning was delayed because weather conditions have been unfavorable to taking required aerial photographs.

Local opposition to the proposed location of the downtown bridge, it was reported after discussion here, was based largely on proposed use of considerable church and school properties.

County State Aid Allocation Shows Increase to $560,360

Based on the new census figures, Ulster County has been allocated $560,360.15 in per capita state aid in its first quarterly payment due today. This is an increase of $35,616.25 over the same period last year when the 1950 census figures were used.

The total first quarterly payment in per capita state aid for the 1961-62 fiscal year is $100.2 million which includes a $3.1 million increase over last year, representing population growth.

The 1961 Legislature passed, and Gov. Rockefeller signed, legislation permitting communities to use 1950 or 1960 census figures, whichever were higher. Otherwise, the 1950 figures would have applied.

The 1960 federal census showed that most larger cities of the state had lost population, while smaller cities and suburbs had gained, since the 1950 federal census.

Communities that gained were allowed, under the 1961 law, to use the newer figures. Those that lost were allowed to use the older, higher ones.

The change will affect this year only. Next year, per capita aid will be allocated on the basis of 1960 census figures for all communities.

The biggest single increase is $32,946 to Nassau County, the fastest growing in the state, which will receive a total of $6 million. Suffolk will receive $2,497,936, an increase of $331,562 and Westchester will receive $4,796,434, an increase of $288,470.

The growth of those suburban counties explains in large measure the fact that New York City has lost population and hence will receive no increase in state aid.

That city's share, however, is $3,176,560, more than half the total for the state.

Other, large payments will be $6,223,755 to Erie County, an increase of $222,273, and $3,268,153 to Monroe County, which includes Rochester, an increase of $137,611. Onondaga County, which includes Syracuse, will receive $2,358,827, an increase of $100,620.

Cities receive $6.75 for each resident under the per capita aid program. Towns are given $3.50 and villages, $3.

The governments receiving the funds may use them for any, general government purposes. Other state aid is provided for specified purposes, such as education and highways.

No Firm Decision Is Reached

May Extend His Visit of May 31

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Kennedy-Khrushchev conference on corrosive cold-war problems has become a definite possibility. The chances that one will be held, and held soon, are rated currently at 3 to 2.

But the grave issues of Laos and a valid ban on nuclear arms tests could turn out to be formidable barriers. In contrast, quick progress toward solutions could do much to assure a conference.

President Kennedy may extend a visit to Europe, which starts May 31, and stay on for his first meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev if things work out as they now appear likely to do. Either Stockholm or Vienna is regarded by the United States as a suitable site for the President and Premier to meet face to face across the conference table.

At the moment, it was learned, a meeting definitely is under consideration but no firm decision has been reached. That may come within a week.

Heartily Endorsed
Prospects that the leaders of the world's two greatest powers may consult produced both hearty endorsements and words of caution from various leaders in Washington.

Here in Palm Beach, Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, bombarded by questions about reports that efforts to arrange a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting were under way, told reporters he could say only, "There are no plans for any such meeting at present." He refused to read any significance into the phrase "at present." But it was there, Kennedy himself, closing out a relaxing five days on beaches and golf courses, was completely silent.

The President is known to be tremendously concerned that in the four months since he took command of government, East-West negotiations for an agreement forbidding nuclear weapons tests have deadlocked instead of making any real progress. These deadlocked negotiations are under way still in Geneva. So are efforts to bring a solution to the Laotian problem out of a 14-nation conference of Communist bloc and anti-Communist countries.

Khrushchev Suggestion
The Soviet premier had suggested previously that he would like to meet Kennedy. He said so soon after Kennedy took office. And it was understood that the present impetus for a conference originated less with Kennedy than with a new tip from Khrushchev to Llewellyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to Moscow, that he would not mind talking to the American President.

The Western allies already may have been sounded out by Washington on how they would regard a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting. Kennedy has met with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany. He flies to Paris at the end of this (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Fifty Club Makes U. S. Spaceman an Honor Member

Commander Alan B. Shepard Jr., U. S. Navy, who made the historic May 5 space flight for the nation, through a recently adopted resolution, is a member of Kingston's Fifty Club, Inc., a downtown organization of civic interest, it was revealed today.

The resolution noted that Commander Shepard "is hereby declared to be a member of the said Fifty Club, Inc., with all of the rank, privileges and courtesies accompanying said membership, and that he is to receive a copy of the resolution along with a badge of membership."

The May 5 event, it noted, "brought untold glory to the United States of America" and it has "increased the worldwide prestige" of the nation. The people of the world, it stressed, "are now aware of the basic facts of freedom of the press, thought and choice that prevail" in the United States.

The resolution was signed by Michael Ward, the club's president, and Seventh Ward Alderman Frank C. Sass, its secretary.

Po'keepsie Men Released in Bail Pending Hearing

Two town of Poughkeepsie men arrested in policy raids Friday night are out in $5,000 bail for an appearance Thursday and three residents of the city of Poughkeepsie, arrested in similar raids, have had their cases adjourned to May 22.

State and local police Friday night arrested the five in a series of policy raids.

Dutchess County District Attorney Raymond C. Baratta said that if the ring had continued to operate it would have grossed more than $100,000 a year.

The DA said the leaders of the ring were Joseph Tucciarone, 53, a convicted gambler, and Carl Wilson, 33, both of the town of Poughkeepsie.

They were arraigned before Justice of the Peace George Dietz of the town of Poughkeepsie and released in $5,000 bail apiece for a hearing Thursday.

They were arrested late Friday night in an apartment in the town of Poughkeepsie and charged with operating a policy business.

The other three spots were raided later in the city of Poughkeepsie.

Crawford Bradshaw, who operates Brad's Smoke Shop, was charged with possession of policy slips.

Operator of Bonnie's Smoke Shop, Main Street, Poughkeepsie, Mrs. Anna C. Bonahue, 47, was charged with being a common gambler.

Fall From Cliff Is Fatal to Boy

Wayne Rohme, 9-year-old Newburgh boy, was fatally injured Sunday when a rope by which he was lowering himself while descending a steep hill, broke. He plummeted 30 feet to the ground below.

He died of his injuries at St. Luke's Hospital.

Police said the boy tied the rope to an overhanging rock and began letting himself down with it when the rope broke.

Urge More Efforts To Meet Competition

NEW YORK (AP)—State Commerce Commissioner Keith S. McHugh today urged New York communities to increase their efforts to cope with competition of Southern and Western states in the field of new industries and job opportunities.

"We find many of our older manufacturing facilities with a high degree of obsolescence and we find a disturbing number of communities with stubborn and persistent pockets of unemployment," he said in a talk prepared for the Queens Borough Chamber of Commerce.

Held for Grand Jury On Bad Check Charge

Two young men, booked earlier this month for alleged involvement in the forging of a check, waived examination today before Special City Judge Arthur B. Ewig, and were held for grand jury action.

It is charged that John Lee Grant, 24, of 157 Hasbrouck Avenue, and Vernon Eugene Grant, 29, of Lanesville, were involved in the manipulation of a $25 check, which, it is claimed, was drawn on the Phenicia Branch of the Kingston Trust Company, and passed at the Empire Wine & Liquor Store, 600 Broadway.

Police charge that John "with intent to defraud," had made out the check to Vernon, and it was signed with the name of another as maker.

The arrests resulted of an investigation by Lt. Lemuel Howard with detectives Albert Hutton and Leonard Ellsworth.

Woodstock Home Damaged by Fire

Fire which is believed to have started from an electric heater in an upstairs bedroom caused extensive damage to the upper section of a three-story frame dwelling in the village of Woodstock late Saturday morning.

No estimate of damage to the home, located next to the American Legion building at the head of Neher street in the heart of the village, was immediately available.

Chief George Haythorn said the blaze apparently started in an electric heater in a second-floor room occupied by an unidentified lodger.

The home is owned by Rodney and Grace Lethbridge. It was reported, an antique shop is located on the first floor. Fire damage was confined to the upper stories. It was reported that some water damage resulted on the first floor.

Chief Haythorn said the fire started about 10 a. m. Saturday and that when he reached the scene flames were shooting through the roof.

The third floor, which is usually rented out during the summer, was unoccupied at the time.

The chief said the fire had a good start when equipment from Woodstock Companies 1 and 2 reached the scene. The home is located on a low hill about a quarter of a mile from the town hall.

Chief Haythorn said the inside of the building on the second and third floors was badly charred.

Hose was strung from hydrants in the vicinity and six streams of water were played on the fire—two of them two-and-a-half-inch lines, the other four one-and-a-half-inch lines.

Dutchess Youth Jailed For Traffic Violations

William Melvin Sherman, 18, of Pine Plains, who appeared before Saugerties Village Police Justice G. Thomas Rea Jr. Sunday evening, was sentenced to 75 days in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $150 fine, for several traffic violations.

Village Patrolman Donald Sullivan issued summonses to Sherman for operating an unregistered motor vehicle, (second offense) for which the fine was $100 or 50 days in jail, and for driving without insurance, a fine of $50 or 25 days in jail. His operators license was also revoked.

Patrolman Sullivan stopped a 1950 sedan on Ulster Avenue in the village with Sherman and another at 5:45 p. m. Sunday. Sullivan said the Connecticut license plate 277-735 with a Sept. 1962 tab was not assigned to the car. Sherman was driving. Sherman told Sullivan a friend found the plate.

Police impounded the plate and the car was taken to a local garage for storage.

Grand Jury Will Probe Deaths of 2 Fire Victims

A verdict in the death of two small children who died on May 2 as a result of a fire at the Merchant home, 51 Chapel street, is still being withheld by Coroner Arthur C. Chipp pending a grand jury investigation.

Leon Merchant, 7-months old, and William Henry Merchant, age 19-months, children of Mrs. Mulvina Merchant, died as a result of a fire which damaged the home on the afternoon of May 2. The children were alone in the home with their five-year old sister, Francine Merchant, when fire broke out. The blaze apparently originated from a kerosene heater. The mother was absent from the house at the time.

Child Goes For Help

Francine Merchant ran to the apartment of Alvina Postell around the corner in the same building and gave the alarm. William Miller, Crasmoor, passing in his car also saw the smoke and alerted firemen.

Leon was in a crib and William Henry was in an adjoining bedroom in a carriage. At the time it was stated the children appeared to have suffocated from the lack of oxygen after the fire started.

Coroner Chipp withheld a verdict pending an investigation by troopers and Chief Abe Rand of the Ellenville police department. Later it was reported the matter would be sent to the grand jury for further investigation.

Forced off Road Driver Is Hurt Near Napanoch

A 1951 GMC truck was reportedly forced off Route 209 in the hamlet of Napanoch Saturday night and rolled down a 50-foot embankment, coming to rest on its roof and catching fire.

William Ketterer, 53, of Ulster Heights, owner and operator of the vehicle, was admitted to the Veteran's Memorial Hospital, Ellenville, with back injuries. It was reported by Ellenville state police.

Ketterer told Troopers Edward Whalen and Frank Hutton that he was proceeding in a southerly direction when an approaching car forced him off the right side of the highway. The mishap occurred on a left curve, he said. Time of the accident was 9:30 p. m.

Ketterer was able to crawl from the vehicle. A few moments later the truck broke into flames. It was described as a total loss.

Castro Promises Study For 15,000 Peasants

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro told a Cuban Mothers Day rally that before the end of the month 15,000 peasant girls will be studying in Havana.

Castro spoke at ceremonies closing the celebration in Havana's mammoth Sports Palace where less than three weeks ago he harangued prisoners of the April 17 invasion.

Castro's audience was said to include 8,000 peasant girls already studying homemaking and typing in the capital as well as their mothers who were brought to the city for the celebration.

Castro said the girls will be expected to teach their newly acquired skills "for at least a year" after they return to their homes.

"Each girl," he said, "should teach at least 10 other girls and mothers." He said the government would provide them with sewing machines and typewriters.

Mob Wrecks Bus In Sunday Riot At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A bus was destroyed by a firebomb and several members of a racial-mixed group of "freedom riders" were brutally beaten as they sought to bring their test of color barriers in bus stations into Alabama.

Members, however, vowed today to continue their swing which started in Washington 11 days ago.

All told, 13 persons were taken to hospitals Sunday—12 for smoke inhalation suffered when some one in a crowd of angry white men threw a fire bomb into a stalled bus outside Anniston, and one for head cuts suffered at the hands of white men using pipes for clubs at a Birmingham bus station.

Racial Disputes

Two other persons required medical attention. None was hurt critically.

No arrests were made in Anniston or Birmingham. The "freedom riders" — eight white persons and eight Negroes — are members of the Congress of Racial Equality. They are riding regularly scheduled buses through the South to test racial segregation.

This was their first encounter with mass violence.

The group divided in Atlanta for the trip through Alabama, nine taking a Greyhound bus and seven boarding a Trailways bus, all headed for Birmingham.

Both buses ran into trouble at Anniston, about 50 miles from the Georgia line.

When the Greyhound bus arrived there, the bus station was closed and an angry crowd of about 200 white persons milled around.

Members of the crowd smashed some bus windows with bars and lengths of pipe.

Highway Patrol Called

The driver headed for Birmingham, but six miles outside Anniston the bus had a flat tire. A crowd of white men who had followed in cars sought to board it.

They were blocked by Alabama state investigator, Ell M. Cowling, who had ridden the bus from Atlanta on a tip.

A fire bomb—believed to have been a soft drink bottle containing gasoline—was thrown through a window of the bus.

Highway patrolmen, summoned by a passing motorist, fired pistols into the air to disperse the crowd. The passengers got off before the bus was destroyed by flames.

The Trailways bus left Atlanta about an hour after the Greyhound bus. Dr. Walter Bergman, 61, a former Michigan State University professor and a member of the CORE group, said about eight or ten white men had boarded the bus in Atlanta.

He said they beat several members of the group, including himself, at Anniston. When the bus reached Birmingham, 60 miles west of Anniston, a crowd of white men was waiting.

Two members of the CORE group, a Negro and a white man, were beaten when they headed for the white waiting room.

Eisenhower to Get Medal at Point

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower flies to West Point, N.Y., today to attend a dinner in his honor and receive a special award from the U.S. Military Academy.

Eisenhower was scheduled to leave on an Army C-54 aircraft from the Thomasville Airport at 2 p.m., only a few miles from his Gettysburg farm home.

The former President will be the first West Point graduate to receive the Sylvanus Thayer Award, given annually to an outstanding citizen who exemplifies the West Point ideals of "duty, honor, country."

UP FROM THE DEEP—For 333 years this warship rested on the bottom of Stockholm harbor. Salvagers raised her and the ship will be conserved as a floating museum. The vessel was the Wasa, King Gustavus Adolphus' flagship, which sank on her maiden voyage in 1628 with 500 aboard.

Thinks Moon Trip Long Time Off

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A leading Austrian physicist says he believes a landing on the moon by human beings will not be possible within the next decade.

Prof. Hans Thirring of Vienna University said the recent space trips by a Soviet and an American prove that a voyage to the moon will eventually be possible, but that the actual journey and safe return to earth is still a long time off.

Killers Sought In Prison Break Ruled Dangerous

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A manhunt was on today for two accused killers who shot their way to freedom by killing the warden of Middlesex County jail Sunday.

Police described the pair as armed and dangerous. Officers were told to shoot to kill if necessary.

The fugitives were identified as Edgar W. Cook, 48, Brookline, and Norman Porter, 21, Woburn.

The victim was David S. Robinson, 33, head of the jail nearly 10 years. Robinson accepted Sunday duty so his deputies could have Mothers Day off.

A brother, Roger Robinson, is an FBI agent assigned to the New York office. Cook was to have gone on trial today in Middlesex County Superior Court for murder in the killing of a Cambridge policeman last Sept. 3. Patrolman Lawrence W. Gorman, 35, father of three, was shot down when he surprised two men attempting to break into a restaurant.

Porter also was awaiting trial on a murder charge. He was accused of killing John Piegott, 22, of Lynn, a clerk, during an attempted robbery of a clothing store 10 miles north of Boston, last Sept. 29.

The FBI entered the manhunt Sunday night when the fugitives were charged with the federal crime of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Jail officials said Porter had been conferring with a psychiatrist and was being escorted back to his cell when he suddenly produced a gun and backed guard Maurice Maher down a corridor to a room where Cook was talking with a lawyer appointed for him by the court.

Porter waved inside the door and Cook joined him, first warning the lawyer to stay where he was.

At that point Robinson appeared, the officers said, telling Porter:

"What's going on? Drop it! You're in enough trouble."

"Shoot him! Let's get out of here," Cook commanded Porter, according to Maher's account. Maher said Cook grabbed the gun as Robinson lunged. One shot behind the ear killed him.

Johnson Pledges China Assurance And New Support

By SPENCER DAVIS

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson today gave Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek a new pledge of U.S. support and economic aid and assurance that the Kennedy administration has no intention of recognizing Red China.

Johnson and his party flew on to Hong Kong for a 24-hour rest stop after the vice president, on behalf of President Kennedy, assured President Chiang's Nationalists that the United States stands by them, beside them and behind them "today, tomorrow and every day to come."

Chiang at Parley

Chiang, who almost never holds a news conference, joined Johnson for a conference for the newsman in the vice president's party and told them he and Johnson had agreed on a joint statement to be issued tonight containing five assurances from Kennedy:

1. A pledge of continued U.S. support for the Nationalists.
2. The United States has no intention of recognizing the Peiping regime.
3. The United States will continue to oppose Red China's bid for a seat in the United Nations.
4. The United States will abide by its mutual defense treaty commitments with the Nationalists.

Steps Up Assistance

5. America will step up its assistance to Nationalist China's accelerated economic development program.

"I am certain this news of the definite stand of the United States will have a great effect in boosting morale here and in building up the hopes of the Chinese people on the mainland for eventual deliverance," Chiang said, speaking through an interpreter.

Chiang, 73, said there has been some "wavering and apprehension" of where the United States stands in its policy toward Asia. But he added Kennedy, in sending Johnson on his current mission, "made one of the wisest and most timely decisions of his administration."

Johnson, who is making a six-nation fence-mending tour of Southeast Asia, will push on to Bangkok Tuesday.

Addresses Students

After leaving Chiang, Johnson drove to Taipei's City Hall to address more than 2,000 students. A crowd of 25,000 listened by loudspeaker outside.

Johnson told the students "Communist say to the youth of Asia and the world that young people should go into the streets as mobs destroying order, understanding peace and attacking free institutions."

"But free men," he said, "offer the youth of Asia a far different call. It is a call to go into the fields and help the farmer improve his lot, go among the sick and tend the needs of babies and the aged, go among children and teach."

ONE UP FOR OUR WAY

If you could follow our astronauts as they make ready for the next manned space flight, you might be struck by the fact they all carry bulging brief cases on their daily rounds.

It's a pretty mundane piece of equipment for a spaceman. But these men are a far cry from the happy-go-lucky "flyboys" we associated with bold missions in times past.

They are space technicians in their own right, who constantly think and talk the language of the specialists. They are tightly woven into a complex team whose heroes actually are legion, but seem destined mostly to go unsung.

Possibly the biggest lesson we can learn from these men—Alan Shepard and his six colleagues, the Project Mercury leaders, and others—is their utter dedication to precision.

We live in a time when charges are laid upon America that it is lax, soft of muscle, fuzzy in its thinking, laggard in science and education generally. By their mere existence, the precise men of Project Mercury prove that these charges cannot be more than partly true.

They operate in a field where even tiny error can yield anything from total failure to miles of miscalculation. They have erred, many times, but they always seek new precision.

Shepard, standing in for all the heroes as the first one to be thrust into space, personified this characteristic so vital to the American people in their quest along the frontiers of science and technology.

His personal story of the successful Freedom 7 flight will surely stand as a model of precise thought and statement.

But our unfolding spaceman program is showing us more than this. It is revealing, in the person of Shepard and the others, men of poise, of rounded, balanced personality, of mental breadth and depth, of humor and human sensibility.

We all know the astronauts were chosen for a veritable cluster of sturdy traits, and are "the cream of the crop." Nevertheless we welcome seeing that the cream is so rich.

In an era of bitter struggle with alien forces, we dare not blandly assume we have enough of such men. Yet we can believe we are far from lost when we have men of this caliber laboring in the forefront of our crucial explorations.

Alan Shepard rightly assigns credit for our stirring spaceman success to all the Project Mercury men. Without smugness, we may also mark up a good score for the free and open society which produced these men.

In these critical days, there's no room for pork barrel pressures, says Defense Secretary McNamara. This makes sense to everyone but the pressure groups.

TALKING SATELLITES

While strenuous efforts are being made to keep the international use of space free from military entanglements, the use of space satellites as communication media threatens to blow up a storm on the home front. Satellites will soon be used to transmit television, telephone and other messages to any place in the world from any other station on the ground. But as with some other breakthroughs (atomic energy for one), the question arises: Who shall develop these revolutionary devices?

And though the federal government has, as with atomic energy, spent all the billions used in space research it seems, for reasons presently not clear, to be abdicating any interest in communications development. This interest has been assigned to the giant communications companies, now quarreling among themselves over who's in and who's out.

American Telephone and Telegraph and International Telephone and Telegraph, which controls most ground communication systems through public charter, would

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY
THE MARXIST EMPIRE

For years, those who have studied Marxism and its Leninist development in Russia, have been calling attention to the fact that nothing less than the conquest of the entire Earth would satisfy the Marxist principle. This has been as clear as day since 1847. It is referred to in Communist literature as the inevitable historic clash between a new dynamic civilization and a decaying civilization which has served its purpose and is no longer needed.

Those who are unwilling to learn have asked those who for 40 years now have been warning against the menace, to refrain from exaggeration. In 1917, when the Russian Revolution occurred, there were a few who recognized the peril of the Bolshevik advance, but to most they were a fanatical band of incompetents, who would shortly fail. How incorrect this judgement was is evident today from the single fact that Soviet Russia is successfully building an enormous and incongruous empire and that only the United States has the power, if not the ability, to withstand the strength of the Soviet Universal State.

Soviet Russia is the first European country since 1861 to challenge the authority of the United States in the Western Hemisphere. The last effort was that of Napoleon III to put and keep Maximilian of Austria on the throne of Mexico. The United States could do nothing about this because it was engaged in the War Between the States, but as soon as that war was over, the Monroe Doctrine was re-asserted; the Mexican rebel, Juarez, was given adequate support; Maximilian was dethroned and that was the end of a European effort to place itself in an imperial position in the Western Hemisphere.

What has happened in 1961? Soviet Russia has established a Marxist fortress in Cuba, controlled by an obvious paranoic Castro, who was actually put into power by our own State Department despite the available evidence that Fidel, his brother, Raul, and many of their associates were known to have had Communist affiliation. But Cuba is not alone, British Guiana, Venezuela, Ecuador, Panama, and possibly Brazil are being ripened for Communist revolutions. And it is in the face of such conditions that the State Department involves this country in a quarrel with the Dominican Republic which could be needed in our defense at any moment. More mistakes of policy have been made during the past 30 years than seems possible.

Even Canada, with which we have had cordial relations since the War of 1812, has been discovering our weaknesses and has become tolerant of anti-American propaganda. In fact, Canada is strengthening Cuba by trading with Cuba, there being no visible guarantee that some of the goods sent is not of American origin, Canada is also trading with Red China in opposition to our and their interest. The relations between the United States and Canada should have been such that the two countries stand together, at least, on the Cuban issue.

The question arises as to what we shall accomplish with the Organization of American States, OAS is a substitute for the Monroe Doctrine. It places upon the Latin American nations the responsibilities which formerly the United States assumed. Among these is the obligation to keep Europe and Asia out of the American Hemisphere. The question that arises now is whether Soviet Russia is establishing Cuba as part of a colonial empire or a satellite or a segment of the Soviet Universal State. And must the United States accept this violation of the Monroe Doctrine?

The assumption that Cuba is today governed by Fidel Castro, as a dictator, is nonsense. Cuba is governed as East Germany is, as Hungary is; as all so-called People's Republics are, from the Kremlin. The country is full of Chinese Communists and Czechoslovakian Communists who are the effective rulers of the land. This is the technique that Soviet Russia has employed in every country that it has conquered. The so-called People's Republics are socialist states, in transition, supervised by the Kremlin until they become Soviet republics.

Whether the OAS is capable of meeting such a situation is questionable. The OAS has thus far shown an inability to live up to the Caracas Agreement because those who govern the Latin American states are afraid of student mobs and similar mass uprisings and therefore, while supporting the United States in principle, dare do nothing about such support.

One of the minor diversions of a medical columnist is provided by the anguished cries of dissenters. "Ar you trying to say a draft cannot start a cold, aging?" inquires an indignant "draft dodger."

Assuming that my answer is in the affirmative, the lady proceeds to ask, "Are you really fool enough not to recognize that many sicknesses are started, not because of the increased number of germs present or introduced, but rather because a cold house, improper clothing, or sitting in an annoying draft has purely and simply cut down the person's resistance?"

My answer, dear lady, is, "Yes, I'm fool enough."

A lecturer on "Natural Foods," just returned from a "most enlightening tour of the greatest health centers of Europe," asserts "You'd help, Dr. Hyman. And you need help, bad! Go man, you need this kind of lectures very bad. I know it will help you. Let us be honest for once. I am for the well fare of all the People."

I don't deny I can use all the help I can get. Perhaps I can show my appreciation by offering a few lessons in basic English.

An American expatriate, now living south of the border to escape from "political shenanigans, dishonesty and greed," is of the opinion "that it's pitiful and you don't know more about the Hoxsey Clinic and the wonderful sensible cure they have for Cancer." And she goes on to say that "the U. S. Government is stupid and unprincipled" for declaring the Hoxsey treatment a "fraud."

Well anyway, I'm in good company this time. "It is seldom I bother to comment on a columnist who is so far out in left field," writes a defender of Yoga. "If you are not aware that purified air in the lungs is beneficial to a good complexion as well as to other physical well being, I'd say you've missed the boat on a lot of important theory. ## Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

If for any reason it may seem to you that foreign policy operations of the Kennedy administration have been a little uncertain, the extent to which the Department of State has been shook up should be taken into consideration.

This is a new team with a lot of big ideas it hasn't quite figured how to carry out. There has been a wholesale house-cleaning of the three top levels of command in all divisions of the department. Nearly every vestige of the Eisenhower-Dulles-Herter team has been eliminated.

ON TOP OF THIS, a new superstructure has been set up in the White House under Professors McGeorge Bundy, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and Walt Whitman Rostow—who have had no experience in practical diplomacy—as special assistants to the President for foreign affairs. The effect of this has been to make the President the real top man on foreign policy and he runs the show, taking full responsibility.

The area divisions of the Department of State which are supposed to be staffed by experts on the 100-odd countries around the world have been downgraded. In the Cuban operations, the lower echelons didn't know what was going on.

To add to this confusion a complete shake-up of the diplomatic corps line-up is apparently under way. Ad advisers are being sent back to the field and new talent brought in, some of it with little or no experience in foreign policy making.

There are only five holdovers

in the top 25 policy-making jobs in the department. They include Assistant Secretary for European Affairs Foy D. Kohler, who may soon be named ambassador to Poland; Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs Edwin M. Martin; Special Assistant on Russian Affairs Charles E. Bohlen; Special Assistant for East-West Cultural Exchange William S. B. Lacy, and Special Assistant for Scientific Affairs Philip J. Farley.

There is no assistant secretary for Latin-American affairs since Thomas B. Mann was made ambassador to Mexico. His former work is being supervised by Adolph A. Berle, who has the title of "Special Assistant to the Secretary" as head of a Task Force. The Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs is still under Harris H. Huston as acting administrator, nobody having been found yet for the top job.

"SKID ROW" is the un diplomatic name which foreign service officers have given to the list of career ministers waiting for reassignment by the Kennedy administration.

The United States now maintains 94 embassies, four legations in Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Yemen, six consular offices in the little states like Liechtenstein, Kuwait, Monaco, Muscat and Oman, San Marino and Arab Palestine.

As of May 1, President Kennedy had nominated 57 ambassadors, nearly all of whom have been confirmed by the Senate. Many of these went to the more important capitals, which naturally got first attention.

There are 41 ambassadors still serving at their posts who were appointed by former President Eisenhower. Some of them, like Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow, will be kept where they are. But many of them are expecting reassignment in the near future.

There are vacancies in Cuba, Dominican Republic, Hungary, New Zealand and Switzerland. President Kennedy's nomination of his friend Earl E. T. Smith, former ambassador to Cuba, was withdrawn when it met Senate opposition. This is the President's only diplomatic appointment setback thus far.

OF THE FIRST 57 ambassadorial appointments by the President, 22 have been political. This is a 40 per cent ratio, which is pretty high. But it is not expected this percentage will be maintained for the full diplomatic list. The Eisenhower average varied between 25 and 33 per cent.

Among the obvious political appointments have been Averell Harriman as roving ambassador, Adlai Stevenson as ambassador to the UN, J. Kenneth Galbraith as ambassador to India, David K. E. Bruce to London, James M. Gavin to France, Anthony J. Drexel Biddle to Spain, William McCormick Blair to Denmark, John S. Rice to Netherlands, and Angier Biddle Duke as chief of protocol.

The two most impossible jobs in the department, advisor on disarmament and ambassador to the nuclear test ban negotiations in Geneva, have been given to Republicans—John J. McCloy and Arthur H. Dean of New York.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

In April, 1942, I received a letter from an American soldier, a brigadier, who was to die in battle in France and later receive the Congressional Medal of Honor. The letter contained the germ of the idea which animates the John Birch Society and many individual Americans who shrink from joining the society. They shrink lest they find themselves associated under a noble banner with individuals who can't express their purposes without footfaults that expose them to charges of Fascism.

The letter was handwritten on a letterhead of "Headquarters, First Division," one of the greatest fighting forces in the history of war. The emblem contains a bold numeral "1" within a wreath.

The letter said: "Dear Peg: I'm down here at (Camp Blanding) waiting for the word to go. I wish I could see you some time but fear there'll be no chance of your getting down as there is no chance of my getting up unless we're taking off. I want to congratulate you on the splendid work you are doing against corruption in the unions. What you say is true. It is hurting labor badly."

"Might it not be worth-while to take a whirl at the people who were furiously belligerent before we declared war but have neither signed up nor have their children? I could name half a dozen of your acquaintance. Also just look into the nests occupied by some of them who have nominally joined. It is bad business and means trouble later. Also it hurts the strength of effort, for it tends to uncock some who have (joined up) and turn them against elements in our country rather than wholeheartedly against the Axis powers."

"We have got to concentrate on just one objective — beating Germany and Japan. Or it will be just too bad."

"Theodore Roosevelt."

As in World War I when Franklin Roosevelt flagrantly ducked the draft to the scorn of Ted Roosevelt's father, there was a large element of vicarious warriors in New York and Washington who berated and badgered loyal Americans who believed we had no legitimate business to fight the Germans. The Germans were fighting our enemy, Soviet Russia, and Russia's enmity obviously was permanent. Soviet Russia has now

Lawyer Says Castro Could Be Tried Like Eichmann

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, May 14 — Fidel Castro and many of his associates some day may be tried for international crimes just as Adolf Eichmann is being tried today in Israel.

Prominent lawyers familiar with the proceedings in which war criminals were tried and punished after World War 2 say that Castro's crimes can be dealt with in the same manner as in the Nuremberg or Tokyo trials.

This view is held, for instance, by Dr. Brendan F. Brown, professor of law at Loyola University School of Law in New Orleans and formerly dean of Catholic University Law School here.

Prof. Brown told this correspondent that, while "psychologically" it would have been better for Eichmann to have been tried by an international tribunal rather than by one country, there is no question in his mind of the lawfully right to try Eichmann for international crimes.

Could Be Arrested

In the event that Fidel Castro is forced some day to flee Cuba, he could be arrested and brought before an international tribunal along with any civilians as well as military men connected with his regime who had any part in the mass killings. Many of the victims were shot to death by firing squads as a result of hearsay evidence and without being given the rights of judicial process.

The important point is that a claim of sovereign jurisdiction does not immunize any government official from punishment for crimes he may commit against international society. This is stressed in a book written a few years ago by Prof. Brown in collaboration with the late Joseph B. Keenan, who was Assistant Attorney General of the United States and served as chief of counsel in behalf of the United States in the Tokyo war crimes trial.

International Crimes

It is made clear in the Keenan-Brown book that international crimes are committed in time of peace as well as war. The authors, after referring to the Hague Convention of 1907, declared:

"This convention prohibited acts committed against a background of war, of such a nature as to lead national society to punish them, if they had been performed in peacetime, and if they had been within the jurisdiction of a competently functioning civil authority...."

"Certain other features characterize crimes against humanity. They are inhumanities which result from policy decisions made on the highest plane of civil or military authority. They are the effects of a definitely criminal state policy. They are not the isolated and casual atrocities and inhumanities which are perpetrated by soldiers in the heat of battle...."

Blame Leaders

"But crimes against humanity would be impossible without the active direction, or acquiescence, of leaders in control of the originating sources of supreme power in a state and in a position to co-ordinate that power over a wide area of operation so as to produce simultaneous patterns of the wholesale infraction of the laws of humanity in widely separated localities and under widely differing circumstances and conditions...."

"The defendants (in the Tokyo trials) did not personally commit crimes against humanity but they were responsible for frequent and habitual commission of such crimes insofar as they ordered, permitted, or agreed to them, or made no effort to prevent or stop them...."

"The society of nations and of men in international relationships has claimed and exercised the rightful power and authority to hold individuals accountable for violations of law which complements, controls and regulates international society, and to mete out appropriate punishment for these infractions, even the death penalty...."

"The right which international society has claimed and exercised in trying and punishing individuals for breaches of the criminal law of the world community is sustained by an analysis of historical data."

Warning to Cubans

Thus the Tokyo and Nuremberg trials serve as a warning to individuals in Cuba that they will not escape punishment by claiming, as Eichmann does, that criminal acts were ordered by someone higher up in the government. Indeed, the text of Article 6 of the charter of the international tribunal which tried the Japanese militarists says:

"Neither the official position, at any time, of an accused, nor the fact that an accused acted pursuant to order of his government, or of a superior, shall, of itself, be sufficient to free such accused from responsibility for any crime with which he is charged, but such circumstances may be considered in mitigation of punishment, if the tribunal determines that justice so requires."

Hence it may be said that those individuals who have participated directly or indirectly in the mass executions in Cuba—which now number several hundred—may some day find themselves facing an international tribunal. For, as Messers. Keenan and Brown wrote in their denunciation of "savagery and barbarism" in peacetime as well as war:

"If the message of the Tokyo and Nuremberg cases goes unheeded, surely there is but very little hope for the beginning of a new age among men in their international relationships." (Reproduction rights reserved)

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

I have heard the word "cosmoline" often mentioned as that greasy material found on metal items as a preservative. It seems this cosmoline is thickly put on various metal items as a rust preventative. World War veterans spent hours removing it from rifles. It is far from a new item.

Mrs. Dominic La Torre of Post Street a neighbor of mine gave me an interesting little booklet put out by the Houghton Line. It is called "Not a Yes Magazine." This one is dated April 1961. On page 15, in the "From the Chairman's Desk" column they tell you cosmoline was a registered trademark item back in 1881. It was then made in Philadelphia, Pa. and sold as a medical petroleum, with "emollient and healing properties."

It was only towards the end of the war that they mention it as a protection against rust, particularly for surgical instruments. This is the field cosmoline found after they gave up the pharmaceutical business in the early 80's. The soldiers know the rest. I wonder if cosmoline was used in both World War I and II. I must ask some of the World War I veterans.

This year of 1961 being the 100th Anniversary of the Civil War, I want to use as much of the material of that era as I can find. Mrs. Van Dyck Baston of 103 Emerson Street, this city had loaned an interesting report of the Kingston Board of Education, to the inhabitants of the Kingston School District, dated 1864 everything was in order during the war years.

In the report, C. R. Abbott, superintendent wrote in part: "My connection with the Kingston schools commenced November 1, 1863. I have been constantly in the schools, except when the duties of secretary of the office has been open on the afternoon of every Tuesday and Friday, and all day on Saturday, also the evenings of the above named days until the middle of April.

valuation by being daily in the schools, the plan of organization enables me to collect very full and correct information in regard to the condition and progress of each class. Assistant teachers report to the superintendent every Friday evening."

On teacher's meetings: All the teachers meet every month. In these meetings suggestions in regard to methods of teaching different subjects, hints on the management of classes, and directions for keeping school records are given. In addition to the regular monthly meetings, a series of meetings has been held by the teachers of the primary classes, in which each, in a short lecture, displayed her method of teaching her class some subject which had been previously assigned. After each lecture the subject was discussed, and the remarks of the lecturer were criticized by teachers and superintendent. This exercise is thought to be very valuable, for each teacher, in preparing her lecture, is obliged to arrange her thoughts on the subject systematically. This was published in book form in 1864, during the Civil War years, by Kingston Board of Education.

The Rev. Edward Singer was assigned to the Endicott church. He was at the Forty Fort, Pa., church.

Other new assignments involved these ministers: Joseph Fish from Ashley, Pa., to Oneonta, N.Y.; William H. ## Stratton Urges Boycotting of Rocky's Dinner

Stratton, of Schenectady, says the congressmen should stay away from the dinner unless Rockefeller agrees to discuss reapportionment of congressional districts.

Stratton accused the Republican governor of "playing the cheapest kind of backroom politics with what is probably the single most important issue currently facing the people of New York State."

Rockefeller has rejected Stratton's request for a discussion of reapportionment at the May 24 dinner on the ground the state Legislature is responsible for reapportionment.

The governor said he planned to discuss New York State matters with which the congressmen should be familiar.

Stratton frequently has been mentioned as a target of the Republican-controlled Legislature's reapportionment plans. Because of population changes between 1950 and 1960, New York's house delegation will be cut from 43 to 41.

The Legislature will meet this fall in special session to redesign the congressional districts.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A recent line in this column concerning the illusion-shattering news that "Lassie," the collie star of the program of the same name, was really four dogs and all of them male, brought a prompt explanation from the advertising agency which handles the show.

Jim Swift, my correspondent, states that Lassie has been a male since the eighth day of shooting, more than 20 years ago, of "Lassie Come Home," a movie from which the TV series subsequently developed.

The very first Lassie was female.

For the first six days of shooting—inside the studio—she was great. Then during the luncheon break on the second day of the location shots, a handsome male DeBerman turned up. The result was that Lassie broke her leash and eloped. Shooting had to be canceled for the rest of the day, at considerable cost.

The result was high-level decision that future Lassies would have to be males, and that there would have to be enough stand-ins and doubles to cope with emergencies.

At a time when television is under heavy fire for its big doses of unnecessary violence, the National Broadcasting Co. decided that the very thing the viewers needed now was a short version of "The Untouchables."

Its 30-minute gangbuster series, which bowed in Friday night, is called "The Lawless Years." The premiere show was another version of the violent end of New York gangster "Legs" Diamond, a clay pigeon of the roaring 20s. It promises to be a series of

Huge Airliner To Broadcast TV School Programs

By WILLIAM SHAFFER

CHICAGO (AP) — A converted airliner takes wing over Indiana today to broadcast the first educational television programs to a score of schools in a six-state area.

The DC6, crammed with six tons of ultra high frequency TV equipment, is to beam experimental, taped lectures as part of the Midwest Program on Airborne Television Instruction test of an aerial transmitting setup.

An airplane is used because its altitude lets it beam more than 200 miles in all directions — an area MPATI spokesmen say which otherwise would require some 14 ground-based transmitters.

A sample curriculum is scheduled for selected schools in Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Kentucky from today to June 1.

The aircraft is to fly a pre-selected pattern 23,000 feet above Montpelier, in northeast Indiana. It broadcasts on the UHF channels which are monitored in the classroom.

Dr. John E. Ivey Jr., who heads MPATI from its offices at Purdue University, said the system is aimed at helping teachers, not replacing them.

"Our program is a partial solution to the crisis in education," he said. "This crisis was brought on by the so-called population explosion, rising education costs and the added problem of a teacher shortage."

He said teachers must be present when the 15 to 25 minute lectures are in progress to answer questions. Guide books and supplementary materials accompany the series, he said.

Ivey said some 500,000 students will be included in next fall's first formal classroom presentation. He said some five million students in 13,000 schools are with-in broadcast range.

If successful, Ivey said, the system could expand into a nationwide operation.

Ivey estimated the per-pupil cost for member schools at $2.50. He said a typical, 12-unit installation viewed by 25 to 30 pupils per set would cost from $2,500 to $5,000.

Hears Women's Voices

BOCHUM, Germany (AP)—The head of the Bochum Observatory today said his station has recorded female voices on a wave length usually used for Soviet spunk communications.

Heinz Kaminski said he believes the Russians may be on the verge of sending a space ship into orbit carrying women.

"Before the start of space ships, the Russians always align their transmitters but we never have heard female voices on that wave length," Kaminski said. "Something is going on there."

Could Have

Kennedy has said that he will take whatever measures may be necessary to protect the security of the United States against the development of a Communist base in this hemisphere.

Wide Range of Subjects

Talks between the two men presumably would cover a far wider range of subjects than those Kennedy said at the outset of his administration that he would like to concentrate in his dealings with the Soviets on problems about which some agreement was possible.

He proposed joint researches on outer space and cooperative endeavors to conquer disease. There is no reason to think that he would not renew this proposition in a face-to-face meeting with Khrushchev.

But in present world circumstances the major part of the conversation would almost inevitably have to deal with problems arising from the contest created by Khrushchev's efforts to make his confident predictions of a Communist world come true—and the efforts of the United States and its allies to block any further spread of Sino-Soviet power.

On top of his real or prospective successes in Cuba and Laos, Khrushchev found cause for proud boasts of Soviet achievement in the successful orbiting of a man around the world a few weeks ago. This considerably increased Soviet prestige in comparison with that of the United States.

It would be surprising indeed if the Soviet leader did not approach a meeting with President Kennedy now in a more confident mood than that in which he visited the United States and talked with President Eisenhower in September 1959.

Agree to Pay Cut

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Drivers for the city's second largest taxi company agreed to take a cut in pay Sunday, ending a 28-day strike. City Service Taxi's 140 drivers agreed to new terms to keep the company in business, according to Stanley Clayton, business agent for Teamsters local 375. He said the agreement amounts to a weekly cut of about $1.50 to $2.25 per driver.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made a fairly sharp gain in active trading early this afternoon amid signs of further recovery by business.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose 1.10 to 248.60 with industrials up 1.60, rails up .60 and utilities up .60.

Gains of key stocks went from fractions of 2 points or better. Steels, Motors, rails, chemicals, coppers, rubbers and other stocks related to the business cycle were strongly on the upbeat for the first time in quite a while.

A number of electronics and selected issues pinpointed by traders as good speculation also made strides. The market rise was by no means unanimous. Oils, aircrafts and tobacco were irregular.

U. S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin gained about 2 apiece. Ford rose more than a point. Chrysler picked up a point.

American Machine & Foundry was up 5 1/2.

Kendall, Zenith and Texas Instruments gained 2 points or so. Hershey Chocolate dropped 5 points.

Goodrich spurred 3 points. Anaconda advanced more than a point. Other copper shares made fractional gains.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.24 at 691.15. Corporate bonds edged higher. U. S. government bonds were unchanged to easy.

U. S. Agrees Today to Take Part in Conference on Laos

GENEVA (AP) — The United States reluctantly agreed today to take part in an international conference on Laos after President Kennedy approved an American concession that deliberately left the status of the Laotian delegations vague.

The conference, which was to have opened three days ago, now is expected to go through at least a formal opening ceremony tonight or Tuesday.

The problem that has held up the high-level meeting has been deciding who would speak for Laos in negotiations on its political future. Three rival Laotian delegations are here.

The United States originally took the position that the only

Laotians who should be allowed at the conference table were representatives of the pro-Western government of Premier Boun Oum.

The Communists insisted that the Communist-led Pathet Lao rebels and their self-styled neutralist allies under Prince Souvanna Phouma — who is recognized by the Reds as the legal premier of Laos—should be the spokesmen for Laos.

A compromise formula worked out by British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville appeared to have the approval of all concerned.

The formula would allow all three rival Laotian delegations into the conference room as observers but avoid describing them as "representatives of Laos."

Instead, it was reported by British sources, they will be described as "Laotian delegates." This tricky phraseology avoids indicating whether they represent any government of the tiny kingdom.

American agreement to attend the conference on this basis was given reluctantly by U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk after consultations with President Kennedy.

The formal U. S. position still is that the royal government of Premier Boun Oum is the sole government of Laos. But American delegates said they are willing to sit in on the conference of 14 nations in which the two factions participate on the basis of the British-French compromise.

Informants said the Kennedy administration felt it was more important to test the sincerity of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's professed willingness to agree to a neutral policy for Laos than to allow the proceedings to break down on a question of representation.

But the conference here may never deal with the political and governmental aspects of the crisis in Laos since discussions of a neutral government now are under way in the Indochinese kingdom itself.

Top Leaders at Home

The three top leaders of the rival forces are in Geneva, preferring to remain at home in the hope some sort of political settlement can be achieved there. If they reach a settlement on the spot, then representatives of an eventually unified government might come to Geneva to represent the country as fully privileged participants.

The conference here would devote itself primarily to matters affecting the international aspects of the problem—such as the matters of arms control and international supervision of the country's neutrality.

Agreement had been reached Sunday by the big powers on a formula to seat all three rival Laotian groups as observers, but not participants.

They would have been designated as representatives of their own political factions but not as representatives of Laos. But at the last moment, the pro-Western Laotians and the Pathet Lao refused to take part on this basis.

In accepting the new British-French proposal, the Soviet Union and Communist allies also gave a point. They originally had demanded that the Pathet Lao be represented at the conference as a full governmental delegation on the same footing as any of the other 13 nations taking part. The West refused to agree to this.

night session is open at 7:30 p. m.

It is expected that the council will act upon whatever schedule is presented Tuesday night and recess until Thursday for possible consideration of urban renewal.

Early action on the designation of an urban renewal program has been asked in order for the city to gain some $500,000 in credit through construction of the Mary's Avenue School. The federal government permits the city to make up for its one-sixth share of urban renewal costs through contribution of water, sewer, school, street and other facilities.

Savings-Loan Plan Offers Safe Repository for Funds

Q "I have noticed that some savings and loan associations are offering 4 1/2 per cent on savings plans. This rate of interest seems to be greater than many stocks offer. Do you recommend savings and loan associations over stocks?" P. F.

A I can't give you a flat answer to this question, since the choice of investment in these two areas depends entirely on what your aims are. I believe savings and loan associations are sound and secure repositories for your funds.

In many instances, as you say, they offer a higher rate of return than can be obtained from stocks. What they can't give you is growth from rising earnings and dividends.

Q "I have held E. W. Bliss shares, purchased at 30, for four years. Would you recommend keeping or selling this stock?" H. S.

A The outlook for Bliss (NYSE) has improved somewhat, due partly to the acquisition of Gamewell Company in 1959. However, I think you have held this stock long enough. You should recover your loss more quickly in a situation which has good growth prospects, such as ACF-Wrigley Stores (NYSE). The latter stock has been selling near 20, which is less than 15 times my estimate of this year's earnings.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Business luncheon clubs grow both in number and in swankiness. They are scattered from the eastern seaboard to Honolulu.

The recession led many corporations to cut operating costs in many ways. But most clubs say they have suffered no loss of membership. Companies often pick up the tab for one or more top executives. At a club their man can both entertain at midday and do business with a guest, a client, supplier, banker or adviser. (In these days of antitrust probes, it's no place to be seen with a competitor.)

Exclusive, View Too

The clubs offer varying degrees of exclusiveness and more of them are opening on top floors of new buildings that can boast a view. The dues and luncheon checks vary as widely as the sites.

But all have in common the aim of letting men of like interests get together for a meal and maybe a drink. They may just relax but most members claim they discuss their problems or work out business deals. It's the same sort of thing that businessmen often do, so they say, when they leave the office early for a round of golf.

Swank decor and service helps. But members say the big idea is to avoid being disturbed by outsiders and have enough elbow room so that the talk can be private. To this end also most clubs have private rooms as well as the general luncheon areas. Some private rooms are rented permanently by corporations or groups. Most are open to use for meetings or other special occasions.

More Are Planned

The growing number of office buildings, each with a new coterie of executives, has hiked the demand for club membership and led to the opening of many new clubs and the planning of still more.

Joining the rush of new clubs on the New York scene are the Fifth Avenue Club atop the Cornish Glass Building and the Hemisphere Club at Time & Life in Rockefeller Center. Another newcomer is the Harbor View Club at the lower end of Broadway, and fairly recent is the Pinnacle Club in the Socony Mobil Building near Grand Central Station.

Coming is one atop the Pan Am Building being built over the tracks at Grand Central. The Wall Street Club will move from present quarters to the Chase Manhattan Bank Building nearing completion in the financial district.

Older clubs report no loss of total membership due to the influx. The Rainbow Room Luncheon Club, loftiest in Rockefeller Center, says the Hemisphere Club has only helped supply the demand for such midday gathering places. The financial district has many from $1.40 to $2.50.

When to Pass Take Out Double

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Fifty years ago the West hand would have to pass after an opening bid by South. An overcall at the two level on a four card suit would be too dangerous and no-trump with a singleton in the opponent's suit would be inviting the undertaker.

About that time the late Maj. Rufus C. Patton invented the negative or take out double and this West hand is a perfect example to this bid.

He doubles to ask his partner to bid. This time it turns out that East will pass. He has very good spades and should decide to try to set South.

West won't like it when East passes his take-out double, but

West should not be too annoyed to open his singleton trump. Incidentally, this trump opening is normal procedure when your partner passes your take out double. He is showing very good trumps and you should start the trump suit right off the bat.

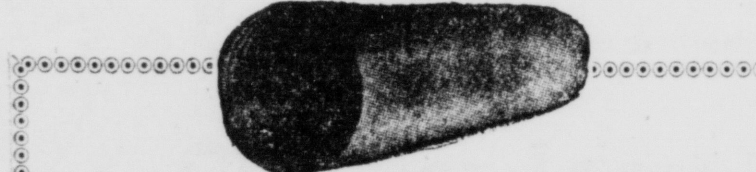

Against this trump opening South is almost helpless. Double dummy can get out with four tricks but if he doesn't go right after a club trick he is likely to make only his ace and king of trumps and ace of diamonds.

Of course, East and West do have a game, but an 800 or 1,100 point penalty is better.

Antwerp Diamond Dealer

Twenty years ago, when the Nazi were bombing London and closing in on leading Western European cities, hundreds of citizens from England, The Netherlands, Belgium and France came to New York City. They were prominent financial individuals in their own countries.

I got to know a score of them. One was a diamond dealer from Antwerp who spoke several languages fluently. He was an internationalist. Few men in the world had a better understanding of global economics.

In 1946, he settled permanently in New York and now, well past 70, he views the world with a tremendous comprehension and discusses the political, economic and military forces' underlying values with a rare understanding.

The bulk of his considerable wealth is invested in common stocks of American corporations. And as the situations in Cuba, Laos, Algeria, Berlin and many other danger spots develop, a great many uncertainties for the future, he is becoming increasingly thankful that he is here and that his money is in American enterprises.

There are still many economic isolationists in our country. I receive letters from some of them every week. They hoard dollars, failing to recognize the gigantic forces operating in the world.

Here is a lady of 74. For 25 years, she has had over $100,000 earning from 1 1/2 per cent (during the financing of the Second World War) to 3 1/2 per cent a year. She lived on the interest. In 1960, she caught up with her; a hospital siege cost her $5,000. Against her wishes, she had to spend some principal.

Her medical and hospital expenses this year will be over $5,000. More principal will disappear. This experience deepens her financial worries and prolongs her mental and physical illness.

Her isolation is proving her undoing. What does she need most? Some of the vision and the courage of the Antwerp diamond dealer. And 1961 is not too late to turn from isolation.

If, in 1945, she had started to buy some of the common stocks the Belgian merchant bought at that time, today she would be facing a cruel economic world calmly. Ninety thousand dollars invested in good stocks fifteen years ago would be worth $500,000 at least, today. And with a yearly income of $20,000, living expenses and hospital bills would constitute no problem financially.

The problems of the world are more and more being centered in the social and economic structure of America. The fiscal matters in Washington are daily becoming of vital concern to every United States citizen.

In the free world, America carries the biggest load. Every dollar that our country spends to help keep the free world free comes directly or indirectly from the 180,000,000 people who live here.

Economic isolation always catches up with those who live long enough. It is far better to attain one's capital to the economic forces ruling the world than to try to hide it somewhere.

Dollars in reserve are all right. Bonds as values to earn dependable interest, are all right, too. But for most investors who can look ahead 10, 20 or 30 years, the best investment policy is that of the Antwerp dealer.

Phone Co. Says New Toll System To Save Million

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New York Telephone Co. will offer unlimited long-distance toll calls within the state at a flat, 650-per-month-per-trunk rate, beginning June 1.

The utility said the system, approved Saturday by the Public Service Commission, would save the utility's biggest customers nearly $1 million annually.

New York Telephone also will offer a limited-service plan, under which subscribers would pay $240 per trunk for 15 hours of toll calls within the state and $13.50 for each extra hour.

Collect, person-to-person, conference and other calls requiring the services of an operator will not be covered under the new plan, which is based on direct dialing of long-distance calls.

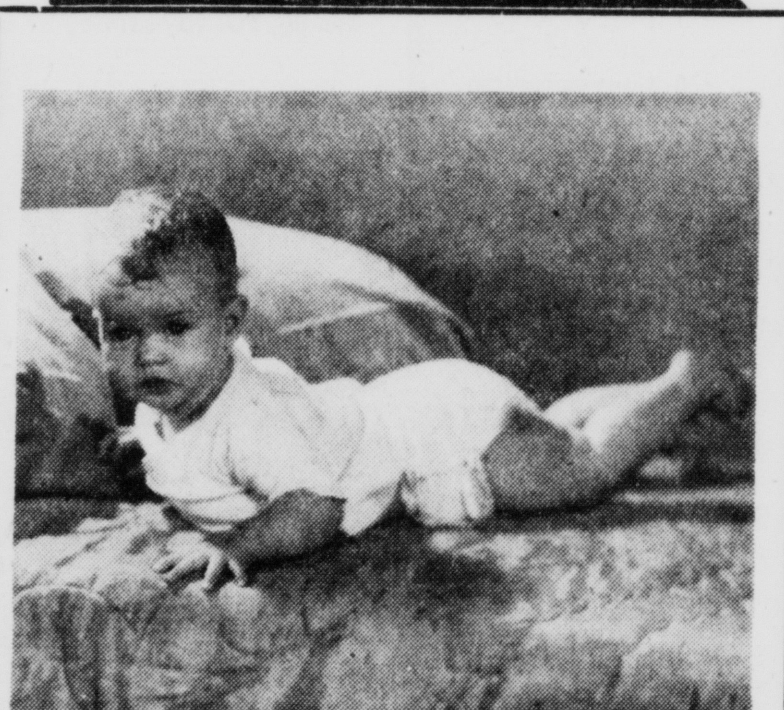

New York Telephone told the commission that studies of subscribers with monthly toll bills of $200 or more had indicated that they would save a total of $960,000 a year, after paying the special rates.

The revenue loss, New York Telephone said, will be offset by operating economies possible with the system.

The Mature Parent

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Don't Turn Your Children Into Unamusing Showoffs

Sometimes after a nap his mother would read to him from his book of nursery rhymes. As he was beginning to appreciate the power of words to help him understand and make himself understood, he listened eagerly. One day she was turning a page in the book when he stopped her. Pointing to its picture of the little girl with the shepherdess crook, he said something that sounded like this:

"Little Bo Peep
Lissa sheep
No fine it
Tails home hime it."

He was so intent on his own achievement that he didn't notice his mother's face. So later he gladly displayed the achievement for a neighbor. He did notice her face. Its expression made him uncomfortable.

Therefore the following Sunday he didn't want to recite his nursery rhyme for grandma and other assorted relatives. He didn't want to attract that half-contemptuous, half-amused attention he had received from the neighbor. It made him feel shy and very lonely.

But mama insisted; and as he trusted her wishes more than his own, he obeyed. He got the same disrespectful attention. However, he soon forgot how much he disliked it and went on showing off for mama.

Today, he still seeks it. At parties, in the club car of his commuters' train at night, he can't stop trying to amuse people with jokes they have heard. He's got to tell you the latest thing Khrushchev said to Kasavubu. He can't be quiet. Somehow he must attract that contemptuous, no longer amused attention that humiliates him — and is the problem of his life.

Children Do Not Like to Show Off

But we parents can always make them forget this. We can demand the public display of a private achievement once too often. We can insist on Jimmy showing his report card once too often to people who do not love him. We can require Janey to play her piano piece for bored guests once too often.

Jimmy and Janey, trusting our wishes more than their own, will obey us; and like the little boy of his column forget the loneliness and sadness involved in "showing off," their dislike of that disrespectful attention we

New FAA Ruling
Bans FM Radios
In All Aircraft

The use of portable FM radios on U. S. civil aircraft has been prohibited by the Federal Aviation Agency in a Special Civil Air Regulation, SR 446, effective May 25, 1961.

The rule was based on results of an investigation of the effect of portable electronic devices operated in aircraft, including radios, dictating machines and recorders. Only radios having oscillators operating within or very near the Very High Frequency band used in aircraft, 108 to 118 megacycles, affected instruments in the various aircraft on which the tests were made. More detailed tests will be made later in the year.

The interference discovered by the FAA affected the VHF radio navigation system of the aircraft, causing the appearance of the "red flag," indicating to the pilot that the navigation instrument was not working properly. This red flag warns the pilot not to trust the instrument, and thus prevents the instrument from giving a faulty indication.

On hand also, will be the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment Console (SAGE), and operations of the 76th Fighter Interceptor Squadron will be explained. The weapons of 76th, the F-102 and F-101 of 60th FIS, will be included in the briefing.

Swim Suit Backs Dip Amid Cover-Up Trend

GAILE DUGAS, Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor

This year's sleek and streamlined swim suit shows more cover-up than in seasons past. There's one exception: the plunging back. Many suits are cut right down to the waistline at back in either U or V shape.

And even though they sport shoulder straps, they allow for a beautiful tan to display later with low-backed chiffon or organdy evening dresses. Featherweight knits and mailots (sleek sheath suits) are top best sellers.

Outstanding among the season's new swim suits are the two pictured at left, above. Model at left wears a trim V-necked suit, featuring a multi-color striped apron front that gives a skirt effect. Her pal's suit with the deep V-back has a broad band of ribbing that outlines the neckline. Both are in flexible all-American wool and are first-rate figure-molders. Both have special inner construction to make a girl look her best at the beach. For the gal who really likes to swim, the suit in right photo is just the ticket. An ingenious knit-in petal pattern features this handloomed, all-American wool model. Perfection of streamlined fit eliminates sagging or strap-slipping, both impediments to a swimmer's action.

Both are designed to give a girl a lovely figure even if she doesn't possess one. Artfully designed, with built-in figure control, these suits provide the greatest streamlining with the least possible weight.

As for swim suit colors, they follow the trend in daytime dress fashions. Colors you'll see on the beach include grape, banana, orange, absinthe, lemon, lime, turquoise and gold. Then there are stripes and prints, too.

Think It Through

By E. F. HUTTON

KENNEDY vs. KENNEDY

Attorney General Robert Kennedy has indicted eight Baltimore milk companies on the charge that they fix the price of milk sold to the schools. He also plans to investigate any price fixing of bread and meat.

Meantime, his big brother, the President, wants Congress to authorize farmers to fix—and raise—the prices they get for bread, meat and other farm products. He wants to increase the income of farmers.

The Attorney General wants to reduce the income of those who distribute farm products. Congress already permits the fixing of prices farmers charge for milk. It is O.K. to force milk distributors to pay farmers fixed prices for milk, but it is very naughty for them to fix the prices they get for milk!

It is true, of course, that the fixed price of milk at the farm has to be O.K.'d by some official, whereas the price distributors charge for milk could be fixed in some smoke-filled room. E. F. Hutton But Government sets a bad example, and gets into an awful mess when it fixes prices at one end of the line and demands free competition at the other end—or jail.

Shall Government fix all prices charged by producers, processors, wholesalers and retailers? Shall it also fix wages, or let labor unions fix them and force employers and the public to pay them?

We presently have two governments,—one visible, the other invisible.

County to Receive $35,616 Additional
In New State Plan

Ulster County will receive an additional $35,616.25 in per capita state aid in its first quarterly payment of $560,360.15 on May 15, as a result of the recently enacted law permitting the use of 1960 census data.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt announced today that $3.1 million in additional per capita aid will be distributed this year because of the new law.

In all some $100.2 million will be distributed to cities, towns and villages in the state during the fiscal year.

IBM Considering Suburbia Switch

NEW YORK — International Business Machines Corporation announced today that starting in September some 190 people, about one-seventh of its New York City corporate headquarters executive staff, will work in Westchester County for several months to determine whether the company's headquarters can operate effectively in a suburban location. The group will occupy offices in the new Thomas J. Watson Research Center at Yorktown.

Four of IBM's division headquarters have moved out of the city to Westchester County during the last three years and, according to the company, most of the people involved have found the new suburban locations highly satisfactory.

At the end of the trial period, the company will decide whether to move its entire headquarters to an ultimate location in the suburbs, or continue to have its headquarters in New York.

The company's several large sales offices, a district office, and its regional headquarters in New York City will in no way be affected.

PHILADELPHIA — (NFA) — Satchel Paige was as quick with his tongue as his arm.

Robin Roberts recalls battling against Satch in 1952, when Paige was believed to be approaching 50, and hitting a double. Later a friend of the Phillies' right-hander told Paige that Roberts was boasting of how he hit him.

"I got a big book on how to pitch to all the great hitters," commented Paige, "and Mistuh Roberts isn't in it."

3rd Fixed Station
Monitoring Course Is Slated Tuesday

The third session of the fixed station monitoring course will be held on Tuesday, May 16, at 7:30 p. m. in the Supervisors' Room of the County Court House, 285 Wall Street.

This session will be devoted to the use of the Geiger counter to detect and measure radiation. Herbert Stork has prepared a series of demonstrations and exercises to teach the use of this instrument.

An important portion of the course will be the operation of the fixed station. John Schermerhorn will discuss the mechanics of collecting data, recording the radiation values, and transmitting the basic information to the control center.

Another and final session of this course will be held in the Supervisors' Room on May 23. This extension of the course was found necessary to cover all the material and to allow a "make-up" class for those enrollees who missed a previous session.

This training has been arranged by Morris Nussbaum, Chief of the Radiological Service, to train and equip the 14 American Legion Posts in Ulster County with a capability to monitor radioactive fallout.

Rural Representatives Dominate Legislature

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you want your vote in state legislative affairs to weigh more, move to the country.

The reason? Most state legislatures now are dominated by rural senators and representatives.

In theory, every state but Maryland must reapportion all or part of the legislature periodically. This prohibits the focus of power anywhere but with the majority of the people.

But in practice, theory is shelved and rural lawmakers keep a firm hold on their power.

That disfranchisement is common may be seen in this sampling:

Alabama's Bullock County has 13,000 citizens and two representatives. But the more than 50,000 Houston County citizens have only one.

Less Than Third Controls
Less than one-third of Iowa's population controls the legislature. Some Wyoming counties with three legislators have fewer residents than other counties with but one.

Four urban Utah counties claim three-quarters of the state's population, pay 65 per cent of the taxes, but have only 44 per cent of the Senate seats and 54 per cent of the House.

And Perry County, Arkansas, boasts 4,900 residents and one representative, while the eight Pulaski County representatives average 31,250 constituents each.

A Vexing Problem
In all but a handful of states, reapportionment is a vexing problem. And its solutions range from acceptance to agitation to reform.

Maryland's legislative districts can be changed only with approval by voters and there are no deadlines for changes. The last boundary changes followed a 1950 referendum.

The partition of Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama is the same now as it was a half-century ago. Vermont's 246-member House—second largest in the nation—has been unchanged numerically since its first seating in 1793. And Connecticut's Senate is the same in number now as in 1874.

Almost Impossible
Reapportionment of all or part of the Iowa, Ohio and Arkansas legislatures is virtually impossible because of so-called "freezing" clauses which permanently fix district boundaries.

Small hope is held for overhauling the assemblies of Kentucky, Utah, Vermont, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Wyoming—states where the lawmakers maintain a passive attitude.

Indiana's legislature was last realigned in 1921, despite a constitutional provision for a census and reapportionment every six years. An Indianapolis judge ruled recently that all future acts of the legislature will be invalid unless the constitution is obeyed, but there is considerable doubt the ruling can be enforced.

The rural-urban antagonism is compounded in Vermont, New York and Connecticut by partisan politics.

Some Progress on Way
But progress is being made. Partial equalizing recently occurred in eight states. Change is under study in 11 more.

Floridians will vote soon on a new districting plan (a similar measure was voted down by a 5-4 margin two years ago). In Michigan a constitutional convention this fall probably will rework that state's apportionment clause.

Governors in Georgia, California, Alabama and Utah are taking a personal role in seeking equalization of the governmental formulas in their states.

Elsewhere, individuals are taking matters to the courts.

Refuses to Pay Taxes

A Mississippian refuses to pay his state tax, saying he isn't fairly represented. He claims that no legislative reapportionment since 1890 means taxation without fair representation.

A Kansas attorney has asked the courts to declare all legislative acts unconstitutional. He says the Kansas government has gone unchanged for so long it no longer reflects the wishes of the majority.

Most publicized of current reapportionment controversies is that in Tennessee. The U. S. Supreme Court is considering a case in which city voters claim they aren't being equitably represented.

There has been no reallocation of the Tennessee General Assembly since 1901. The plaintiffs argue that city dwellers are being discriminated against.

The state claims a federal tribunal has no right to decide the issue, that an order to reapportion would amount to usurping state's rights.

Medal Proposed To Honor Hope For His Works

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Moments enriched by humor are moments free from hate and conflict, and therefore valued by mankind," said a Senate resolution today proposing a gold medal for comedian Bob Hope.

The resolution, prepared for introduction by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., on behalf of 97 senators, cited Hope's "countless miles of travel around the globe" to entertain American troops.

This phase of the rapid fire comedian's life already is well known to Americans, particularly those who served overseas during World War II and in Korea.

"Another less known side of Hope's life," Symington said, is that "for many years, quietly but consistently, this American has been engaged in a career of good works."

The British-born entertainer, 58 in two weeks, attempted to enlist after the United States entered World War II. He was told he could serve better as an entertainer to build morale.

Hope took the advice literally and traveled more than 1 million miles to entertain servicemen all the way from North Africa to the islands of the Pacific.

His book on the wartime travels, "I Never Left Home," sold more than 1.6 million copies and earned about $175,000 which was turned over to charity.

During World War II he was the only entertainer among 50 persons voted into the Living Hall of Fame at the Smithsonian Institution.

CIVIL WAR ALBUM

The Steam Gun Fizzled For Its Union Captors

THE WINANS GUN, shown above, was captured on May 10 by Union troops near Baltimore while en route to Confederate forces at Harpers Ferry, Va. It was a centrifugal steam gun, protected by an iron cone and mounted on a four-wheel carriage. According to its patent holder, Charles S. Dickinson, the gun could fire any size ball from one ounce to 24 pounds at a rate of 100 to 500 per minute. Dickinson claimed it was better than an entire battery to defend a city or harbor and that it was capable of sinking any ordinary vessel or mowing down troops on the battlefield. Dickinson said it also was economical. Having captured the gun, Union forces set it up to protect a viaduct and an important junction near Baltimore but, like all centrifugal force guns, past and present, it proved to be a failure. The gun was named for mechanic-inventor Ross Winans, a Confederate sympathizer, who had previously successfully invented or improved locomotives and steamboats which were used here and abroad, and which served as models in the industries for several generations. However, Winans' products also led him into the courts. Just before the outbreak of war, Winans retired. He then represented Baltimore in the Maryland state legislature and was later arrested several times by the North on charges of treason, but was paroled each time.

ASK THE DESIGNER

Dear Gaile: I am beginning to think about the clothes I would like for summer. I like the flared dresses that I have seen so far but don't know if I can wear the flared type. I have a hip problem and it seems to me that a flared skirt will only accentuate this. Still, the flare looks so new that I want two or three if possible. What do you think?—Mrs. A. D. L.

Dear Mrs. A. D. L.: I think that you have lots of company. A good many women in this country share that hip problem with you. So don't be discouraged. I talked this one over with designer, Geoffrey Beene of Teal Traina, and this is what he has to say:

"By all means, do try the flare. It's such a fresh and interesting variation. But if you have a hip problem, your best bet is the flare with a bias cut. Ask for this when you go shopping as you may not recognize it when you see it. But the bias cut will enable you to wear the flare without looking hippy. If you are only slightly hippy, you will be surprised to discover that you can wear almost any version of the flare and look well."

Dear Gaile: I have a natural ranch mink cape. It's about 27 inches from shoulder to bottom in back and about 25 inches in front. I have had it three or four years. It is beautiful fur. But I feel out of style in it as most everyone is wearing the stole. Should I have it restyled into a stole? I wear suits practically all the time and this cape gives me the warmth I need with a suit. I'd appreciate your opinion. (I am 5'7" tall).—M. P.

Dear M. P.: Actually, the mink stole was never designed to wear with a suit. It was intended for dressy afternoon, cocktail and dinner clothes. But because it is a warm, light, handy wrap, women are beginning to wear it with suits.

You are tall enough to carry off a cape well. And since you seem pleased with your cape and wear it with suits, I would not have it changed. It's quite likely that you will end up with a stole which is very much in fashion and which you don't like at all.

To a certain degree, all of us must be individualists about fashion. If a style becomes you and you like it, wear it. And don't worry about what other women are wearing at the moment. From your description, I would say that the cape is a perfect choice for you.

Please send your fashion problems to Gaile Dugas in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column. (All rights reserved, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Summit Session May Be Held Soon

Two Nations Act to Slate Kennedy, Khrushchev Talks

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Time and events in a disorderly world dented the ideas of President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk about summitry and travel.

Just a few months ago Kennedy indicated a meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev—who insulted President Eisenhower in Paris just a year ago Tuesday—was a long way off.

Now the American and Russian governments are dickering to bring Kennedy and Khrushchev together in the near future. Rusk was not only cautious about summit get-togethers for a President but even about travel for a secretary of state. Rusk, remembering that John Foster Dulles was the most traveled secretary in history, told a news conference March 9:

Rusk Conferences
"I personally have felt my time can be spent to best advantage in Washington."

But in the two months since then he has attended four international conferences outside this country.

The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (worried about the possibility of revolution in Iran) in Ankara, Turkey; the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (anxious to mend its differences and show Russia a stiff lip) in Oslo, Norway; and now in Geneva, Switzerland, for a 14-nation conference on setting up a neutral government in Laos.

Kennedy goes to Canada Tuesday for a visit and then travels to Paris May 31 for a conference with French President Charles de Gaulle. He'll most likely seek Khrushchev immediately afterward, if plans are completed.

Must Build Military
This is what Kennedy said about summit meetings during the 1960 presidential campaign:

"Before we go to the summit, before we ever meet again, I think it is important that the United States build its strength, build its military strength as well as its economic strength."

"If we negotiate from a position where the power balance is moving away from us, it is extremely difficult to meet a situation on Berlin as well as other things."

(Berlin is not an issue at the moment but is expected to be this year. But in the time since Kennedy made that statement—short time ago as military buildup goes—this country hasn't been able to add much to its strength.)

Must Be Agreement
But Kennedy went on: "I will not meet Mr. Khrushchev unless there were some agreement at the secondary level, foreign ministers or ambassadors, that would indicate that the meeting will have some hope of success or useful exchange of ideas."

Here's Rusk on summit meetings in a talk he made Jan. 18, 1960:

"It diverts time and energy (the President's) from exactly the point at which we can spare it least; it does not give us effective negotiations; such experience as we have had with summit diplomacy does not encourage the view that it contributes to the advancement of American interests." He added, "Summit diplomacy is to be approached with the wariness with which a prudent physician prescribes habit-forming drugs."

On March 9 Rusk said this about traveling by a secretary of state: "I personally have felt that my time can be spent to best advantage in Washington and I hope to make good on that over the years."

But he added that he didn't want to be dogmatic about this.

Jewish Music Will Be Presented Here By Community Center

A festival of Jewish music will be presented by the Jewish Community Center of Kingston at 9 p. m., Saturday, June 3, at Temple Emanuel, Albany Avenue.

H. A. Schimmerling of Woodstock is arranging the program, according to an announcement from Harry Simon, festival chairman, and Daniel Balsam, executive director of the Center. Soloists will be June Pauker of Kingston, soprano, and Peter Bornstein of New York, violinist. Mr. Schimmerling will also appear as pianist and accompanist for the soloists.

"Contemporary Music of Israel" is the theme of the recital; through selections performed by the soloists and comment from Mr. Schimmerling, the influence of European and Mediterranean composers will be shown. Also included is music from Arabic, Yemen, Syrian and Babylonian cultures.

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Raphael Klein, Mrs. Stanley Caple or Mrs. Philip Rosdol, or at the Center, 265 Wall Street. Also assisting on the ticket committee is Mrs. Robert A. Romer.

A resident of Woodstock since 1950, Mr. Schimmerling is well known in the area as a former music teacher in the Ontario and Kingston school districts and co-founder of the Woodstock Harmony Hill concerts. A composer and conductor, he is former musical director of the Hunter College Opera Workshop and the Chatham Square Music School department of Opera and Music Theory.

Women's Army Corps Has 19th Birthday

The Army's teenage distaff corps is growing up. On May 14, the U. S. Women's Army Corps celebrated its 19th birthday. Formed early in 1942, during World War 2, to add women-power to the Army's team, the WAC has won a place in history, leaving a legacy of honor and pride to the thousands of young women who have served in war and in peacetime.

Today 10,000 Wac's work side by side with soldiers of the U. S. Army, thus adding a needed link in the strong chain of the country's defenses. They serve throughout the U. S. and in France, Germany, Italy, Hawaii, Japan, Korea and Okinawa.

The Women's Army Corps has never been happier than it is today in its new $7,000,000 Center at Fort McClellan, Alabama, an old Army fort which took to skirts and pink ruffles in 1954. Nurses of the WAC, the center receives women who are processed, classified, and trained for Army life. The cream colored barracks, which look like college dormitories, include snack kitchens, modern laundries, luxurious bathrooms, smart television lounges, and an inviting date room where the girls may have their boyfriends call, and wait in comfort for their dates. This realistic attitude of treating women as women reflected in ever increasing efficient service to our nation.

"Tracing the growth of this service is like watching a turbulent teenager turn into a purposeful, poised adult," commented Sgt. Edward Malenski, Army recruiter for this area. "In the beginning," he said, "it was strain, hard work and regimentation. Today, Wac's are assigned to only those jobs which are socially acceptable for women everywhere in fields including public information, personnel, special services, medical and secretarial work."

The WAC today offers young women 18 through 33 an opportunity to serve their country, to receive job training, to attend Army specialized schools, to travel all over the world as well as benefits of social service. More information may be obtained by contacting Sgt. Malenski at Municipal Auditorium, 467 Broadway, Kingston.

Crusader for Planned Motherhood Is Feted At Testimonial Dinner

By JOY MILLER AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—She sits quietly with folded hands, looking like a modern Whistler's Mother. Her floor-length silk muumuu is red, but somehow it goes with her Irish red hair that needs only slight tinting as she nears 80. She is gently placid, almost frail.

But just ask Margaret Sanger if she has mellowed. The blue eyes flash with the old fire that kept her embattled birth control movement going in its early years.

"Of course I haven't mellowed," she snaps. "Back when I was actively crusading I felt everyone simply had to believe what I said. I still do. I don't see how any thinking person could feel differently about birth control."

Then, humor getting the upper hand, she recalls: "When I started out, I had to be very careful what words I used. The whole subject was taboo. Even my father—an out-spoken Irishman who brought me up to do my own thinking—said to me one day: 'Margaret, can't you find some other subject in the world to talk about but the bedroom?'"

But times have changed. The dignified little woman who was jailed at least nine times and had her first clinic raided by police as a public nuisance is in New York this week receiving an international tribute from science and government leaders gathered for a conference on the "world population crisis."

"I take the scientists' word," she says, "when they say there's not going to be enough to take care of all the people. And birth control, if practiced on a wide scale, is the only solution. I'm not advocating any one method, but all methods."

In the past few years Mrs. Sanger has been living quietly in Tucson, Ariz., but the election of John F. Kennedy brought her into the news again. She was moving to England, she declared, unless the President showed whether he was not dominated by the Roman Catholic Church.

Now she says: "I've been told that he and his wife are sympathetic. He may not do anything about it; I don't expect him to promise anything. But if the government would come out and say it was standing behind the movement, it would be of great help to the little overpopulated countries of Asia that still admire us. It would have helped if President Eisenhower had done it."

When Don't Teen-Agers Win Arguments?

The experts in human relations must figure that if we don't have something new to worry about every month or so we'll get bored and restless and not have the foggiest notion of what to do with our spare time.

So we are warned that teenagers need to win an argument with their parents occasionally—for the sake of their self-esteem (or something). It is even suggested that, if necessary, we deliberately start an argument we intend to let them win—just to build up their self-confidence.

Personally, I figure the expert who has dreamed up this new worry is going to have a hard time peddling it. The parents of teen-agers I know are so unaccustomed to winning arguments with their offspring that they'll never have to throw one, just to make their kids feel good.

After all, what parent today is strong enough to win out against such teen-age arguments as:

- "All the other kids are going. Want to make your kid different?"
- "Your treating me like a child. At fourteen—yet?"
- "Things aren't like they were when you were growing up." That's a fact, for sure.
- "You just don't understand!" And after all those books you've read, too.
- "Nothing's going to happen." Maybe you are being overly protective. And you KNOW that's bad. All the experts agree.

Nurses Hear Speaker On Local Legends

Members of the District Nurses Association in Greene and Ulster Counties enjoyed their annual dinner this week, held this year at the Catskill Country Club.

Miss Agnes Scott Smith, history teacher in Kingston High School, was the speaker of the evening. Miss Smith brought to her audience legends handed down through generations of the descendants of the early settlers. Stories of hostile and friendly encounters with the Indians, of witchcraft in Ulster and in Greene County, of Revolutionary War heroes, and of county "characters" during the 19th Century made informative and often amusing material for our background of local history. Laughter was occasioned by the discovery that one of the nurses present lives in the house of a doctor who was reputed to be very skilled in overcoming "witches" spells cast on neighbors.

Mrs. Marie Stewart, president of the district, thanked Miss Smith, and also Miss Laura Barker, Miss Mary Becker and Mrs. Gloria Buckley of the dinner committee for the successful dinner meeting. The next meeting will be held June 14 in Kingston.

Opponents Hit Kennedy School Assistance Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans today launched a two-pronged attack against President Kennedy's aid to education program and his government reorganization orders.

Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said GOP senators will try to establish general party lines on these issues in a closed session Tuesday.

While Republicans are divided on the education issue, Bridges said he thinks a majority of them may support a tax-rebate substitute for the administration's $2.55 billion bill which comes up in the Senate Tuesday.

Instead of federal grants and loans for teachers' salaries and school construction over the next three years, Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., and Norris Cotton, R-N.H., have proposed the return of federal tax revenues to the states for education purposes.

Bridges disclosed in an interview that resolutions have been drawn to attempt to reject four reorganization plans sent to Congress by Kennedy. He said he is confident from talks with Democrats that there will be bipartisan support for this rejection effort. Kennedy's four plans cover the Federal Communications Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Trade Commission.

Barclay Heights Youth Wanders to Middletown

A hint of summer Sunday brought out the wanderlust in a 13-year-old Barclay Heights youth, who was reported missing from his home for over eight hours.

The boy's parents told Saugerties Village police the boy went into a wooded area with a canteen of water shortly after dinner. As it began to get dark and the boy had not returned, they reported him missing to police authorities.

All ended well when the boy was discovered at his grandmother's home in Middletown, Orange County, a distance of nearly 70 miles from his home.

Goldfine Admits He Evaded Taxes, Will Face Tests

BOSTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine, Boston industrialist, pleaded guilty today to charges of evading nearly $800,000 in personal and corporate income taxes.

U.S. Dist. Judge George C. Sweeney continued the case and ordered Goldfine to report to a court-appointed psychiatrist to determine his present mental competence.

The sudden plea came after defense and prosecution attorneys were closeted with Judge Sweeney for more than half an hour. When the court finally opened, chief counsel, said that "the defendant has expressed the desire to withdraw pleas heretofore entered and to enter pleas of guilty."

Williams said, however, before the pleas were entered he wanted to ask that an examination be ordered to determine if Goldfine now is competent to make such a plea.

"I'll accept the pleas subject to a psychiatrist ruling to his satisfaction," Judge Sweeney said. Goldfine then in a steady voice pleaded guilty to the two indictments, one charging evasion of $450,961 in personal taxes and the other to $340,784 in taxes on the Strathmore Woolen Corp., one of his firms.

Sgt. John J. Keeley on car patrol received a radio message from Patrolman Jack Washburn at headquarters and responded to the call.

Hollywood News, Views

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A major reason for the film industry's recent ills is the fact that it refused to train new executive talent.

Hollywood in its prime was run by dictators who wanted no threats to their power around them. They are dead or deposed now, and the greatest deterrent to full production, outside of the lack of stars, is the scarcity of creative talent behind the camera.

Two Seeking Answer

Two film makers have done something about it. They are William Perlberg and George Seaton, partners for 24 years in making films like "Miracle on 34th St.," "Country Girl," "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," and the forthcoming "Pleasure of His Company" and "Counterfeit Trail."

For the past eight years, Perlberg-Seaton have allowed graduate students of the UCLA Cinema Arts School to observe all phases of film production.

Sixty students have so far gone through the Perlberg-Seaton schooling. They watch script conferences, listen to art directors, costume designers, production managers.

Perlberg and Seaton keep in touch with their alumni. "Our biggest job is to get studios to use these people and to convince the studios of the need for hiring new talent," said Seaton. "You can see it right here on the Paramount lot. The average age of production managers is 63."

Door Is Shut

"There simply is little way for youngsters to break in nowadays. When I came out from New York in the '30s, I worked as a junior writer for $35 a week. I learned a great deal. Now there is no such category. The writer starts at around $450. At that price, you have got to get results. You can't experiment with new talent."

"Go to any studio union and say you want to start as an apprentice and learn the business. There is no such classification. The union ranks are closed, and the members keep getting older. This business will never revive until we get new blood."

Canadian Police Win

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Canadian police from the other side of the Rainbow Bridge have beaten their American rivals in a tug-of-war for the third time in a row. The 25-man Niagara Falls, Ont., team outweighed by 40 pounds, pulled the Niagara Falls, N.Y., police department boundary on the bridge Saturday.

14 Records Are Broken at 10th Annual Hudson Valley Relays

KHS Relay Team Scores; Barr, Dickson Also Win

BY ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Fourteen records were smashed Saturday as boys from up and down the river took part in the 10th annual Hudson Valley Relays, held at the New Paltz Central school track.

Featured in the extravaganza, held under sunny skies before a huge crowd, was a jump of 11 feet, 10 1/2 inches in the pole vault by Channing Rudd of John Jay High school in Katonah. He missed at 12-2 but he still broke his own record, set last year, by six inches. Rudd also won the broad jump in Class III.

Faustin Barron of Linton, who finished second to Jim Sims of Kingston in the 1960 invitational mile, won the race this time, going the distance in 4 minutes 33 seconds. He missed Sims' record by two inches in winning the race by more than 15 yards. Saunders Matthews, a member of the crack Highland Falls squad, capped the invitation 100-yard dash in the good time of 10.2 seconds. Kingston High school was successful in the class one medley relay. A quartet of Joe Barr, Bill Tomaseski, Richard Cyr and John Kelly covered 1 1/4 miles in the crack time of 4:57.6, missing the meet by only three seconds.

Joe Barr of KHS captured first in the Class one hop-step and jump with a leap of 40 feet, 6 1/2 inches. Another Kingston ace, Bill Dickson, was also successful. He finished in a four way tie for first place in the pole vault with a height of 9 feet, 4 inches.

Despite a week of rain the track was in excellent condition. In fact, the assault on the record books was the biggest in recent years. It was a combination of a good track and some top athletes.

Don Avery 2nd In 25-Lapper

Steve (Rebel) Harris, a 28-year-old veteran of the Southern dirt tracks who has been plying his trade in the north the past 10 years, led the field for the entire 25 laps to win Sunday's feature auto race at picturesque Ontario Speedway Park.

Another capacity crowd luxuriating under warm, clear skies saw Harris breeze home a 25-length winner over runnerup Don Avery of West Shokan, the 1960 points champion who also trailed the first-day winner, Johnny Flach, two weeks ago.

Flach, the South Westerlo veteran kept his "77" in a steady groove in third place for 22 of the first 23 laps, slipping back into fourth on the 20th lap but recovered for a third place finish.

Jim Markle pursued Harris relentlessly for 17 laps, then dropped into third place as Avery successfully challenged him for the runnerup spot. Markle's car developed trouble in the last two laps, however, and he finished in 10th place.

Harris came to Ontario fresh from a second place finish at the powerful Lebanon circuit Saturday night. He received his early experience on tracks in North and South Carolina and Florida and Georgia, but for the past 10 years has been north of the Mason-Dixon line. Last year he won three feature races and also took a couple of 50-lap Madcap feature at Rhinebeck Speedway.

Waterfall Wins Heat
Stretch Van Steenburgh of Saugerties, a current sensation at the Altamont track near Albany, was missing from the Ontario field Sunday, but 20 cars got into the final, with Harris, Markle, Flach and Avery furnishing all the action the patrons could stand for one day.

Heat winners for the day included Skip Waterfall of Stone Ridge, Schubert and Russell. Al Ostrander captured the 10-lap consolation.

In the feature race, Avery kept his No. 16 in fifth place through the first 15 laps, then made his unsuccessful bid to overhaul Harris. He did pass Flach on the 23rd lap and stayed in the runnerup slot as Flach, Anderson and Schubert chased him across the finish line.

Dick Becker of Saugerties gave the spectators a couple of unscheduled thrills in the consolation race. His No. 21 turned over on the home turn but Becker escaped personal injury. A short time later his right front wheel ripped loose from the car and hurtled over the guard rail on the second turn knocking Becker out of action for the day.

The summaries:
First Heat — 10 laps — Skip Waterfall, Stone Ridge; Bill Scheffel, Ruby; Bill Rothburg, Kerhonkson; Bernie Carney, Accord; John Ketchum, Fishkill.

Second Heat — 10 laps — Walt Schubert, Cold Spring; Bill Barney, Oneonta; Bob Brennan, Schenectady; Art De Puy, Cortes; Fred Searing, Oak Hill; Clayton Barringer, Krumville.

BRAVES HOPEFULS—Among the candidates for the Kingston Braves of the New York-New Jersey Baseball League, shown with General Manager Fred Davi Sunday were: Chester Moody, a catcher; Frank Horan, pitcher, and John Giampolo, a shortstop. Horan is a NY-NJ veteran, having pitched for several seasons for the Nyack club. Giampolo is a holdover but Moody is making his first bid for first string catcher. (Freeman Photo).

St. Bonaventure Officials Deny That Basketball Is Out

OLEAN, N.Y. (AP)—St. Bonaventure University officials have angrily denied a newspaper report that the school may drop basketball. The story appeared in Sunday's Niagara Falls Gazette.

"It's ridiculous," said the Rev. Brian Lhota, president of the St. Bonaventure, Sunday. "The university is not dropping basketball. It's as plain as that."

The Bonnies were third-ranked among the nation's collegiate powers last season.

The Gazette said the school was concerned over what the newspaper termed "unsavory conditions" that had developed in college basketball as a result of the recent gambling scandals.

The story said St. Bonaventure officials planned to announce some action this week.

The Bonnies' hopes of repeating as a national contender were dealt a double blow recently when Coach Eddie Donovan left to coach the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association and sophomore star Freddy Crawford was stricken with tuberculosis.

All America senior Tom Stith, who had signed with the Knicks, was hospitalized with the disease a week before Crawford. The two were roommates.

Doctors said Crawford would probably return to school in September but would not play next season. Stith will miss the 1961-62 NBA campaign.

No successor has been named for Donovan.

Happy Hour Beats Hilltop Club, 7-5

Happy Hour survived a three run first inning and went on to defeat Hilltop, 7-5, in a softball exhibition game yesterday.

The losers collected four hits and three runs off Vince Peck in the first inning but were unable to get another hit off the combined pitching of Peck and Bob Lasher from that point on.

Rich Lasher tripled in the sixth frame to spark a five run rally by the winners. Richie Hoffman went well until that inning but John Woods had to finish up.

Carl Fink, Al Keesler Win Feature Races at Rhinebeck

Carl Fink of Troy started the 1961 season at Rhinebeck Speedway just the way he left off last fall, a winner.

Fink fought for his win this time and he never had certain victory in his grasp until the checkered flag fell. Veteran Buddy Glass of Hurley was the first leader, but fell back of Ken Gootermote in the seventh lap. Gootermote then led until the 21st lap when his throttle linkage came loose and Fink took over the lead.

The flying Fink was followed to the checker in turn by Glass, Harry Barzee, Ben Stone, Hoppy Jensen, Barry Tripp, Al Ostrander, Paul Dieking, Terry Zimmerman and Duane Lane.

Keesler Is Winner

The sedan main event was won handily by Al Keesler of Hurley, with Ted Smith and Mike DeGraff trailing in that order. Wild Walt Wasowski of Rhinebeck entertained the crowd as usual by spinning 10 times during the course of the evening as well as landing on his roof during the warmups.

The pit area was jammed with over 880 cars taking part in the program. Two thousand customers viewed the king sized program.

The summaries:
1st Heat—J. Van Leuven, Ben Stone, Cavanaugh.
2nd Heat—Ostrander, Hughes, Brazee.
3rd Heat—Fink, Judson, Gootermote.

4th Heat—Hoyt, Wilbur, Hoban.
5th Heat — Keesler, Elliot, Smith.
1st Semi-Final—Van Leuven, Ostrander, Stone.
2nd Semi-Final — Brazee, Hughes, Gootermote.
Consolation — Campion, Fink, Tripp.

Dover Plains Squad Rolls 3311 Gross to Pace Winkle Pins

Callicoon Five Paces Women's Group with 2820

Rolling on the first squad, a Dovers Plains bowling squad with the improbable name of Randy's Lovers took over first place with a 3311 gross in the men's division of the second annual Rip Van Winkle team handicap tournament which got under way Saturday night at Ferraro's Bowlerama.

The 760-average team rolled 2588 in the wood and had 723 handicap, Joe Farrand, a 153-average man, paced the squad with 202-205-570.

Albert's Bakery of Kerhonkson took over second place with 3303 gross, on 2613 net and 690 handicap.

Sky Way Lanes, a 907 team out of Schenectady, got a 653 blast from Bob Consalvo to take over the net team lead with 2787. Consalvo, with a tournament average of 194, bagged games of 210, 255 and 138 to take the lead in the men's high single and series departments.

First National Bank of Callicoon (763 average) moved into first place with a 2820 gross in the women's division. The Sullivan kieglerettes added 411 handicap to a net 2409 to lead Captain's Table (687 average) out of Poughkeepsie by 17 pins.

Gloria Buddenhagen paced the Callicoon squad with 519 on games of 219, 162 and 138. The high powered City All Stars of Schenectady lived up to the advance billing with a 2720 team net in the women's division on games of 942, 851 and 927.

Veteran Evelyn Crowley led the 212-203-595, as all five Schenectady bowlers went over the 500 mark. Marty Christian anchored with 575. The 595 is high women's triple to date. Lee Scherhorn of Schenectady leads the singles with 222.

The tournament continues next weekend with bowling on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

NC State Stars Will Stand Trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Three North Carolina State College basketball players, including Captain Stan Niewierowski, face trial here June 5 on charges of accepting bribes to shave points or throw games.

Niewierowski was taken into custody Sunday by police in his hometown of Brooklyn, N.Y., and held as a material witness pending arrival of a North Carolina warrant.

The other two, Anton Muehlbauer of Brooklyn and Terry Litchfield of Louisville, Ky., were arrested over the weekend.

Muehlbauer was freed under $3,000 bond posted by a friend, Tom Cain, a basketball fan and Raleigh insurance salesman.

Litchfield was held under house arrest at the college infirmary where he is recovering from a sore throat and fever.

The State Bureau of Investigation (SBI), which disclosed the charges at a news conference Saturday, did not know whether Los Angeles police had arrested a fourth man, Lou Barshak of Brooklyn, identified as the contact man in the alleged gambling conspiracy.

SBI Director Walter Anderson said he understood Barshak is a student at Los Angeles State College, but officials at that college said he had never enrolled.

The four men face maximum sentences of 15 years on each count when they come to trial in Superior Court.

Sanders Colonial Winner

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Doug Sanders is $7,500 richer and sporting a Colonial National Invitational golf title today.

Sanders, a five-tournament winner in his relatively brief professional career, edged Australian Kel Nagle by one shot. Nagle scored the 7,041-yard Colonial course in 67 strokes to climb from a three-way tie for ninth into the runner-up slot. He picked up $3,500 for second place.

Billy Casper, the chunky veteran from Apple Valley, Calif., captured third place with 283 and collected $2,500.

Gene Littler and Arnold Palmer, who also was just a stroke off the pace, fell apart in the final round with miserable 75s. Littler wound up tied with Don Whitte for fourth at 284 and Palmer was all alone in fifth place at 285.

They earned $1,900 and $1,700 respectively.

Tied for seventh at 287 were Doug Ford and Stan Leonard, who won $1,500 each.

Gary Player of South Africa closed with a 68 for 288 and a six-way tie for ninth. He pocketed $1,158.34.

Dick Tiger Set To Fight Casey In New Orleans

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Shut out of the world title picture for at least another six months, Nigeria's Dick Tiger will attempt to take it out on Hank Casey of San Francisco in a battle of middleweight contenders in New Orleans tonight.

The 32-year-old British Empire champion had hoped to get a crack at either Paul Pender or Gene Fullmer after he had scored his third straight knockout victory. That impressive kayo was a sixth round blitz of Spider Webb, onetime leading contender, last April 15.

But Tiger's hopes were blasted when both Pender and Fullmer signed last week for title defenses in July. Pender, recognized as champion in New York, Massachusetts and Europe, will meet Britain's Terry Downes, in London, July 11. Fullmer, the NBA king, will risk his piece of the crown against Cuba's Florentino Fernandez at Ogden, Utah, July 8.

Argentina's Alex Miteff risks his slim title chances in a ten-rounder with Cleveland Williams, of Houston at Houston, Texas, Tuesday night. Miteff is ranked seventh by Ring and ninth by the NBA. Williams is unranked but he hits like a champion.

Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson said recently he plans a title defense in September against one of the top ten contenders but he barred three for this year—Sonny Liston, Eddie Machen and Henry Cooper. So big Alex still can hope although the odds against his getting a title fight must be at least 50 to 1.

Another Argentine, welterweight Jorge Fernandez takes on Teddy Wright of Detroit in a clash of contenders at New York's St. Nicholas arena Saturday night.

Chamber Making Record on Its Member Drive

Over half of the membership renewals have been received by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce by the thirteenth day of the new fiscal year. This sets a new record since the Chamber of Commerce was re-organized in 1945.

Twenty six memberships which become payable at other times of the fiscal year will, when payable, be pro-rated to April 30, 1962. After this date all annual memberships renewals will coincide with the fiscal year which starts on May 1.

The next phase of organization activities of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce will be the completion of the committee structure and personnel. All chairmen have been appointed but the names of committee members should be selected within the next month. In releasing this information today, Albert Kurdt, Chamber manager, also stated that all the officers and committee chairmen would appreciate suggestions or constructive criticisms that the organization can serve the community effectively. Kurt concluded.

Improper Drugs Are Assailed by Upstate Doctor

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP) — Unless drug companies control the number and variations of drugs on the market, chaos will result and patients will suffer, a Cornell University pharmacologist says.

Dr. Walter Modell called the current rate of new drugs hitting the market "alarming and said the future looked "dismal."

Drugs should be introduced only because of a need for them, Modell said. He charged drug companies with often placing drugs on the market to invade a market created by someone else's discovery of a useful drug.

Vigorous drug promotions, he said, then build up pressure for their use.

The Cornell professor cited a report showing that 1 in 20 patients at a large hospital were there to recover from the effects of the "sanctioned and well-intentioned" use of improper drugs.

He said 75 per cent of the 150,000 drugs used today poured onto the market in a 10-year period.

"As the number of new and active drugs increases," Modell said, "and both knowledge and experience with each therefore becomes smaller and proportionately more difficult to obtain, it is a mathematical inevitability that (adverse) drug reactions also will mount."

Modell's observations are contained in the recent issue of "Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics," which he edits.

Local Minister Attends Conclave Of Alliance Group

The Rev. and Mrs. Willard D. Crunkilton, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church of this city, left today for Columbus, Ohio, where they will attend the 64th annual Council of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, in session at the Veteran's Memorial Auditorium, May 17-22.

"The Alliance, a gateway to the world" is the theme for this annual business and devotional meeting of the denomination.

A high point of the council each year is the foreign missionary rally, a parade through the streets of the host city with more than 100 missionaries and their children dressed in the colorful costumes of the lands they have chosen for their missionary endeavors.

The Crunkiltons will attend the special missionary conference held before the actual business sessions begin at the Desher-Hilton Hotel. World conditions will be discussed by Alliance missionary-statesmen, and missionary news direct from the 22 missionary fields of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be submitted.

A special meeting for pastors coming in from all over the country will be held Wednesday afternoon, planned for a greater Sunday school effort. The local pastor was a speaker at the first of the annual sessions, and will attend this one.

Russia Threatens Tests of Weapons Unless U. S. Acts

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet government said today it might have to resume testing nuclear and hydrogen weapons unless the United States and Britain get France to abandon its testing program.

The assertion was contained in a formal statement the Soviet delegate, Semyon K. Tsarapkin, read into the record of the deadlocked nuclear conference at its 305th session.

"The Soviet Union has repeatedly stated that the French tests complicate the reaching of an agreement" on a worldwide suspension of nuclear weapons testing, the statement said. "This may force the Soviet Union to resume testing of nuclear and hydrogen bombs."

Tsarapkin asked U.S. negotiator Arthur H. Dean and Sir Michael Wright of Britain to forward the Soviet statement to their governments.

He repeated charges he made March 21 that the French were in effect conducting tests on behalf of the two Western powers who have observed a moratorium on weapons tests since these talks began more than 2½ years ago.

Dean categorically rejected the Soviet statement. Sir Michael termed it "ludicrous." Both accused the Soviet delegate of raising the matter to cover up Soviet "intransigence" on the crucial issue of how to control a treaty.

Twisters Batter Midwest Sectors, Snow in 2 Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thunderstorms rumbled across areas in the midcontinent today after a rash of tornadoes and damaging wind and rain storms in a half dozen states.

The twisters erupted along a severe thunderstorm belt which stretched from eastern Minnesota through Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas to eastern Louisiana.

No deaths were reported in the storm zone, but nine persons were injured in Illinois and one in Wisconsin. Property damage was extensive.

The storms followed an unseasonable wintry blast of heavy snow in Colorado and Wyoming. Snowfall measured 9 inches in Cheyenne, Wyo., and 5 inches in Laramie, Wyo., and Denver.

More than a dozen tornadoes hit along a 150-mile path from the Mississippi River near Hannibal, Mo., northeastward to near Peoria, in north central Illinois. The tornado winds hammered wide areas in west central and Southern Illinois, damaging many homes and farm buildings.

A series of tornadoes and tornado winds lashed midsections of Wisconsin, wrecking some buildings and knocking down power and communication lines. Only minor damage was reported in a tornado that struck Waseca, in southern Minnesota, but a twister that swept the area of Castor, La., damaged nine houses. Heavy winds buffeted Pocahontas, Stuttgart and Holly Grove, Ark.

The immediate effects of the heavy rains in flooded sections of Southern Illinois and southwestern Indiana were not determined. Although rivers and streams generally were leveling off or beginning to drop, hundreds of persons still were barred from their homes by the floodwaters. National Guardsmen remained on duty in both states.

Tillson firemen answered an alarm Saturday about 7 p. m. at the home of Richard Atkins on Springtown Road, Tillson. Firemen under the direction of Chief Kenneth Gordon and Assistant Chief John Coddington extinguished a fire in a furnace motor.

Considerable damage was caused by smoke. A life of 1½ inch hose and CO2 extinguisher was used to control the fire.

On Sunday, Tillson firemen under the direction of Assistant Chief John Coddington fought a grass and brush fire in the rear of the Tillson Friends Church on Grist Mill Road.

Flames threatened nearby storage tanks containing 20,000 gallons of high octane gasoline.

Burglars Force Office Safe of Ellenville Firm

A small amount of cash was stolen from a register in the Center Electric Co., Inc., Ellenville, some time late Saturday night or Sunday morning but the burglars found nothing in a small steel safe when they cut it open with an acetylene torch.

Chief Abe Rand of the Ellenville Police Department told The Freeman that the store was locked up at 7 p. m. Saturday.

At 9 p. m. one of the Tennenbaum brothers checked the premises and found everything in order.

At 8 a. m. Sunday Norman Tennenbaum entered the store but did not immediately notice anything wrong. About 9 a. m. however, he observed that a small safe had been removed from the office. He called the village police department.

An investigation disclosed that some $30 to $35 had been taken from a cash register in the store.

The safe, about 30 inches high by 24 wide, was found in a workshop in the back of the building. The door of the steel safe had apparently been cut out by an acetylene torch found in the store.

Entrance to the building was gained by removing a small window under a rear platform. Chief Rand said the entire frame was taken out.

The burglar, or burglars, then entered the cellar and mounted a flight of stairs into the main section of the store.

Chief Rand said there was no money in the safe. Valuable papers were scattered about the workshop but none had apparently been removed.

six hours after his car struck the bridge girder, rolled over, throwing him to the pavement. Surveying the mass of twisted metal are (l-r) Trooper James Kaljian of Highland Barracks, a thruway trooper and patrolman T. F. Walsh of New Paltz Police Department.

All three competing factions from Laos rejected British Foreign Secretary Lord Home's proposal that they come to the conference table as observers, not as full negotiating members.

The three groups represent the pro-Western Laotian government, the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels and their allies, Prince Souvanna Phouma's self-styled neutralists.

Phoumi Vongvichit of the Pathet Lao declared his forces were "the masters of the country" and would not be relegated to the subordinate role. He added that any decision the conference made without participation of the Pathet Lao would be invalid.

Won't Accept Plan
The head of Souvanna Phouma's mission asserted, "We would not come as observers in the ordinary sense of the word, that is, as people who can only look on." The Pathet Lao, the Soviet Union, Red China and Souvanna Phouma all contend that he heads the only legal Laotian government.

A royal government spokesman said his group could not accept the plan because the full delegation has not yet arrived in Geneva. He also contended that a cease-fire actually is not in effect in Laos because Pathet Lao artillery is attacking a village held by Meo tribesmen loyal to the royal government.

A life-sized portrait of Justice John T. Loughran, late chief judge of the Court of Appeals of New York State, a gift of Ulster County Bar Association will be unveiled in the Supreme Court room of Ulster County Court House Friday, May 26 at 11 a. m.

Judge Loughran served on the Court of Appeals bench from 1945 until the time of his death, March 31, 1953.

The portrait five by seven feet was commissioned by the local Bar Association and painted by Paul Wesley Arndt of Woodstock, well-known portrait painter.

All Judges Expected
Expected to attend the unveiling are all judges of the Court of Appeals, the Appellate Division of the Third Department, and all Supreme Court judges of the Third Judicial District.

The principal speakers will be Charles S. Desmond, chief judge of the Court of Appeals and Francis Bergan, presiding judge of the Appellate Division, according to Hugh R. Elwyn, president of the local Bar Association.

Before becoming chief judge of the Court of Appeals, Judge Loughran, a native of Kingston, served as an associate judge of that court, as a justice of the Supreme Court, and at one time was a professor of law at Fordham University, New York City.

One of Greatest Judges
His thorough knowledge of the law and his many fine human qualities earned for him the respect and love of all who knew him, Attorney Elwyn said. He is universally recognized in legal and judicial circles as one of the great chief judges of the state, he said.

Judge Loughran was 64 at the time of his death, caused by coronary occlusion. He had reportedly been suffering from a heart ailment for some time.

On April 25, 1946, he was appointed chief judge by Thomas E. Dewey, then governor of New York. He was elected November (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

The funeral will be held from George J. Moylan Funeral Home, Main Street, Rosendale, on Wednesday 9:30 a. m.; thence to St. Peter's Church, Rosendale where at 10 a. m. a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul.

Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery, Rosendale. Friends may call at the funeral home today and Tuesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 10 p. m.

Johnson Told Crash of Red China Could Occur in Year
By SPENCER DAVIS

HONG KONG (AP)—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has received information indicating the Communist regime in China conceivably could collapse in a year to 18 months due to internal stresses.

An authoritative source, reporting this today, said these views came to Johnson from respectable sources and are worthy of consideration.

Johnson arrived here today from Formosa, where he conferred with Chiang Kai-shek.

The estimate of Chinese prospects does not square with available information from most informed sources in Hong Kong. These persons say no flat prediction of an upset in China can be made.

The information given to Johnson was reported to be based on a variety of considerations, principally these:

1. The Chinese Red army was said to be nearing revolt stage due to unhappiness with the role they were required to play under the regime of Mao Tze-tung.

2. Doctors coming out of the mainland are reporting 30 to 40 per cent of the population is in bad shape due to malnutrition. This is not only due to unfavorable weather conditions which have affected food production, but poor management under the commune system. Malnutrition was said to have led to a sharp rise in tuberculosis, liver diseases and a general apathy of the population.

3. Another factor was said to be sharp differences among some of the top Communist officials in the Peiping hierarchy. There are reports of slashing attacks from followers of the inevitability of war doctrine of the pro-Mao group, and the peaceful coexistence doctrine of the pro-Moscow group.

Other responsible authorities here disagree sharply with this thesis. It is pointed out that Communist China harvested 190 million tons of grain last year—short of the goals but a lot of food. The Red army—if no one else—was said to be well fed and well cared for to avert any possible troubles from this direction.

Johnson in a speech at White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., last week declared the next 12-18 months would most likely be a period of maximum danger from Communist China. He did not elaborate on this remark, or give a reason for the time estimate.

Rival Laotians Balk at Plans For Compromise

GENEVA (AP)—The opening of the 14-nation conference on Laos was delayed again today as rival Laotian delegations balked at a big power compromise plan designed to get the talks going.

All three competing factions from Laos rejected British Foreign Secretary Lord Home's proposal that they come to the conference table as observers, not as full negotiating members.

The three groups represent the pro-Western Laotian government, the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels and their allies, Prince Souvanna Phouma's self-styled neutralists.

Phoumi Vongvichit of the Pathet Lao declared his forces were "the masters of the country" and would not be relegated to the subordinate role. He added that any decision the conference made without participation of the Pathet Lao would be invalid.

A royal government spokesman said his group could not accept the plan because the full delegation has not yet arrived in Geneva. Businessmen Will Discuss Hours Tonight
A full attendance of members of the Uptown Businessmen's Association tonight was urged by president Clyde E. Wonderly Jr.

This special meeting of the Uptown group at 7:30 pm in the Stuyvesant-Kingston Hotel was voted by members for the purpose of discussing additional night store hours. There is a possibility that a progress report on off-street parking will be also given.

Since the regular meeting of the Uptown business group last Monday, a special parking committee met with the Parking Committee of the Kingston Common Council and other city officials.

Police Probing Factory Theft, Market Attempt
Theft of women's ware valued at $2,475 from the Sunray Factory Outlet, 83 Smith Avenue, and an apparent attempt to enter the uptown Bull Market, Washington and Hurley Avenues, were under police probe today.

Ten types of women's apparel in various sized lots were reported stolen from Sunray, the largest haul being 138 teenage dresses valued at $725.62. Next highest in value of the loss reported was 100 women's raincoats, valued at $603.58.

Use Upper Window
Entrance was gained through an upper floor window through use of a ladder which had apparently been left in the area, Lt. Lemuel Howard said. The ladder was used to get atop a small structure adjacent to the main building, and from there to a rooftop from which the window was reached. An attempt had been made to break through another window before entrance was finally gained.

The window entered was on the side of the building housing the Prim-Rose Sportsware, and from there entrance was gained to the other plant. It was also indicated that an elevator had been used in removing the merchandise. Nothing was reported missing from the Prim-Rose factory. The lower floor of the building also houses the midtown Bull Market.

Other Thefts
Other garments reported taken from Sunray and values of them were: 42 women's dresses, $375.90, spring coats (26) valued at $494.70, women's dresses (11) valued at $34.89, eight jackets, $35.92, and six girls' topers, valued at $41.94.

Time of the burglary was fixed at between 9:20 p. m. Friday and Saturday morning.

Tip By Phone
A police report at 3:16 a. m. Sunday, said an unidentified man had telephoned police headquarters. (Continued on Page 6, Col. 4)

Greene Nursing Home Burns, 7 Patients Removed
Seven patients in a Kiskatom nursing home operated by Mrs. Helen Mower were removed without incident Saturday afternoon when fire badly damaged the structure. They were taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill, by Catskill Hose Company No. 1, and Catskill Rescue Squad.

Fire which was reported to have started in a chimney badly damaged the nursing home which is located on Route 23-A about five miles west of Catskill on Palenville road.

Spreads From Chimney
Undersheriff Joseph Pavlak of Greene County said the fire originated in the chimney and spread to other sections of house which was badly gutted. There was also considerable water damage.

In addition to the Kiskatom Fire Department, Citizens Hose No. 1, Catskill, and the Palenville departments responded. The seven elderly persons were removed by the Catskill Rescue unit and taken to the Catskill hospital.

County State Aid Allocation Shows Increase to $560,360
Based on the new census figures, Ulster County has been allocated $560,360.15 in per capita state aid in its first quarterly payment due today. This is an increase of $35,616.25 over the same period last year when the 1950 census figures were used.

The total first quarterly payment in per capita state aid for the 1961-62 fiscal year is $100.2 million which includes a $31 million increase over last year, representing population growth.

The 1961 Legislature passed, and Gov. Rockefeller signed, legislation permitting communities to use 1950 or 1960 census figures, whichever were higher. Otherwise, the 1960 figures would have applied.

The 1960 federal census showed that most larger cities of the state had lost population while smaller cities and suburbs had gained, since the 1950 federal census.

Communities that gained were allowed under the 1961 law, to use the newer figures. Those that lost were allowed to use the older, higher ones.

The change will affect this year only. Next year, per capita aid will be allocated on the basis of 1960 census figures for all communities.

The biggest single increase is $32,946 to Nassau County the fastest growing in the state, which will receive a total of $6 million. Suffolk will receive $2,497,936, an increase of $31,362 and Westchester will receive $1,796,434, an increase of $288,470.

The growth of those suburban counties explains in large measure the fact that New York City has lost population and hence will receive no increase in state aid.

That city's share, however, is $35,176,560, more than half the total for the state.

Other large payments will be $6,223,755 to Erie County, an increase of $222,273, and $3,268,153 to Monroe County, which includes Rochester, an increase of $137,611. Onondaga County, which includes Syracuse, will receive $2,358,827, an increase of $100,620.

Cities receive $6.75 for each resident under the per capita aid program. Towns are given $3.50 and villages, $2.

The governments receiving the funds may use them for any, general government purposes. Other state aid is provided for specified purposes, such as education and highways.

Could Have Fateful World Peace Results

(Editor's Note: What results might a meeting between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev produce? What about Kennedy's bargaining position — the issues that might be discussed? A veteran Associated Press diplomatic writer analyzes those points in the following article.)

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The prospective meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev could have fateful results for world peace.

Kennedy will go into the conference, assuming it is arranged, in an apparently weaker bargaining position than he might have wished.

But any weakness is considered by some of the President's closest advisers to be more apparent than real. For they think it more likely than not that Khrushchev sees the recent U.S. setbacks in Cuba and Laos as evidence not of inadequate U.S. power, but of restraint on the use of that power.

Yet there is concern in some responsible quarters here about Khrushchev's extremely confident attitude, at least as he has shown it publicly. And if this attitude of his holds up in his private talks with Kennedy, the result of the meeting could be to increase East-West tensions instead of opening the way for an improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations.

Two Major Themes
Kennedy has not indicated publicly what he would like to talk about with Khrushchev. But it is understood that he almost certainly has two major themes in mind:

1. He would like to persuade the Soviet leader to modify the Soviet Union's position in the deadlocked negotiations at Geneva for a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests under international inspection safeguards.

2. He would like to warn Khrushchev against miscalculating restraints on the use of power by the United States and its allies.

Urban Renewal Hearing to Be Held Thursday
Public hearing on urban renewal the result of which could permit or stay early designation of the city's plans, originally slated to precede Tuesday night's Common Council session, is to be held Thursday night instead, it was learned today.

Postponement of the hearing in the Common Council chamber, city hall, was asked Mayor Edwin F. Radel said, because Raymond & May Associates, the city's planning consultants, were unable to have adequate representation at the proposed Tuesday night hearing. The Thursday (Continued on Page 6, Col. 6)

No Firm Decision Is Reached
Palm Beach, Fla. (AP) — A Kennedy-Khrushchev conference on corrosive cold-war problems has become a definite possibility. The chances that one will be held, and held soon, are rated currently at 3 to 2.

But the grave issues of Laos and a valid ban on nuclear arms tests could turn out to be formidable barriers. In contrast, quick progress toward solutions could do much to assure a conference.

President Kennedy may extend a visit to Europe, which starts May 31, and stay on for his first meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev if things work out as they now appear likely to do. Either Stockholm or Vienna is regarded by the United States as a suitable site for the President and Premier to meet face to face across the conference table.

At the moment, it was learned, a meeting definitely is under consideration but no firm decision has been reached. That may come within a week.

Heartily Endorsed
Prospects that the leaders of the world's two greatest powers may consult produced both hearty endorsements and words of caution from various leaders in Washington.

Here in Palm Beach, Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, bombarded by questions about reports that efforts to arrange a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting were under way, told reporters he could say only, "There are no plans for any such meeting at present." He refused to read any significance into the phrase "at present." But it was there, Kennedy himself, closing out a relaxing five days on beaches and golf courses, was completely silent.

The President is known to be tremendously concerned that in the four months since he took command of government, East-West negotiations for an agreement forbidding nuclear weapons testing have deadlocked instead of making any real progress. These deadlocked negotiations are under way still in Geneva. So are efforts to bring a solution to the Laotian problem out of a 14-nation conference of Communist bloc and anti-Communist countries.

Khrushchev Suggestion
The Soviet premier had suggested previously that he would like to meet Kennedy. He said so soon after Kennedy took office. And it was understood that the present impetus for a conference originated less with Kennedy than with a new tip from Khrushchev to President Lyndon B. Johnson, U.S. ambassador to Moscow, that he wouldn't mind talking to the American President.

The Western allies already may have been soured out by Washington on how they would regard a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting.

Fifty Club Makes U. S. Spaceman an Honor Member
Commander Alan B. Shepard Jr., U. S. Navy, who made the historic May 5 space flight for the nation, through a recently adopted resolution, is a member of Kingston's Fifty Club, Inc., a downtown organization of civic interest, it was revealed today.

The resolution, noted that Commander Shepard "is hereby declared to be a member of the said Fifty Club, Inc., with all of the rank, privileges and courtesies accompanying said membership, and that he is to receive a copy of the resolution along with a badge of membership."

The May 5 event, it noted, "brought untold glory to the United States of America" and it has "increased the worldwide prestige of the nation. The people of the world, it stressed, are now aware of the basic facts of freedom of the press, thought and choice that prevail in the United States.

The resolution was signed by Michael Ward, the club's president, and Seventh Ward Alderman Frank C. Sass, its secretary.

THEY MET BUT FAILED TO AGREE—U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, right, and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko shake hands in Geneva May 13 after their 70-minute conference at the Soviet mission. Both said they could not agree on how Laos should be represented in the international conference on the future of the southeast Asian kingdom. The issue caused postponement of scheduled start of the conference May 12. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Frankfurt)

Po'keepsie Men Released in Bail Pending Hearing

Two town of Poughkeepsie men arrested in policy raids Friday night are out in $5,000 bail for an appearance Thursday and three residents of the city of Poughkeepsie, arrested in similar raids, have had their cases adjourned to May 22.

State and local police Friday night arrested the five in a series of policy raids.

Dutchess County District Attorney Raymond C. Baratta said that if the ring had continued to operate it would have grossed more than $100,000 a year.

The DA said the leaders of the ring were Joseph Tucciarone, 52, a convicted gambler, and Carl Wilson, 33, both of the town of Poughkeepsie.

They were arraigned before Justice of the Peace George Dietz of the town of Poughkeepsie and released in $5,000 bail apiece for a hearing Thursday.

They were arrested late Friday night in an apartment in the town of Poughkeepsie and charged with operating a policy business.

The other three spots were raided later in the city of Poughkeepsie.

Crawford Bradshaw, who operates Brad's Smoke Shop was charged with possession of policy slips.

Operator of Bonnie's Smoke Shop, Main Street, Poughkeepsie, Mrs. Angela C. Bonahue, 47, was charged with being a common gambler.

James Fulton, 60, of Poughkeepsie, was charged with keeping a place for policy games.

Police said the boy tied the rope to an overhanging rock and began letting himself down with it when the rope broke.

Urge More Efforts To Meet Competition

NEW YORK (AP)—State Commerce Commissioner Keith S. McHugh today urged New York communities to increase their efforts to cope with competition of Southern and Western states in the field of new industries and job opportunities.

"We find many of our older manufacturing facilities with a high degree of obsolescence and we find a disturbing number of communities with stubborn and persistent pockets of unemployment," he said in a talk prepared for the Queens Borough Chamber of Commerce.

Held for Grand Jury On Bad Check Charge

Two young men, booked earlier this month for alleged involvement in the forging of a check, waived examination today before Special City Judge Arthur B. Ewig, and were held for grand jury action.

It is charged that John Lee Grant, 24, of 157 Hasbrouck Avenue, and Vernon Eugene Grant, 29, of Lanesville, were involved in the manipulation of a $25 check, which is claimed, was drawn on the Phoenixia Branch of the Kingston Trust Company, and passed at the Empire Wine & Liquor Store, 600 Broadway.

Police charge that John "with intent to defraud," had made out the check to Vernon, and it was signed with the name of another as maker.

The arrests resulted of an investigation by Lt. Lemuel Howland and detectives Albert Hutton and Leonard Ellsworth.

Woodstock Home Damaged by Fire

Fire which is believed to have started from an electric heater in an upstairs bedroom caused extensive damage to the upper section of a three-story frame dwelling in the village of Woodstock late Saturday morning.

No estimate of damage to the home located near the American Legion building at the head of Neher street in the heart of the village, was immediately available.

Chief George Haythorn said the blaze apparently started in an electric heater in a second-floor room occupied by an unidentified lodger.

The home is owned by Rodney and Grace Lethbridge, it was reported. An antique shop is located on the first floor. Fire damage was confined to the upper stories. It was reported that some water damage resulted on the first floor.

Chief Haythorn said the fire started about 10 a. m. Saturday and that when he reached the scene flames were shooting through the roof.

The third floor, which is usually rented out during the summer, was unoccupied at the time.

The chief said the fire had a good start when equipment from Woodstock Companies 1 and 2 reached the scene. The home is located on a low hill about a quarter of a mile from the town hall.

Chief Haythorn said the inside of the building on the second and third floors was badly charred.

Hose was strung from hydrants in the vicinity and six streams of water were played on the fire—two of them two-and-a-half-inch lines, the other four one-and-a-half-inch lines.

Dutchess Youth Jailed For Traffic Violations

William Melvin Sherman, 18, of Pine Plains, who appeared before Saugerties Village Police Justice G. Thomas Reu Jr. Sunday evening, was sentenced to 75 days in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $150 fine, for several traffic violations.

Village Patrolman Donald Sullivan issued summonses to Sherman for operating an unregistered motor vehicle, (second offense) for which the fine was $100 or 50 days in jail, and for driving without insurance, a fine of $50 or 25 days in jail. His operators license was also revoked.

Patrolman Sullivan stopped a 1950 sedan on Ulster Avenue in the village with Sherman and another at 5:45 p. m. Sunday. Sullivan said the Connecticut license plate 277-735 with a Sept. 1962 tab was not assigned to the car. Sherman was driving. Sherman told Sullivan a friend found the plate.

Police impounded the plate and the car was taken to a local garage for storage.

Grand Jury Will Probe Deaths of 2 Fire Victims

A verdict in the death of two small children who died on May 2 as a result of a fire at the Merchant home, 51 Chapel street, is still being withheld by Coroner Arthur C. Chipp pending a grand jury investigation.

Leon Merchant, 7-months old, and William Henry Merchant, age 19-months, children of Mrs. Mulvina Merchant, died as a result of a fire which damaged the home on the afternoon of May 2. The children were alone in the home with their five-year old sister, Francine Merchant, when fire broke out. The blaze apparently originated from a kerosene heater. The mother was absent from the house at the time.

Child Goes For Help

Francine Merchant ran to the apartment of Alvina Postell around the corner in the same building and gave the alarm. William Miller, Crasmoor, passing in his car also saw the smoke and alerted firemen.

Leon was in a crib and William Henry was in an adjoining bedroom in a carriage. At the time it was stated the children appeared to have suffocated from the lack of oxygen after the fire started.

Coroner Chipp withheld a verdict pending an investigation by troopers and Chief Abe Rand of the Ellenville police department. Later it was reported the matter would be sent to the grand jury for further investigation.

Cooper Services Slated Tomorrow As World Mourns

A 1951 GMC truck was reportedly forced off Route 209 in the hamlet of Napanoch Saturday night and rolled down a 50-foot embankment, coming to rest on its roof and catching fire.

William Ketterer, 53, of Ulster Heights, owner and operator of the vehicle, was admitted to the Veteran's Memorial Hospital, Ellenville, with back injuries, it was reported by Ellenville state police.

Ketterer told Troopers Edward Whalen and Frank Hutton that he was proceeding in a southerly direction when an approaching car forced him off the right side of the highway. The mishap occurred on a left curve, he said. Time of the accident was 9:30 p. m.

Ketterer was able to crawl from the vehicle. A few moments later the truck broke into flames. It was described as a total loss.

Castro Promises Study For 15,000 Peasants

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro told a Cuban Mothers Day rally that before the end of the month 15,000 peasant girls will be studying in Havana.

Castro spoke at ceremonies closing the celebration in Havana's mammoth Sports Palace where less than three weeks ago he banqued prisoners of the April 17 invasion.

Castro's audience was said to include 8,000 peasant girls already studying homemaking and typing in the capital as well as their mothers who were brought to the city for the celebration.

Castro said the girls will be expected to teach their newly acquired skills "for at least a year" after they return to their homes. "Each girl," he said, "should teach at least 10 other girls and mothers." He said the government would provide them with sewing machines and typewriters.

Mob Wrecks Bus In Sunday Riot At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A bus was destroyed by a firebomb and several members of a racial-mixed group of "freedom riders" were brutally beaten as they sought to bring their test of color barriers in bus stations into Alabama.

Members, however, vowed to-day to continue their swing which started in Washington 11 days ago.

All told, 13 persons were taken to hospitals Sunday—12 for smoke inhalation suffered when some one in a crowd of angry white men threw a fire bomb into a stalled bus outside Anniston, and one for head cuts suffered at the hands of white men using pipes for clubs at a Birmingham bus station.

Racial Disputes

Two other persons required medical attention. None was hurt critically.

No arrests were made in Anniston or Birmingham.

The "freedom riders" — eight white persons and eight Negroes — are members of the Congress of Racial Equality. They are riding regularly scheduled buses through the South to test racial segregation.

This was their first encounter with mass violence.

The group divided in Atlanta for the trip through Alabama, nine taking a Greyhound bus and seven boarding a Trailways bus, all headed for Birmingham.

Both buses ran into trouble at Anniston, about 50 miles from the Georgia line.

When the Greyhound bus arrived there, the bus station was closed and an angry crowd of about 200 white persons milled around.

Members of the crowd smashed some bus windows with bars and lengths of pipe.

Highway Patrol Called

The driver headed for Birmingham, but six miles outside Anniston the bus had a flat tire. A crowd of white men who had followed in cars sought to board it.

They were blocked by Alabama state investigator, E. M. Cowling, who had ridden the bus from Atlanta on a tip.

A fire bomb—believed to have been a soft drink bottle containing gasoline—was thrown through a window of the bus.

Highway patrolmen, summoned by a passing motorist, fired pistols into the air to disperse the crowd. The passengers got off before the bus was destroyed by flames.

The Trailways bus left Atlanta about an hour after the Greyhound bus. Dr. Walter Bergman, 61, a former Michigan State University professor and a member of the CORE group, said about eight or ten white men had boarded the bus in Atlanta.

He said they beat several members of the group, including himself, at Anniston. When the bus reached Birmingham, 60 miles west of Anniston, a crowd of white men was waiting.

Two members of the CORE group, a Negro and a white man, were beaten when they headed for the white waiting room.

Eisenhower to Get Medal at Point

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower flies to West Point, N.Y., today to attend a dinner in his honor and receive a special award from the U. S. Military Academy.

Eisenhower was scheduled to leave on an Army C-54 aircraft from the Thomasville Airport at 2 p.m., only a few miles from his Gettysburg farm home.

The former President will be the first West Point graduate to receive the Sylvanus Thayer Award, given annually to an outstanding citizen who exemplifies the West Point ideals of "duty, honor, country."

UP FROM THE DEEP—For 333 years this warship rested on the bottom of Stockholm harbor. Salvagers raised her and the ship will be conserved as a floating museum. The vessel was the Wasa, King Gustavus Adolphus' flagship, which sank on her maiden voyage in 1628 with 500 aboard.

Thinks Moon Trip Long Time Off

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A leading Austrian physicist says he believes a landing on the moon by human beings will not be possible within the next decade.

Prof. Hans Thirring of Vienna University said the recent space trips by a Soviet and an American prove that a voyage to the moon will eventually be possible, but that the actual journey and safe return to earth is still a long time off.

Killers Sought In Prison Break Ruled Dangerous

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A manhunt was on today for two accused killers who shot their way to freedom by killing the warden of Middlesex County jail Sunday.

Police described the pair as armed and dangerous. Officers were told to shoot to kill if necessary.

The fugitives were identified as Edgar W. Cook, 48, Brookline, and Norman Porter, 21, Woburn.

The victim was David S. Robinson, 33, head of the jail nearly 10 years. Robinson accepted Sunday duty so his deputies could have Mother's Day off.

A brother, Roger Robinson, is an FBI agent assigned to the New York office.

Cook was to have gone on trial today in Middlesex County Superior Court for murder in the killing of a Cambridge policeman last Sept. 3. Patrolman Lawrence W. Gorman, 35, father of three, was shot down when he surprised two men attempting to break into a restaurant.

Porter also was awaiting trial on a murder charge. He was accused of killing John Fagott, 22, of Lynn, a clerk, during an attempted robbery of a clothing store 10 miles north of Boston, last Sept. 29.

The FBI entered the manhunt Sunday night when the fugitives were charged with the federal crime of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Jail officials said Porter had been conferring with a psychiatrist and was being escorted back to his cell when he suddenly produced a gun and backed guard Maurice Maher down a corridor to a room where Cook was talking with a lawyer appointed for him by the court.

Porter waved inside the door and Cook joined him, first warning the lawyer to stay where he was.

At that point Robinson appeared, the officers said, telling Porter:

"What's going on? Drop it. You're in enough trouble."

"Shoot him! Let's get out of here," Cook commanded Porter, according to Maher's account.

When the younger man hesitated, Maher said Cook grabbed the gun as Robinson lunged. One shot behind the ear killed him.

Pope Will Issue Key Document on Social Problems

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII will issue a major encyclical soon giving the Roman Catholic Church's position on modern social problems.

The pontiff told an assembly of 100,000 workers from Italy and some 60 other nations Sunday that his document will outline "a magnificent program of Christian life and apostolic social activity."

The new encyclical will mark the 70th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's famous encyclical "Rerum Novarum" (Of New Things). That papal letter of 1891 stated the Catholic position on labor, wealth and social justice. Along with "Quadragesimo Anno" (Forty Years Later), it is still a basic document of the church's teaching in the social field.

Pope John said his encyclical would supplement Pope Leo's and would deal with "the new, grave and at times perilous problems of our epoch."

Publication of the encyclical had been expected today, the anniversary of "Rerum Novarum."

But the Pope said it would be delayed several weeks so the Catholic hierarchy abroad could receive the original Latin text simultaneously.

Pope John described briefly the problems to be treated in his encyclical—"above all, and precisely, those concerning relations between private enterprise and the intervention of public powers in the economic field."

Brands Eichmann As Main Leader In Nazi Program

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP) — An American judge testified today that Hermann Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop told him Adolf Eichmann was a main cog in the Nazi program to exterminate Europe's Jews.

Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno, of Pittsburgh, told the Eichmann trial court the defendant even carried his program into the allied prisoner of war camps.

Musmanno testified on the basis of information he collected as a judge at the Nuremberg war crimes trials and as an interrogator for the U. S. Navy during the first Nuremberg trial in 1945-1946.

Reporting on his interrogation of top Nazi officials after their arrest, Musmanno told the court:

"Goering said he was not aware that the program of Jewish extermination had reached these reported proportions. The persons most responsible were Hitler, Bormann, Goebbels, Heydrich and Eichmann."

Asked if anyone else mentioned Eichmann, the judge replied:

"Yes, Ribbentrop said he resented very much Eichmann's interference in his ministry of foreign affairs. He said also he was very sorry that Hitler had put so much authority into Eichmann's hands."

Former Gestapo chief Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Musmanno continued, "said the persons who ran the Jewish extermination program were Hitler, Bormann, Himmler, Kaltenbrunner, Heydrich and Eichmann."

Musmanno said Hans Frank, Nazi governor general of Poland, "decided to wage in blood no longer and complained to Himmler. The judge said Frank was referred to Eichmann."

Johnson Pledges China Assurance And New Support

By SPENCER DAVIS

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson today gave Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek a new pledge of U. S. support and economic aid and assurance that the Kennedy administration has no intention of recognizing Red China.

Johnson and his party flew on to Hong Kong for a 24-hour rest soon after the vice president, on behalf of President Kennedy, assured President Chiang's Nationalist Chinese that the United States stands by them, beside them and behind them today, tomorrow and every day to come.

Chiang at Parley

Chiang, who almost never holds a news conference, joined Johnson for a conference for the news men in the vice president's party and told them he said Johnson had agreed on a joint statement to be issued tonight containing five assurances from Kennedy.

1. A pledge of continued U. S. support for the Nationalists.

2. The United States has no intention of recognizing the Peking regime.

3. The United States will continue to oppose Red China's bid for a seat in the United Nations.

4. The United States will abide by its mutual defense treaty commitments with the Nationalists.

Steps Up Assistance

5. America will step up its assistance to Nationalist China's accelerated economic development program.

"I am certain this news of the definite stand of the United States will have a great effect in boosting morale here and in building up the hopes of the Chinese people on the mainland for eventual deliverance," Chiang said, speaking through an interpreter.

Chiang 73, said there has been some "wavering and apprehension" of where the United States stands in its policy toward Asia. But he added Kennedy, in sending Johnson on his current mission, "made one of the wisest and most timely decisions of his administration."

Johnson, who is making a six-nation fence-mending tour of Southeast Asia, will push on to Bangkok Tuesday.

Addresses Students

After leaving Chiang, Johnson drove to Taipei's City Hall to address more than 2,000 students. A crowd of 25,000 listened by loudspeaker outside.

Johnson told the students "Communists say to the youth of Asia and the world that young people should go into the streets as mobs destroying order, understanding peace, and attacking free institutions."

"But free men," he said, "offer the youth of Asia a far different call. It is a call to go into the fields and help the farmer improve his lot, go among the sick and tend the needs of babies and the aged, go among children and teach."

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Della Mark, born on Mother's Day in 1928, it was May 13 that year, gave herself her own present Sunday: Mother's Day twins.

A boy, 5 pounds, 3 ounces, and a girl, 4 pounds, 3 ounces, are reared four weeks earlier than expected. Mrs. Mark's husband is a Denver sales executive.

ONE UP FOR OUR WAY

If you could follow our astronauts as they make ready for the next manned space flight, you might be struck by the fact they all carry bulging brief cases on their daily rounds.

It's a pretty mundane piece of equipment for a spaceman. But these men are a far cry from the happy-go-lucky "flyboys" we associated with bold missions in times past.

They are space technicians in their own right, who constantly think and talk the language of the specialists. They are tightly woven into a complex team whose heroes actually are legion, but seem destined mostly to go unsung.

Possibly the biggest lesson we can learn from these men—Alan Shepard and his six colleagues, the Project Mercury leaders, and others—is their utter dedication to precision.

We live in a time when charges are laid upon America that it is lax, soft of muscle, fuzzy in its thinking, laggard in science and education generally. By their mere existence, the precise men of Project Mercury prove that these charges cannot be more than partly true.

They operate in a field where even tiny error can yield anything from total failure to miles of miscalculation. They have erred, many times, but they always seek new precision.

Shepard, standing in for all the heroes as the first one to be thrust into space, personified this characteristic so vital to the American people in their quest along the frontiers of science and technology.

His personal story of the successful Freedom 7 flight will surely stand as a model of precise thought and statement.

But our unfolding spaceman program is showing us more than this. It is revealing, in the person of Shepard and the others, men of poise, of rounded, balanced personality, of mental breadth and depth, of humor and human sensibility.

We all know the astronauts were chosen for a veritable cluster of sturdy traits, and are "the cream of the crop." Nevertheless we welcome seeing that the cream is so rich.

In an era of bitter struggle with alien forces, we dare not blandly assume we have enough of such men. Yet we can believe we are far from lost when we have men of this caliber laboring in the forefront of our crucial explorations.

Alan Shepard rightly assigns credit for our stirring spaceman success to all the Project Mercury men. Without smugness, we may also mark up a good score for the free and open society which produced these men.

In these critical days, there's no room for pork barrel pressures, says Defense Secretary McNamara. This makes sense to everyone but the pressure groups.

TALKING SATELLITES

While strenuous efforts are being made to keep the international use of space free from military entanglements, the use of space satellites as communication media threatens to blow up a storm on the home front. Satellites will soon be used to transmit television, telephone and other messages to any place in the world from any other station on the ground. But as with some other breakthroughs (atomic energy for one), the question arises: Who shall develop these revolutionary devices?

And though the federal government has, as with atomic energy, spent all the billions used in space research it seems, for reasons presently not clear, to be abdicating any interest in communications development. This interest has been assigned to the giant communications companies, now quarreling among themselves over who's in and who's out.

American Telephone and Telegraph and International Telephone and Telegraph, which controls most ground communication systems through public charter, would

'These Days'

THE MARXIST EMPIRE

For years, those who have studied Marxism and its Leninist development in Russia, have been calling attention to the fact that nothing less than the conquest of the entire Earth would satisfy the Marxist principle. This has been as clear as day since 1847. It is referred to in Communist literature as the inevitable historic clash between a new dynamic civilization and a decaying civilization which has served its purpose and is no longer needed.

Those who are unwilling to learn have asked those who for 40 years now have been warning against the menace, to refrain from exaggeration. In 1917, when the Russian Revolution occurred, there were a few who recognized the peril of the Bolshevik advance, but to most they were a fanatical band of incompetents, who would shortly fail. How incorrect this judgment was is evident today from the single fact that Soviet Russia is successfully building an enormous and incongruous empire and that only the United States has the power, if not the ability, to withstand the strength of the Soviet Universal State.

Soviet Russia is the first European country since 1861 to challenge the authority of the United States in the Western Hemisphere. The last effort was that of Napoleon III to put and keep Maximilian of Austria on the throne of Mexico. The United States could do nothing about this because it was engaged in the War Between the States, but as soon as that war was over, the Monroe Doctrine was re-asserted, the Mexican rebel, Juarez, was given adequate support, Maximilian was dethroned and that was the end of a European effort to place itself in an imperial position in the Western Hemisphere.

What has happened in 1961? Soviet Russia has established a Marxist fortress in Cuba, controlled by an obvious paranoid Castro, who was actually put into power by our own State Department despite the available evidence that Fidel, his brother, Raul, and many of their associates were known to have had Communist affiliation. But Cuba is not alone, British Guiana, Venezuela, Ecuador, Panama, and possibly Brazil are being ripe for Communist revolutions, and it is in the face of such conditions that the State Department involves this country in a quarrel with the Dominican Republic which could be needed in our defense at any moment. More mistakes of policy have been made during the past 30 years than seems possible.

Even Canada, with which we have had cordial relations since the War of 1812, has been discovering our weaknesses and has become tolerant of anti-American propaganda. In fact, Canada is strengthening Cuba by trading with Cuba, there being no visible guarantee that some of the goods sent is not of American origin. Canada is also trading with Red China in opposition to our policy and interest. The relations between the United States and Canada should have been such that the two countries stand together, at least, on the Cuban issue.

The question arises as to what we shall accomplish with the Organization of American States, OAS is a substitute for the Monroe Doctrine. It places upon the Latin American nations the responsibilities which formerly the United States assumed. Among these is the obligation to keep Europe and Asia out of the American Hemisphere. The question that arises now is whether Soviet Russia is establishing Cuba as part of a colonial empire or a satellite or a segment of the Soviet Universal State. And must the United States accept this violation of the Monroe Doctrine?

The assumption that Cuba is today governed by Fidel Castro, as a dictator, is nonsense. Cuba is governed as East Germany is, as Hungary is; as all so-called People's Republics are, from the Kremlin. The country is full of Chinese Communists and Czechoslovakian Communists who are the effective rulers of the land. This is the technique that Soviet Russia has employed in every country that it has conquered. The so-called People's Republics are socialist states, in transition, supervised by the Kremlin until they become Soviet republics.

Whether the OAS is capable of meeting such a situation is questionable. The OAS has thus far shown an inability to live up to the Caracas Agreement because those who govern the Latin American states are afraid of student mobs and similar mass uprisings and therefore, while supporting the United States in principle, dare do nothing about such support.

One of the minor diversions of a medical columnist is provided by the anguished cries of dissenters. "Are you trying to say a draft cannot start a cold ageing?" inquires an indignant "draft dodger."

Assuming that my answer is in the affirmative, the lady proceeds to ask, "Are you really fool enough not to recognize such sicknesses are started, not because of the increased number of germs present or introduced, but rather because a cold house, improper clothing, or sitting in an annoying draft has purely and simply cut down the person's resistance?"

My answer, dear lady, is, "Yes, I'm fool enough."

A lecturer on "Natural Foods," just returned from a "most enlightening tour of the greatest health centers of Europe," asserts "You need help, Dr. Hyman. And you need help, bad." Go man, you need this kind of lectures very bad. I know it will help you. Let us be honest for once. I am for the well fare of all the People."

I don't deny I can use all the help I can get. Perhaps I can show my appreciation by offering a few lessons in basic English.

An American expatriate, now living south of the border to escape from "political shenanigans, dishonesty and greed," is of the opinion "that it's pitiful and you don't know more about the Hoxsey Clinic and the wonderful sensible cure they have for Cancer. And she goes on to say that "the U. S. Government is stupid and unprincipled" for declaring the Hoxsey treatment a "fraud."

Well anyway, I'm in good company this time. "It is seldom I bother to comment on a columnist who is so far out in left field," writes a defender of Yoga. "If you are not aware that purified air in the lungs is beneficial to a good complexion as well as to other physical well-being, I'd say you've missed the boat on a lot of important theory. Also, you failed to mention that the headstand beneficially affects the pituitary, pineal, thyroid and parathyroids glands."

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

If for any reason it may seem to you that foreign policy operations of the Kennedy administration have been a little uncertain, the extent to which the Department of State has been shook up should be taken into consideration.

This is a new team with a lot of big ideas it hasn't quite figured how to carry out. There has been a wholesale house-cleaning of the three top levels of command in all divisions of the department. Nearly every vestige of the Eisenhower-Dulles-Herter team has been eliminated.

ON TOP OF THIS, a new superstructure has been set up in the White House under Professors McGeorge Bundy, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and Walt Whitman Rostow—who have had no experience in practical diplomacy—as special assistants to the President for foreign affairs. The effect of this has been to make the President the real top man on foreign policy and he runs the show, taking full responsibility.

The area divisions of the Department of State which are supposed to be staffed by experts on the 100-odd countries around the world have been downgraded. In the Cuban operations, the lower echelons didn't know what was going on.

To add to this confusion a complete shake-up of the diplomatic corps line-up is apparently under way. Old advisers are being sent back to the field and new talent brought in, some of it with little or no experience in foreign policy making.

There are only five holdovers

in the top 25 policy-making jobs in the department. They include Assistant Secretary for European Affairs Foy D. Kohler, who may soon be named ambassador to Poland; Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs Edwin M. Martin; Special Assistant on Russian Affairs Charles E. Bohlen; Special Assistant for East-West Cultural Exchange William S. B. Lacy, and Special Assistant for Scientific Affairs Philip J. Farley.

There is no assistant secretary for Latin-American affairs since Thomas B. Mann was made ambassador to Mexico. His former work is being supervised by Adolph A. Berle, who has the title of "Special Assistant to the Secretary as head of a Task Force." The Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs is still under Harris H. Huston as acting administrator, nobody having been found yet for the top job.

"SKID ROW" is the undiplomatic name which foreign service officers have given to the list of career ministers waiting for reassignment by the Kennedy administration.

The United States now maintains 94 embassies, four legations in Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Yemen, six consular offices in the little states like Liechtenstein, Kuwait, Monaco, Muscat and Oman, San Marino and Arab Palestine.

As of May 1, President Kennedy had nominated 57 ambassadors, nearly all of whom have been confirmed by the Senate. Many of these went to the more important capitals, which naturally got first attention. There are 41 ambassadors still serving at their posts who were appointed by former President Eisenhower. Some of them, like Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow, will be kept where they are. But many of them are expecting reassignment in the near future.

There are vacancies in Cuba, Dominican Republic, Hungary, New Zealand and Switzerland. President Kennedy's nomination of his friend Earl E. T. Smith, former ambassador to Cuba, was withdrawn when it met Senate opposition. This is the President's only diplomatic appointment setback thus far.

OF THE FIRST 57 ambassadorial appointments by the President, 22 have been political. This is a 40 per cent ratio, which is pretty high. But it is not expected this percentage will be maintained for the full diplomatic list. The Eisenhower average varied between 25 and 33 per cent.

Among the obvious political appointments have been Averell Harriman as roving ambassador, Adlai Stevenson as ambassador to the U.N., J. Kenneth Galbraith as the successor to India, David K. E. Bruce to London, James M. Gavin to France, Anthony J. Drexel Biddle to Spain, William McCormick Blair to Denmark, John S. Rice to Netherlands, and Angus Biddle Duke as chief of protocol.

The two most impossible jobs in the department, advisor on disarmament and ambassador to the nuclear test ban negotiations in Geneva, have been given to Republicans—John J. McCloy and Arthur H. Dean of New York.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

In April, 1942, I received a letter from an American soldier, a brigadier, who was to die in battle in France and later receive the Congressional Medal of Honor. The letter contained the germ of the idea which animates the John Birch Society and many individual Americans who shrink from joining the society.

They shrink lest they find themselves associated under a noble banner with individuals who can't express their purposes without footfalls that expose them to charges of Fascism.

The letter was handwritten on a letterhead of "Headquarters, First Division," one of the great fighting forces in the history of war. The emblem contains a bold numeral "1" within a wreath.

The letter said:

"Dear Peg:
"I'm down here at (Camp Blanding) waiting for the word to go. I wish I could see you some time but fear there'll be no chance of your getting down there is no chance of my getting up unless we're taking off. I want to congratulate you on the splendid work you are doing against corruption in the unions. What you say is true. It is hurting labor badly.
"Might it not be worth-while to take a whirl at the people who were furiously belligerent before we declared war but have neither signed up nor have their children? I could name half a dozen of your acquaintance. Also just look into the nests occupied by some of them who have nominally joined. It is bad business and means trouble later. Also it hurts the strength of effort, for it tends to uncock some who have (joined up) and turn them against elements in our country rather than wholeheartedly against the Axis powers."

"We have got to concentrate on just one objective — beating Germany and Japan. Or it will be just too bad."

"Theodore Roosevelt." As in World War I when Franklin Roosevelt flagrantly ducked the draft to the scorn of Ted Roosevelt's father, there was a large element of vicarious warriors in New York and Washington who berated and badgered loyal Americans who believed we had no legitimate business to fight the Germans. The Germans were fighting our enemy, Soviet Russia, and Russia's enmity obviously was permanent. Soviet Russia has now

Lawyer Says Castro Could Be Tried Like Eichmann

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, May 14 — Fidel Castro and many of his associates some day may be tried for international crimes just as Adolf Eichmann is being tried today in Israel.

Prominent lawyers familiar with the proceedings in which war criminals were tried and punished after World War 2 say that Castro's crimes can be dealt with in the same manner as in the Nuremberg or Tokyo trials.

This view is held, for instance, by Dr. Brendan F. Brown, professor of law at Loyola University School of Law in New Orleans and formerly dean of Catholic University Law School here.

Prof. Brown told this correspondent that, while "psychologically" it would have been better for Eichmann to have been tried by an international tribunal rather than by one country, there is no question in his mind of the lawful right to try Eichmann for international crimes.

Could Be Arrested

In the event that Fidel Castro is forced some day to flee Cuba, he could be arrested and brought before an international tribunal along with any civilians as well as military men connected with his regime who had any part in the mass killings. Many of the victims were shot to death by firing squads as a result of hearsay evidence and without being given the rights of judicial process.

The important point is that a claim of sovereign jurisdiction does not immunize any government official from punishment for crimes he may commit against international society. This is stressed in a book written a few years ago by Prof. Brown in collaboration with the late Joseph B. Keenan, who was Assistant Attorney General of United States and served as chief of counsel in behalf of the United States in the Tokyo war crimes trial.

International Crimes

It is made clear in the Keenan-Brown book that international crimes are committed in time of peace as well as war. The authors, after referring to the Hague Convention of 1907, declared:

"This convention prohibited acts committed against a background of war, of such a nature as to lead national society to punish them, if they had been performed in peacetime, and if they had been within the jurisdiction of a competently functioning civil authority....

"Certain other features characterize crimes against humanity. They are inhumanities which result from policy decisions made on the highest plane of civil or military authority. They are the effects of a definitely criminal state policy. They are not the isolated and casual atrocities and inhumanities which are perpetrated by soldiers in the heat of battle....

Blame Leaders

"But crimes against humanity would be impossible without the active direction, or acquiescence, of leaders in control of the originating sources of supreme power in a state and in a position to co-ordinate that power over a wide area of operation so as to produce simultaneous patterns of the wholesale infraction of the laws of humanity in widely separated localities and under widely differing circumstances and conditions....

"The defendants (in the Tokyo trials) did not personally commit crimes against humanity but they were responsible for frequent and habitual commission of such crimes insofar as they ordered, permitted, or agreed to them, or made no effort to prevent or stop them....

"The society of nations and of men in international relationships has claimed and exercised the rightful power and authority to hold individuals accountable for violations of law which complements, controls and regulates international society, and to mete out appropriate punishment for these infractions, even the death penalty....

"The right which international society has claimed and exercised in trying and punishing individuals for breaches of the criminal law of the world community is sustained by an analysis of historical data."

Warning to Cubans

Thus the Tokyo and Nuremberg trials serve as a warning to individuals in Cuba that they will not escape punishment by claiming, as Eichmann does, that criminal acts were ordered by someone higher up in the government. Indeed, the text of Article 6 of the charter of the international tribunal which tried the Japanese militarists says:

"Nothing in the official position, at any time, of an accused, nor the fact that an accused acted pursuant to order of his government, or of a superior, shall, of itself, be sufficient to free such accused from responsibility for any crime with which he is charged, but such circumstances may be considered in mitigation of punishment, if the tribunal determines that justice so requires."

If the message of the Tokyo and Nuremberg cases goes unheeded, surely there is but very little hope for the beginning of a new age among men in their international relationships." (Reproduction rights reserved)

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

I have heard the word "cosmo-line" often mentioned as that greasy material found on metal items as a preservative. It seems this cosmo-line is thickly put on various metal items as a rust preventative. World War veterans spent hours removing it from rifles. It is far from a new item.

Mrs. Dominic La Torre of Post Street a neighbor of mine gave me an interesting little booklet put out by the Houghton Line. It is called "Not a Yes Magazine." This one is dated April 1961. On page 15, in the "Let's in the Classroom" column, they tell us that cosmo-line was a registered trademark item back in 1881. It was then made in Philadelphia, Pa. and sold as a medical petroleum, with "emollient and healing properties."

It was only towards the end of the book that they mention it as a protection against rust, particularly for surgical instruments. This is the kind of cosmo-line found after they gave up the pharmaceutical business in the early 80's. The soldiers know the rest. I wonder if cosmo-line was used in both World War I and II. I must ask some of the World War I veterans.

This year of 1961 being the 100th Anniversary of the Civil War, I want to see as much of the material of "after as I can find." Mrs. Van Dyke Bastedo of 113 Emerson Street, this city had loaned an interesting material from which I have been quoting from time to time. According to the first annual report of the Kingston Board of Education, to the inhabitants of the Kingston School District, dated 1864 everything was in order during the war years.

In the report, C. R. Abbott, superintendent wrote in part: "My connection with the Kingston schools commenced November 1, 1863. I have been constantly in the schools, except when the duties of secretary of the office has been open on the afternoon of every Tuesday and Friday and all day on Saturday, also the evenings of the above named days until the middle of April.

In addition to my own observation by being daily in the schools, the plan of organization enables me to collect very full and correct information in regard to the condition and progress of each class. Assistant teachers report to the superintendent every Friday evening."

On teacher's meetings: All the teachers meet every month. In these meetings suggestions in regard to methods of teaching different subjects, hints on the management of classes, and directions for keeping school records are given. In addition to the regular monthly meetings, a series of meetings has been held by the teachers of the primary classes, in which each, in a short lecture, displayed her method of teaching her class some subject which had been previously assigned. After each lecture the subject was discussed, and the remarks of the lecturer were criticized by teachers and superintendent. This exercise is thought to be very valuable for each teacher, in preparing her lecture, is obliged to arrange her thoughts on the subject systematically. This was published in book form in 1864, during the Civil War years, by Kingston Board of Education.

"Who are you broker than?"

Stratton Urges Boycotting of Rocky's Dinner

CAMILLUS, N.Y. (AP)—Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, mentioned prominently as Gov. Rockefeller's Democratic opponent in next year's gubernatorial race, is urging a boycott of Rockefeller's dinner for New York congressmen.

Stratton of Schenectady, says the congressmen should stay away from the dinner unless Rockefeller agrees to discuss reapportionment of congressional districts.

Stratton accused the Republican governor of "playing the cheapest kind of backroom politics with what is probably the single most important issue currently facing the people of New York State."

Rockefeller has rejected Stratton's request for a discussion of reapportionment at the May 24 dinner on the ground the state Legislature is responsible for reapportionment.

The governor said he planned to discuss New York State matters with which the congressmen should be familiar.

Stratton frequently has been mentioned as a target of the Republican controlled Legislature's reapportionment plans. Because of population changes between 1960 and 1960, New York's house delegation will be cut from 43 to 41.

The Legislature will meet this fall in special session to redesign the congressional districts.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A recent line in this column concerning the illusion-shattering news that "Lassie," the collie star of the program of the same name, was really four dogs and all of them male, brought a prompt explanation from the advertising agency which handles the show.

Jim Swift, my correspondent, states that Lassie has been a male since the eighth day of shooting, more than 20 years ago, of "Lassie Come Home," a movie from which the TV series subsequently developed.

The very first Lassie was female.

For the first six days of shooting—inside the studio—she was great. Then during the luncheon break on the second day of the location shots, a handsome male DeBerman turned up. The result was that Lassie broke her leash and eloped. Shooting had to be canceled for the rest of the day, at considerable cost.

The result was high-level decision that future Lassies would have to be males, and that there would have to be enough stand-ins and doubles to cope with emergencies.

At a time when television is under heavy fire for its big doses of unnecessary violence, the National Broadcasting Co. decided that the very thing the viewers needed now was a short version of "The Untouchables."

Its 30-minute gangbuster series, which bowed in Friday night, is called "The Lawless Years." The premiere show was another version of the violent end of New York gangster "Legs" Diamond, a clay pigeon of the roaring 20s. It promises to be a series of ADVERTISEMENTS.

Polio struck last summer... and the summer before... and it can strike again this summer. There is no reason why you can't get it—unless you are immunized with vaccine shots.

The groups who appear to be particularly susceptible are young parents and babies. And now is the time to do something about it. It only takes minutes for Polio protection.

Huge Airliner To Broadcast TV School Programs

By WILLIAM SHAFER
CHICAGO (AP) — A converted airliner takes wing over Indiana today to broadcast the first educational television programs to a score of schools in a six-state area.

The DC-6, crammed with six tons of ultra high frequency TV equipment, is to beam experimental, taped lectures as part of the Midwest Program on Airborne Television Instruction test of an aerial transmitting setup.

An airplane is used because its altitude lets it beam more than 200 miles in all directions — an area MPATI spokesmen say which otherwise would require some 14 ground-based transmitters.

A sample curriculum is scheduled for selected schools in Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Kentucky from today to June 1.

The aircraft is to fly a preselected pattern 23,000 feet above Monticello, in northeast Indiana. It broadcasts on the UHF channels which are monitored in the classroom.

Dr. John E. Ivey Jr., who heads MPTAI at its offices at Purdue University, said the system is aimed at helping teachers, not replacing them.

"Our program is a partial solution to the crisis in education," he said. "This crisis was brought on by the so-called population explosion, rising education costs and the added problem of a teacher shortage."

He said teachers must be present when the 15 to 25 minute lectures are in progress to answer questions. Guide books and supplementary materials accompany the series, he said.

Ivey said some 500,000 students will be included in next fall's first formal classroom presentation. He said some five million students in 13,000 schools are within broadcast range.

If successful, Ivey said, the system could expand into a nationwide operation. Ivey estimated the per-pupil cost for member schools at $2.50. He said a typical, 12-unit installation viewed by 25 to 30 pupils per set would cost from $2,500 to $5,000.

Heads Women's Voices

BOCHUM, Germany (AP)—The head of the Bochum Observatory today said his station has recorded female voices on a wave length usually used for Soviet spunk communications.

Heinz Kaminski said he believes the Russians may be on the verge of sending a space ship into orbit carrying women.

"Before the start of space ships, the Russians always align their transmitters but we never have heard female voices on that wave length," Kaminski said. "Something is going on there."

Could Have

Kennedy has said that he will take whatever measures may be necessary to protect the security of the United States against the development of a Communist base in this hemisphere.

Wide Range of Subjects
Talks between the two men presumably would cover a far wider range of subjects than those Kennedy said at the outset of his administration that he would like to concentrate in his dealings with the Soviets on problems about which some agreement was possible.

He proposed joint researches on outer space and co-operative endeavors to conquer disease. There is no reason to think that he would not renew this proposition in a face-to-face meeting with Khrushchev.

But in present world circumstances the major part of the conversation would almost inevitably have to deal with problems arising from the contest created by Khrushchev's efforts to make his confident predictions of a Communist world come true—and the efforts of the United States and its allies to block any further spread of Sino-Soviet power.

On top of his real or prospective successes in Cuba and Laos, Khrushchev found cause for proud boasts of Soviet achievement in the successful orbiting of a man around the world a few weeks ago. This considerably increased Soviet prestige in comparison with that of the United States.

It would be surprising indeed if the Soviet leader did not approach a meeting with President Kennedy now in a more confident mood than in that which he visited the United States and talked with President Eisenhower in September 1959.

Agree to Pay Cut

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Drivers for the city's second largest taxi company agreed to take a cut in pay Sunday, ending a 28-day strike. City Service Taxis 140 drivers agreed to new terms to keep the company in business, according to Stanley Clayton, business agent for Teamsters local 575. He said the agreement amounts to a weekly cut of about $1.50 to $2.25 per driver.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made a fairly sharp gain in active trading early this afternoon amid signs of further recovery by business.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose 1.10 to 248.60 with industrials up 1.60, rails up .60 and utilities up .60.

Gains of key stocks went from fractions of 2 points or better. Steels, Motors, rails, chemicals, coppers, rubbers and other stocks related to the business cycle were strongly on the upbeat for the first time in quite a while.

A number of electronics and selected issues pinpointed by traders as good speculation also made strides. The market rise was by no means unanimous. Oils, aircrafts and tobacco were irregular.

U. S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin gained about 2 apiece. Ford rose more than a point. Chrysler picked up a point.

American Machine & Foundry was up 5 1/8.

Kendall, Zenith and Texas Instruments gained 2 points or so. Hershey Chocolate dropped 3 points.

Goodrich spurred 3 points. Anaconda advanced more than a point. Other copper shares made fractional gains.

U. S. Agrees Today to Take Part in Conference on Laos

GENEVA (AP) — The United States reluctantly agreed today to take part in an international conference on Laos after President Kennedy approved an American concession that deliberately left the status of the Laotian delegates vague.

The conference, which was to have opened three days ago, now is expected to go through at least a formal opening ceremony tonight or Tuesday.

The problem that has held up the high-level meeting has been deciding who would speak for Laos in negotiations on its political future. Three rival Laotian delegations are here.

The United States originally took the position that the only

Laotians who should be allowed at the conference table were representatives of the pro-Western government of Premier Boun Oum.

The Communists insisted that the Communist-led Pathet Lao rebels and their self-styled neutralist allies under Prince Souvanna Phouma — who is recognized by the Reds as the legal premier of Laos—should be the spokesmen for Laos.

A compromise formula worked out by British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville appeared to have the approval of all concerned.

The formula would allow all three rival Laotian delegations into the conference room as observers but avoid describing them as "representatives of Laos."

Instead, it was reported by British sources, they will be described as "Laotian delegates." This tricky phraseology avoids indicating whether they represent any government of the tiny jungle kingdom.

American agreement to attend the conference on this basis was given reluctantly by U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk after consultations with President Kennedy.

The formal U. S. position still is that the royal government of Premier Boun Oum is the sole government of Laos. But American delegates said they are willing to sit in on the conference of 14 nations in which the other two factions participate on the basis of the British-French compromise.

Informants said the Kennedy administration felt it was more important to test the sincerity of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's professed willingness to agree to a neutral policy for Laos than to allow the proceedings to break down on a question of representation.

But the conference here may never deal with the political and governmental aspects of the crisis in Laos, since discussions that may lead to the formation of a neutral government now are under way in the Indochinese kingdom itself.

Top Leaders at Home

The three top leaders of the rival forces are not in Geneva, preferring to remain at home in the hope some sort of political settlement can be achieved there. If they reach a settlement on the spot, then representatives of an eventually unified government might come to Geneva to represent the country as fully privileged participants.

The conference here would devote itself primarily to matters affecting the international aspects of the problem—such as the matters of arms control and international supervision of the country's neutrality.

Agreement had been reached Sunday by the big powers on a formula to seat all three rival Laotian groups as observers, but not participants.

They would have been designated as representatives of their own political factions but not as representatives of Laos. But at the last moment, the pro-Western Laotians and the Pathet Lao refused to take part on this basis.

In accepting the new British-French proposal, the Soviet Union and Communist allies also gave a point. They originally had demanded that the Pathet Lao be represented at the conference as a full governmental delegation on the same footing as any of the other 13 nations taking part. The West refused to agree to this.

Left in Grey Convertible

They reported that a glass in a door on the Hurley Avenue side of the building had been broken, but there was no apparent burglary. It was noted that the trio had left a gray convertible car, and apparently had been "scared off" in the burglary attempt.

A police report at 6:45 p. m. Saturday said that James Ammer, an instructor at the Wallkill Medium Security Prison, reported the theft of eight sport shirts valued at $32, from his car. Items of unknown value, he said, were also taken from the glove compartment. The car was parked on Mountain View Avenue at the time.

Urban Renewal

night session is open at 7:30 p. m.

It is expected that the council will act upon whatever schedule is presented Tuesday night and recess until Thursday for possible consideration of urban renewal.

Early action on the designation of an urban renewal program has been asked in order for the city to gain some $500,000 in credit through construction of the Mary's Avenue School. The federal government permits the city to make up for its one-sixth share of urban renewal costs through contribution of water, sewer, school, street and other facilities.

Savings-Loan Plan Offers SafeRepository for Funds

Q) "I have noticed that some savings and loan associations are offering 4 1/2 per cent on savings plans. This rate of interest seems to be greater than many stocks offer. Do you recommend savings and loan associations over stocks?" P. F.

A) I can't give you a flat answer to this question, since the choice of investment in these two areas depends entirely on what your aims are. I believe savings and loan associations are sound and secure repositories for your funds.

In many instances, as you say, they offer a higher rate of return than can be obtained from stocks. What they can't give you is growth from rising earnings and dividends, which you can expect from a well-selected stock list. All savings deposits are fixed, not only as regards income

NEW YORK (AP) — Business luncheon clubs grow both in number and in swankiness. They are scattered from the eastern seaboard to Honolulu.

The recession led many corporations to cut operating costs in many ways. But most clubs say they have suffered no loss of membership. Companies often pick up the tab for one or more top executives. At a club their man can both entertain at midday and do business with a guest, a client, supplier, banker or adviser. (In these days of antitrust probes, it's no place to be seen with a competitor.)

Exclusive, View Too

The clubs offer varying degrees of exclusiveness and more of them are opening on top floors of new buildings that can boast a view. The dues and luncheon checks vary as widely as the sites.

But all have in common the aim of letting men of like interests get together for a meal and maybe a drink. They may just relax but most members claim they discuss their problems or work out business deals. It's the same sort of thing that businessmen often do, so they say, when they leave the office early for a round of golf.

Swank decor and service helps. But members say the big idea is to avoid being disturbed by outsiders and have enough elbow room so that the talk can be private. To this end also most clubs have private rooms as well as the general luncheon areas. Some private rooms are rented permanently by corporations or groups. Most are open to use for meetings or other special occasions.

More Are Planned

The growing number of office buildings, each with a new category of executives, has hiked the demand for club membership and led to the opening of many new clubs and the planning of still more.

Joining the rush of new clubs on the New York scene are the Fifth Avenue Club atop the Corns Glass Building and the Hemisphere Club at Time & Life in Rockefeller Center. Another new comer is the Harbor View Club at the lower end of Broadway, and fairly recent is the Pinnacle Club in the Seony Mobil Building near Grand Central Station.

Coming is one atop the Pan Am Building being built over the tracks at Grand Central. The Wall Street Club will move from present quarters to the Chase Manhattan Bank Building nearing completion in the financial district.

Older clubs report no loss of total membership due to the influx. The Rainbow Room Luncheon Club, loftiest in Rockefeller Center, says the Hemisphere Club has only helped supply the demand for such midday gathering places.

The financial district has many long established clubs, such as the Bankers Club of America, India House and the Whitehall Club. Luncheon checks in New York City clubs are reported to average over $4, while at clubs in Denver, Tulsa and Honolulu the average is variously reported from $1.40 to $2.50.

When to Pass Take Out Double

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Fifty years ago the West hand would have to pass after an opening bid by South. An overcall at the two level on a four card suit would be too dangerous and no-trump with a singleton in the opponent's suit would be inviting the undertaker.

About that time the late Maj. Rufus C. Patton invented the negative or take out double and this West hand is a perfect example to this bid.

He doubles to ask his partner to bid. This time it turns out that East will pass. He has very good spades and should decide to try to set South.

West won't like it when East passes his take-out double, but

West should not be too annoyed to open his singleton trump.

Incidentally, this trump opening is normal procedure when your partner passes your take out double. He is showing very good trumps and you should start the trump suit right off the bat.

Against this trump opening South is almost helpless. Double dummy can get out with four tricks but if he doesn't go right after a club trick he is likely to make only his ace and king of trumps and ace of diamonds.

Of course, East and West do have a game, but an 800 or 1,100 point penalty is better.

Speno Asks Rate Cut for Belts in Car Front Seats

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Motorists who install seat belts in the front seats of their automobiles should get at least a 5 per cent rate reduction on insurance, Sen. Edward J. Speno says.

Speno, chairman of the Legislature's committee on highway safety, said he was putting the proposal before the insurance industry.

In a statement issued by his office here Sunday, the Nassau Republican said "the insurance companies will save fortunes because of seat belts."

He said that "with universal use of seat belts, it is probable that more than 30 per cent of the biggest claims against insurance companies will disappear."

Studies have shown that seat belts reduced from 30 to 60 per cent the incidence of serious injury or death in highway crashes he said.

Speno proposed that a person who had the belts installed would report it to his insurance company with certification from the seller or other proof.

While persons who installed the belts would not always use them, he said, judges and juries in claims cases would not be sympathetic toward such persons.

Antwerp Diamond Dealer

Twenty years ago, when the Nazi were bombing London and closing in on leading Western European cities, hundreds of citizens from England, The Netherlands, Belgium and France came to New York City. They were prominent financial individuals in their own countries.

I got to know a score of them. One was a diamond dealer from Antwerp who spoke several languages fluently. He was an internationalist. Few men in the world had a better understanding of global economics.

In 1946, he settled permanently in New York and now, well past 70, he views the world with a tremendous comprehension and discusses the political, economic and military forces underlying values with a rare understanding.

The bulk of his considerable wealth is invested in common stocks of American corporations. And as the situations in Cuba, Laos, Algeria, Berlin and many other danger spots develop a great many uncertainties for the future, he is becoming increasingly thankful that he is here and that his money is in American enterprises.

There are still many economic isolationists in our country. I receive letters from some of them every week. They heard dollars, failing to recognize the gigantic forces operating in the world.

Here is a lady of 74. For 25 years, she has had over $100,000 earning from 1 1/2 per cent (during the financing of the Second World War) to 3 1/2 per cent a year. She lived on the interest. In 1960, life caught up with her: a hospital siege cost her $5,000. Against her wishes, she had to spend some principal.

Her medical and hospital expenses this year will be over $5,000. More principal will disappear. This experience deepens her financial worries and prolongs her mental and physical illness.

Her isolation is proving her undoing. What does she need most? Some of the vision and the courage of the Antwerp diamond dealer. And 1961 is not too late to turn from isolation.

If, in 1945, she had started to buy some of the common stocks the Belgian merchant bought at that time, today she would be facing a cruel economic

Phone Co. Says New Toll System To Save Million

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York Telephone Co. will offer unlimited long-distance toll calls within the state at a flat, 650-per-month-per-trunk rate, beginning June 1.

The utility said the system, approved Saturday by the Public Service Commission, would save the utility's biggest customers nearly $1 million annually.

New York Telephone also will offer a limited-service plan, under which subscribers would pay $240 per trunk for 15 hours of toll calls within the state and $13.50 for each extra hour.

Collect, person-to-person, conference and other calls requiring the services of an operator will not be covered under the new plan, which is based on direct dialing of long-distance calls.

The commission told subscribers with monthly toll bills of $200 or more had indicated that they would save a total of $960,000 a year, after paying the special rates.

The revenue loss, New York Telephone said, will be offset by operating economies possible with the system.

Carlson, first elected mayor in 1908, was defeated for reelection in 1927 and 1933 but won back the post both times in the following elections.

Don't Turn Your Children Into Unamusing Showoffs

Sometimes after a nap his mother would read to him from his book of nursery rhymes. As he was beginning to appreciate the power of words to help him understand and make himself understood, he listened eagerly. One day she was turning a page in the book when he stopped her. Pointing to its picture of the little girl with the shepherdess crook, he said something that sounded like this:

"Little Bo Peep
Lissa sheep
No time it
Tails home hime it."

He was so intent on his own achievement that he didn't notice his mother's face. So later he gladly displayed the achievement for a neighbor. He did notice her face. Its expression made him uncomfortable.

Therefore the following Sunday he didn't want to recite his nursery rhyme for grandma and other assorted relatives. He didn't want to attract that half-contemptuous, half-amused attention he had received from the neighbor. It made him feel shy and very lonely.

But mama insisted; and as he trusted her wishes more than his own, he obeyed. He got the same disrespectful attention. However, he soon forgot how much he disliked it and went on showing off for mama.

Today, he still seeks it. At parties, in the club car of his commuters' train at night, he can't stop trying to amuse people with jokes they have heard. He's got

Attorney Faces Sentence 26th in Insurance Fraud

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Attorney Robert V. Bogan, convicted of 124 counts of a 156-count insurance fraud indictment, will be sentenced May 26.

An Erie County Court jury convicted Bogan of 124 counts of forgery, conspiracy and grand larceny Saturday after a 10-week trial. It found him innocent of eight counts in the indictment and reported it was deadlocked on the other 23.

Bogan, 39, an insurance examiner for the Buffalo Insurance Co., in 1958, was charged in the indictment with stealing $19,425 from the company by writing fake automobile insurance drafts.

Like him, they may never recover the old, old memory of their original recoil from disrespectful attention.

New FAA Ruling Bans FM Radios In All Aircraft

The use of portable FM radios on U. S. civil aircraft has been prohibited by the Federal Aviation Agency in a Special Civil Air Regulation, SR 446, effective May 25, 1961.

The rule was based on results of an investigation of the effect of portable electronic devices operated in aircraft, including radios, dictating machines and recorders. Only radios having oscillators operating within or very near the Very High Frequency band used in aircraft, 108 to 118 megacycles, affected instruments in the various aircraft on which the tests were made. More detailed tests will be made later in the year.

The interference discovered by the FAA affected the VHF radio navigation system of the aircraft, causing the appearance of the "red flag," indicating to the pilot that the navigation instrument was not working properly. This red flag warns the pilot not to trust the instrument, and thus prevents the instrument from giving a faulty indication.

Stewart AF Base Lists Open House Events and Tours

As a part of Stewart Air Force Base "Open House" planned for Armed Forces Day, May 20, the Boston Air Defense Sector will hold five briefings and tours in Hangar D, Building 128-1, beginning at 11 a. m.

One half of the hangar nearest Base Operations, will be utilized for the program. Each hour on the hour there will be a briefing by an officer, explaining the BODS Mission, which will last about eight minutes.

The movie, "Seconds for Survival," which will run about 28 minutes, will be shown. It will be followed by "The Falcons—on Guard, on Target," a movie about the Air Force's "Seek and Kill" missile, the Falcon, which is shown from the earliest models to the atomic model.

On hand also, will be the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment Console (SAGE), and operations of the 76th Fighter Interceptor Squadron will be explained. The weapons of 76th, the F-102 and F-101 of 60th FIS, will be included in the briefing.

Swim Suit Backs Dip Amid Cover-Up Trend

GAILE DUGAS, Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor

This year's sleek and streamlined swim suit shows more cover-up than in seasons past. There's one exception: the plunging back. Many suits are cut right down to the waistline at back in either U or V shape.

And even though they sport shoulder straps, they allow for a beautiful tan to display later with low-backed chiffon or organdy evening dresses. Featherweight knits and mailots (sleek sheath suits) are top best sellers.

Outstanding among the season's new swim suits are the two pictured at left, above. Model at left wears a trim V-necked suit, featuring a multi-colored striped apron front that gives a skirt effect. Her pal's suit with the deep V-back has a broad band of ribbing that outlines the neckline. Both are in flexible all-American wool and are first-rate figure-molders. Both have special inner construction to make a girl look her best at the beach. For the gal who really likes to swim, the suit in right photo is just the ticket. An ingenious knit-in petal pattern features this hand-loomed, all-American wool model. Perfection of streamlined fit eliminates sagging or strap-slipping, both impediments to a swimmer's action.

Both are designed to give a girl a lovely figure even if she doesn't possess one. Artfully designed, with built-in figure control, these suits provide the greatest streamlining with the least possible weight.

As for swim suit colors, they follow the trend in daytime dress fashions. Colors you'll see on the beach include grape, banana, orange, absinthe, lemon, lime, turquoise and gold. Then there are stripes and prints, too.

Think It Through

BY E. F. HUTTON
KENNEDY VS. KENNEDY

Attorney General Robert Kennedy has indicted eight Baltimore milk companies on the charge that they fix the price of milk sold to the schools. He also plans to investigate any price fixing of bread and meat.

Meantime, his big brother, the President, wants Congress to authorize farmers to fix—and raise—the prices they get for bread, meat and other farm products. He wants to increase the income of farmers.

The Attorney General wants to reduce the income of those who distribute farm products.

Congress already permits the fixing of prices farmers charge for milk. It is O.K. to force milk distributors to pay farmers fixed prices for milk, but it is very naughty for them to fix the prices they get for milk.

It is true, of course, that the fixed price of milk at the farm has to be O.K. by some official, whereas the price distributors charge for milk could be fixed in some smoke-filled room.

But Government sets a bad example and gets into an awful mess when it fixes prices at one end of the line and demands free competition at the other end—or jail.

Shall Government fix all prices charged by producers, processors, wholesalers and retailers? Shall it also fix wages, or let labor unions fix them and force employers and the public to pay them?

We presently have two governments,—one visible, the other invisible.

County to Receive $35,616 Additional In New State Plan

Ulster County will receive an additional $35,616.25 in per capita state aid in its first quarterly payment of $560,360.15 on May 15, as a result of the recently enacted law permitting the use of 1960 census data.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt announced today that $31 million in additional per capita aid will be distributed this year because of the new law.

In all some $100.2 million will be distributed to cities, towns and villages in the state during the fiscal year.

IBM Considering Suburbia Switch

NEW YORK — International Business Machines Corporation announced today that starting in September some 190 people, about one-seventh of its New York City corporate headquarters executive staff, will work in Westchester County for several months to determine whether the company's headquarters can operate effectively in a suburban location. The group will occupy offices in the new Thomas J. Watson Research Center at Yorktown.

Four of IBM's division headquarters have moved out of the city to Westchester County during the last three years and, according to the company, most of the people involved have found the new suburban locations highly satisfactory.

At the end of the trial period, the company will decide whether to move its entire headquarters to an ultimate location in the suburbs, or continue to have its headquarters in New York.

Not in Book

PHILADELPHIA — (NEA) — Satchel Paige was as quick with his tongue as his arm.

Robin Roberts recalls battling against Satch in 1952, when Paige was believed to be approaching 50, and hitting a double. Later a friend of the Phillies' right-hander told Paige that Roberts was boasting of how he hit him.

"I got a big book on how to pitch to all the great hitters," commented Paige, "and Mistuh Roberts isn't in it."

3rd Fixed Station Monitoring Course Is Slated Tuesday

The third session of the fixed station monitoring course will be held on Tuesday, May 16, at 7:30 p. m. in the Supervisors' Room of the County Court House, 285 Wall Street.

This session will be devoted to the use of the Geiger counter to detect and measure radiation. Herbert Stork has prepared a series of demonstrations and exercises to teach the use of this instrument.

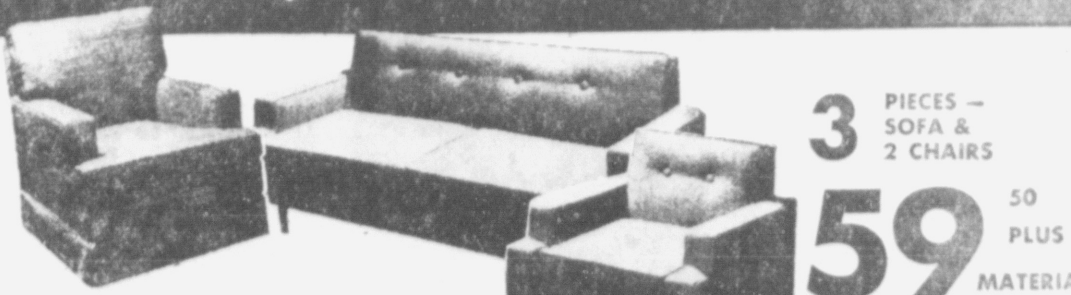

An important portion of the course will be the operation of the fixed station. John Schermerhorn will discuss the mechanics of collecting data, recording the radiation values, and transmitting the basic information to the control center.

Another and final session of this course will be held in the Supervisors' Room on May 23. This extension of the course was found necessary to cover all the material and to allow a "make-up" class for those employees who missed a previous session.

This training has been arranged by Morris Nussbaum, Chief of the Radiological Service, to train and equip the 14 American Legion Posts in Ulster County with a capability to monitor radioactive fallout.

Rural Representatives Dominate Legislature

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you want your vote in state legislative affairs to weigh more, move to the country.

The reason? Most state legislatures now are dominated by rural senators and representatives.

In theory, every state but Maryland must reapportion all or part of the legislature periodically. This prohibits the focus of power anywhere but with the majority of the people.

But in practice, theory is shelved and rural lawmakers keep a firm hold on their power.

That disfranchisement is common may be seen in this sampling:

Alabama's Bullock County has 13,000 citizens and two representatives. But the more than 50,000 Houston County citizens have only one.

Less Than Third Controls

Less than one-third of Iowa's population controls the legislature. Some Wyoming counties with three legislators have fewer residents than other counties with but one.

Four urban Utah counties claim three-quarters of the state's population, pay 65 per cent of the taxes, but have only 44 per cent of the Senate seats and 54 per cent of the House.

And Perry County, Arkansas, boasts 4,900 residents and one representative, while the eight Pulaski County representatives average 31,250 constituents each.

A Vexing Problem

In all but a handful of states, reapportionment is a vexing problem. And its solutions range from acceptance to agitation to reform.

Maryland's legislative districts can be changed only with approval by voters and there are no deadlines for changes. The last boundary changes followed a 1950 referendum.

The partition of Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama is the same now as it was a half-century ago. Vermont's 246-member House—second largest in the nation—has been unchanged numerically since its first seating in 1793. And Connecticut's Senate is the same in number now as in 1874.

Almost Impossible

Reapportionment of all or part of the Iowa, Ohio and Arkansas legislatures is virtually impossible because of so-called "freezing" clauses which permanently fix district boundaries.

Small hope is held for overhauling the assemblies of Kentucky, Utah, Vermont, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Wyoming—states where the lawmakers maintain a passive attitude.

Indiana's legislature was last realigned in 1921, despite a constitutional provision for a census and reapportionment every six years. An Indianapolis judge ruled recently that all future acts of the legislature will be invalid unless the constitution is obeyed, but there is considerable doubt the ruling can be enforced.

The rural-urban antagonism is compounded in Vermont, New York and Connecticut by partisan politics.

Some Progress on Way

But progress is being made. Partial equalizing recently occurred in eight states. Change is under study in 11 more.

Floridians will vote soon on a new districting plan (a similar measure was voted down by a 3-4 margin two years ago). In Michigan a constitutional convention this fall probably will rework that state's apportionment clause.

Governors in Georgia, California, Alabama and Utah are taking a personal role in seeking equalization of the governmental formulas in their states.

Elsewhere, individuals are taking matters to the courts.

Refuses to Pay Taxes

A Mississippian refuses to pay his state tax, saying he isn't fairly represented. He claims that no legislative reapportionment since 1890 means taxation without fair representation.

A Kansas attorney has asked the courts to declare all legislative acts unconstitutional. He says the Kansas government has gone unchanged for so long it no longer reflects the wishes of the majority.

Most publicized of current reapportionment controversies is that in Tennessee. The U. S. Supreme Court is considering a case in which city voters claim they aren't being equitably represented.

There has been no reallocation of the Tennessee General Assembly since 1901. The plaintiffs argue that city dwellers are being discriminated against.

The state claims a federal tribunal has no right to decide the issue, that an order to reapportion would amount to usurping state's rights.

Medal Proposed To Honor Hope For His Works

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Moments enriched by humor are moments free from hate and conflict, and therefore valued by mankind," said a Senate resolution today proposing a gold medal for comedian Bob Hope.

The resolution, prepared for introduction by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Md., on behalf of 95 senators, cited Hope's "hundreds of miles of travel around the globe" to entertain American troops.

This phase of the rapid-fire comedian's life already is well known to Americans, particularly those who served overseas during World War II and in Korea.

"Another less known side of Hope's life," Symington said, is that "for many years, quietly but consistently, this American has been engaged in a career of good works."

The British-born entertainer, 38 in two weeks, attempted to enlist after the United States entered World War II. He was told he could serve better as an entertainer to build morale.

Hope took the advice literally and traveled more than 1 million miles to entertain servicemen on the way from North Africa to the islands of the Pacific.

His book on the wartime travels, "I Never Left Home," sold more than 1.6 million copies and earned about $175,000 which was turned over to charity.

During World War II he was the only entertainer among 50 persons voted into the Living Hall of Fame at the Smithsonian Institution.

The Steam Gun Fizzled For Its Union Captors

THE WINANS GUN, shown above, was captured on May 10 by Union troops near Baltimore while en route to Confederate forces at Harpers Ferry, Va. It was a centrifugal steam gun, protected by an iron cone and mounted on a four-wheel carriage. According to its patent holder, Charles S. Dickinson, the gun could fire any size ball from one ounce to 24 pounds at a rate of 100 to 500 per minute. Dickinson claimed it was better than an entire battery to defend a city or harbor and that it was capable of sinking any ordinary vessel or mowing down troops on the battlefield. Dickinson said it also was economical. Having captured the gun, Union forces set it up to protect a viaduct and an important junction near Baltimore but, like all centrifugal force guns, past and present, it proved to be a failure. The gun was named for mechanic-inventor Ross Winans, a Confederate sympathizer, who had previously successfully invented or improved locomotives and steamboats which were used here and abroad, and which served as models in the industries for several generations. However, Winans' products also led him into the courts. Just before the outbreak of war, Winans retired. He then represented Baltimore in the Maryland state legislature and was later arrested several times by the North on charges of treason, but was paroled each time.

ASK THE DESIGNER

Dear Gaile: I am beginning to think about the clothes I would like for summer. I like the flared dresses that I have seen so far but don't know if I can wear the flared type. I have a hip problem and it seems to me that a flared skirt will only accentuate this. Still, the flare looks so new that I want two or three if possible. What do you think?—Mrs. A. D. L.

Dear Mrs. A. D. L.: I think that you have lots of company. A good many women in this country share that hip problem with you. So don't be discouraged. I talked this one over with designer, Geoffrey Beene of Teal Trains, and this is what he has to say:

"By all means, do try the flare. It's such a fresh and interesting variation. But if you have a hip problem, your best bet is the flare with a bias cut. Ask for this when you go shopping, as you may not recognize it when you see it. But the bias cut will enable you to wear the flare without looking hippy. If you are only slightly hippy, you will be surprised to discover that you can wear almost any version of the flare and look well."

Dear Gaile: I have a natural round trunk cape. It's about 27 inches from shoulder to bottom in back and about 25 inches in front. I have had it for a few years. It is beautiful but I feel out of style in it as most everyone is wearing the stole. Should I have it restyled into a stole? I wear suits practically all the time and this cape gives me the warmth I need with a suit. I'd appreciate your opinion. I am 5'7" tall. M. P.

Dear M. P.: Actually, the mink stole was never designed to wear with a suit. It was intended for dressy afternoon, cocktail and dinner clothes. But because it is a warm, light, handy wrap, women are beginning to wear it with suits.

You are tall enough to carry off a cape well. And since you seem pleased with your cape and wear it with suits, I would not have it changed. It's quite likely that you will end up with a stole which is very much in fashion and which you don't like at all.

To a certain degree, all of us must be individualists about fashion. If a style becomes you and you like it, wear it. And don't worry about what other women are wearing at the moment. From your description, I would say that the cape is a perfect choice for you.

Please send your fashion problems to Gaile Dugas in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column. (All rights reserved. Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.)

Summit Session May Be Held Soon

Two Nations Act to Slate Kennedy, Khrushchev Talks

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Time and events in a disorderly world lent the ideas of President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk about summitry and travel.

Just a few months ago Kennedy indicated a meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev—who insulted President Eisenhower in Paris just a year ago Tuesday—was a long way off.

Now the American and Russian governments are dicker to bring Kennedy and Khrushchev together in the near future.

Rusk was not only cautious about summit get-togethers for a President but even about travel for a secretary of state. Rusk, remembering that John Foster Dulles was the most traveled secretary in history, told a news conference March 9:

"I personally have felt my time can be spent to best advantage in Washington."

But in the two months since then he has attended four international conferences outside this country.

The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (won't about the possibility of revolution in Laos in Ankara, Turkey; the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (won't about its differences and show Russia a stiff lip in Oslo, Norway; and now in Geneva, Switzerland, for a 14-nation conference on setting up a neutral government in Laos.

Kennedy goes to Canada Tuesday for a visit and then travels to Paris May 14 for a conference with French President Charles de Gaulle. He'll most likely seek Khrushchev immediately afterward, if plans are completed.

Must Build Military
This is what Kennedy said about summit meetings during the 1960 presidential campaign.

"Before we go to the summit, before we ever meet again, I think it is important that the United States build its strength, build its military strength as well as its economic strength."

"If we negotiate from a position where the power balance is moving away from us, it is extremely difficult to meet a situation on Berlin as well as other things."

(Berlin is not an issue at the moment but is expected to be this year. But in the time since Kennedy made that statement—a short time ago as military build-up goes—this country hasn't been able to add much to its strength.)

Must Be Agreement

But Kennedy went on: "I will not meet Mr. Khrushchev unless there were some agreement at the secondary level, foreign ministers or ambassadors, that would indicate that the meeting will have some hope of success or useful exchange of ideas."

Rusk's task on summit meetings in a talk he made Jan. 18, 1960.

"It directs, time and energy the President's from exactly the point at which we can spare it least, it does not give us effective negotiations, such experience as we have had with summit diplomacy does not encourage the view that it contributes to the advancement of American interests."

He added, "Summit diplomacy is to be approached with the wariness with which a prudent physician prescribes habit-forming drugs."

On March 9 Rusk said this about traveling by a secretary of state: "I personally have felt that my time can be spent to best advantage in Washington and I hope to make good on that over the years."

But he added that he didn't want to be dogmatic about this

A festival of Jewish music will be presented by the Jewish Community Center of Kingston at 9 p. m., Saturday, June 3, at Temple Emanuel, Albany Avenue.

Women's Army Corps Has 19th Birthday

The Army's teenage distaff corps is growing up. On May 14, the U. S. Women's Army Corps celebrated its 19th birthday.

Formed early in 1942, during World War 2, to add women-power to the Army's team, the WAC has won a place in history, leaving a legacy of honor and pride to the thousands of young women who have served in war and in peacetime.

Today 10,000 Wac's work side by side with soldiers of the U. S. Army, thus adding a needed link in the strong chain of the country's defenses. They serve throughout the U. S. and in France, Germany, Italy, Hawaii, Japan, Korea and Okinawa.

The Women's Army Corps has never been happier than it is today in its new $7,000,000 Center at Fort McClellan, Alabama, an old Army fort which took to skirts and pink ruffles in 1954. Nucleus of the WAC, the center receives women who are processed, classified, and trained for Army life. The cream colored barracks, which look like college dormitories, include snack kitchens, modern laundries, luxurious bathrooms, smart television lounges, and an inviting date room where the girls may have their boyfriends call and wait in comfort for their dates. This realistic attitude of treating women as women reflected in ever increasing efficient service to our nation.

"Tracing the growth of this service is like watching a turbulent teenager turn into a purposeful, poised adult," commented Sgt. Edward Malenski, Army recruiter for this area. "In the beginning," he said, "it was strain, hard work and regimentation. Today, Wac's are assigned to only those jobs which are socially acceptable for women everywhere in fields including public information, personnel, special services, medical and secretarial work."

The WAC today offers young women 18 through 33 an opportunity to serve their country, to receive job training, to attend Army specialized schools, to travel all over the world as well as benefits of social service. More information may be obtained by contacting Sgt. Malenski at Municipal Auditorium, 467 Broadway, Kingston.

Crusader for Planned Motherhood Is Feted At Testimonial Dinner

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—She sits quietly with folded hands, looking like a modern Whistler's Mother. Her floor-length silk muumuu is red, but somehow it goes with her Irish red hair that needs only slight tinting as she nears 80. She is gently placid, almost frail.

But just ask Margaret Sanger if she has mellowed. The blue eyes flash with the old fire that kept her embattled birth control movement going in its early years.

"Of course I haven't mellowed," she snaps. "Back when I was actively crusading I felt everyone simply had to believe what I said. I still do. I don't see how any thinking person could feel differently about birth control."

Then, humor getting the upper hand, she recalls: "When I started out, I had to be very careful what words I used. The whole subject was taboo. Even my father—an outspoken Irishman who brought me up to do my own thinking—said to me one day: 'Margaret, can't you find some other subject in the world to talk about but the bedroom?' And he whispered when he said 'bedroom.'"

But times have changed. The dignified little woman who was jailed at least nine times and had her first clinic raided by police as a public nuisance is in New York this week receiving an international tribute from science and government leaders gathered for a conference on the "world population crisis."

"I take the scientists' word," she says, "when they say there's not going to be enough to take care of all the people. And birth control, if practiced on a wide scale, is the only solution. I'm not advocating any one method, but all methods."

In the past few years Mrs. Sanger has been living quietly in Tucson, Ariz., but the election of John F. Kennedy brought her into the news again. She was moving to England, she declared, unless the President showed whether he was not dominated by the Roman Catholic Church.

Now she says: "I've been told that he and his wife are sympathetic, that they understand the cause. He may not do anything about it; I don't expect him to promise anything. But if the government would come out and say it was standing behind the movement, it would be of great help to the little overpopulated countries of Asia that still admire us. It would have helped if President Eisenhower had done it."

When Don't Teen-Agers Win Arguments?

The experts in human relations must figure that if we don't have something new to worry about every month or so we'll get bored and restless and not have the foggiest notion of what to do with our spare time.

So we are warned that teenagers need to win an argument with their parents occasionally—for the sake of their self-esteem (or something). It is even suggested that, if necessary, we deliberately start an argument we intend to let them win—just to build up their self-confidence. Personally, I figure the expert who has dreamed up this new worry is going to have a hard time peddling it. The parents of teen-agers I know are so unaccustomed to winning arguments with their offspring that they'll never have to throw one, just to make their kids feel good.

After all, what parent today is strong enough to win out against such teen-age arguments as:

- "All the other kids are going." Want to make your kid different?
- "Your treating me like a child." At fourteen—yet?
- "Things aren't like they were when you were growing up." That's a fact, for sure.
- "You just don't understand!" And after all those books you've read, too.
- "Nothing's going to happen." Maybe you are being overly protective. And you KNOW that's bad. All the experts agree.

Nurses Hear Speaker On Local Legends

Members of the District Nurses Association in Greene and Ulster Counties enjoyed their annual dinner this week, held this year at the Catskill Country Club.

Miss Agnes Scott Smith, history teacher in Kingston High School, was the speaker of the evening. Miss Smith brought to her audience legends handed down through generations of the descendants of the early settlers. Stories of hostile and friendly encounters with the Indians, of witchcraft in Ulster, and in Greene County, of Revolutionary War heroes, and of county "characters" during the 19th Century made informative and often amusing material for our background of local history. Laughter was occasioned by the discovery that one of the nurses present lives in the house of a doctor who was reputed to be very skilled in overcoming "witches' spells cast on neighbors."

Mrs. Marie Stewart, president of the district, thanked Miss Smith, and also Miss Laura Barker, Miss Mary Becker and Mrs. Gloria Buckley of the dinner committee for the successful dinner meeting. The next meeting will be held June 14 in Kingston.

The man who boasts that he runs things around the house is probably talking about the lawn mower.

Whatever might be said against the way the cruel father treated his family, he was dead now and the family hired a famous orator to conduct the funeral oration. As the speaker warmed to his subject, he said, O noble spirit! We hail and acclaim thee as you start your glorious journey to the regions of eternal truth and light...

The widow, standing to one side, nudged her son and said, George, go over and see if that's your father who is in the coffin.

A young husband who had not found married life exactly a path of roses, and who sincerely wished to prove to his wife the depth of his affection, went one evening and said to her...

Husband — Well, Tilda, you can guess what I have done today. Wife — Made a fool of yourself as usual! Husband — Tilda, dearest, I have insured my life. Wife — Well, I always knew you were mean. Insured your life indeed! Ah! Always looking out for yourself first.

A light in the window welcomes the wandering son, but alas! So many wandering sons are bugs.

Stands to Reason Come here, waiter, this chicken is cold. The customer angrily speaks. I'm not surprised, the waiter said. It's been dead you know, for weeks.

—W. M. Lidwell Interviewer—What made you a multimillionaire? Multimillionaire—My wife. Interviewer—Ah, her loyal help. Multimillionaire—No, no. I was simply curious to know if there was any income she couldn't live beyond.

An elderly woman and her daughter hurried into a railroad station. The mother hobbled over to the ticket window and tapped impatiently for the ticket agent. As he came in answer to her summons she called out: I want a ticket for Magnolia.

The agent turned to his time tables and looked all through them to see where the town of Magnolia was located. His search was fruitless, so he turned to the old lady and said: I'm sorry, madam, but I don't seem to be able to find Magnolia anywhere. Can you tell me where it is?

The old lady seemed incredulous. Why, she's sitting right over there, she said pointing to her daughter.

Waiter — Zoup, sir? Zoup? Customer — I don't know what you're talking about. Waiter — You know what hash is? Well, zoup is looser.

Opponents Hit Kennedy School Assistance Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans today launched a two-pronged attack against President Kennedy's aid to education program and his government reorganization orders.

Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said GOP senators will try to establish general party lines on these issues in a closed session Tuesday.

While Republicans are divided on the education issue, Bridges said he thinks a majority of them may support a tax-rebate substitute for the administration's $2.55 billion bill which comes up in the Senate Tuesday.

Instead of federal grants and loans for teachers' salaries and school construction over the next three years, Sens. Francis Case, R-S.D., and Norris Cotton, R-N.H., have proposed the return of federal tax revenues to the states for education purposes.

Bridges disclosed in an interview that resolutions have been drawn to attempt to reject four reorganization plans sent to Congress by Kennedy. He said he is confident from talks with Democrats that there will be bipartisan support for this rejection effort.

Kennedy's four plans cover the Federal Communications Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Trade Commission.

Barclay Heights Youth Wander to Middletown

A hint of summer Sunday brought out the wanderlust in a 13-year-old Barclay Heights youth, who was reported missing from his home for over eight hours.

The boy's parents told Saugerties Village police the boy went into a wooded area with a canteen of water shortly after dinner. As it began to get dark and the boy had not returned, they reported him missing to police authorities.

All ended well when the boy was discovered at his grandmother's home in Middletown, Orange County, a distance of nearly 70 miles from his home.

Goldfine Admits He Evaded Taxes, Will Face Tests

By CORNELIUS F. BURLEY
BOSTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine, Boston industrialist, pleaded guilty today to charges of evading nearly $800,000 in personal and corporate income taxes.

U.S. Dist. Judge George C. Sweeney continued the case and ordered Goldfine to report to a court-appointed psychiatrist to determine his present mental competence.

The sudden plea came after defense and prosecution attorneys were closeted with Judge Sweeney for more than half an hour.

When the court finally opened, chief counsel said that "the defendant has expressed the desire to withdraw pleas heretofore entered and to enter pleas of guilty."

Williams said, however, before the pleas were entered he wanted to ask that an examination be ordered to determine if Goldfine now is competent to make such a plea.

"I'll accept the pleas subject to a psychiatrist ruling to his satisfaction," Judge Sweeney said.

Goldfine then in a steady voice pleaded guilty to the two indictments, one charging evasion of $150,961 in personal taxes and the other to $340,784 in taxes on the Strathmore Woolen Corp., one of his firms.

Hollywood News, Views

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A major reason for the film industry's recent ills is the fact that it refused to train new executive talent.

Hollywood in its prime was run by dictators who wanted no threats to their power around them. They are dead or deposed now, and the greatest deterrent to full production, outside of the lack of stars, is the scarcity of creative talent behind the camera.

Two Seeking Answer

Two film makers have done something about it. They are William Perlberg and George Seaton, partners for 24 years in making films like "Miracle on 34th St.," "Country Girl," "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," and the forthcoming "Pleasure of His Company," "Counterfeit Traitor."

For the past eight years, Perlberg-Seaton have allowed graduate students of the UCLA Cinema Arts School to observe all phases of film production.

Sixty students have so far gone through the Perlberg-Seaton schooling. They watch script conferences, listen to art directors, costume designers, production managers.

Perlberg and Seaton keep in touch with their alumni.

"Our biggest job is to get studios to use these people and to convince the studios of the need for hiring new talent," said Seaton. "You can see it right here on the Paramount lot. The average age of production managers is 63."

Door Is Shut

"There simply is little way for youngsters to break in nowadays. When I came out from New York in the '20s, I worked as a junior writer for $35 a week. I learned a great deal. Now there is no such category. The writer starts at around $450. At that price, you have got to get results. You can't experiment with new talent."

"Go to any studio union and say you want to start as an apprentice and learn the business. There is no such classification. The union ranks are closed, and the members keep getting older. This business will never revive until we get new blood."

Canadian Police Win

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Canadian police from the other side of the Rainbow Bridge have beaten their American rivals in a tug-of-war for the third time in a row. The 25-man Niagara Falls, Ont., team, outweighted by 40 pounds, pulled the Niagara Falls, N. Y., police department boundary on the bridge Saturday.

14 Records Are Broken at 10th Annual Hudson Valley Relays

KHS Relay Team Scores; Barr, Dickson Also Win

BY ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Fourteen records were smashed Saturday as boys from up and down the river took part in the 10th annual Hudson Valley Relays, held at the New Paltz Central school track.

Featured in the extravaganza, held under sunny skies before a huge crowd, was a jump of 11 feet, 10 1/2 inches in the pole vault by Channing Rudd of John Jay High school in Katonah. He missed at 12-2 but he still broke his own record, set last year, by six inches. Rudd also won the broad jump in Class III.

Faustin Barron of Linton, who finished second to Jim Sims of Kingston in the 1960 invitational mile, won the race this time, going the distance in 4 minutes 33 seconds. He missed Sims' record by two inches in winning the race by more than 15 yards.

Saunders Matthews, a member of the crack Highland Falls squad, capped the invitation 100-yard dash in the good time of 10.2 seconds.

Kingston High school was successful in the class one medley relay. A quartet of Joe Barr, Bill Tomaseski, Richard Cyr and John Kelly covered 1 1/4 miles in the crack time of 4:57.6, missing the meet by only three seconds.

Joe Barr of KHS captured first in the Class one hop-step and jump with a leap of 40 feet, 6 1/2 inches. Another Kingston ace, Bill Dickson, was also successful. He finished in a four-way tie for first place in the pole vault with a height of 9 feet 4 inches.

Don Avery 2nd In 25-Lapper

Steve (Rebel) Harris, a 28-year-old veteran of the Southern dirt tracks who has been plying his trade in the north the past 10 years, led the field for the entire 25 laps to win Sunday's feature auto race at picturesque Ontario Speedway Park.

Another capacity crowd luxuriating under warm, clear skies saw Harris breeze home a 25-length winner over runnerup Don Avery of West Shokan, the 1960 points champion who also trailed the first-day winner, Johnny Flach, two weeks ago.

Flach, the South Western veteran kept his "77" in a steady groove in third place for 22 of the first 23 laps, slipping back into fourth on the 20th lap but recovered for a third place finish.

Jim Markle pursued Harris relentlessly for 17 laps, then dropped into third place as Avery successfully challenged him for the runnerup spot. Markle's car developed trouble in the last two laps, however, and he finished in 10th place.

Harris came to Ontario fresh from a second place finish at the powerful Lebanon circuit Saturday night. He received his early experience on tracks in South and Georgia, but for the past 10 years has been north of the Mason-Dixon line. Last year he won three feature races and also took a couple of 50-lap Mad-cap feature at Rhinebeck Speedway.

Waterfall Wins Heat

Stretch Van Steenburgh of Saugerties, a current sensation at the Altamont track near Albany, was missing from the Ontario field Sunday, but 20 cars got into the final, with Harris, Markle, Flach and Avery furnishing all the action the patrons could stand for one day.

Heat winners for the day included Skip Waterfall of Stone Ridge, Schubert and Russell. Al Ostrander captured the 10-lap consolation.

In the feature race, Avery kept his No. 16 in fifth place through the first 15 laps, then made his unsuccessful bid to overhaul Harris. He did pass Flach on the 23rd lap and stayed in the runnerup slot as Flach, Anderson and Schubert chased him across the finish line.

Dick Becker of Saugerties gave the spectators a couple of unscheduled thrills in the consolation race. His No. 21 turned over on the home turn but Becker escaped personal injury. A short time later his right front wheel ripped loose from the car and hurtled over the guard rail on the second turn knocking Becker out of action for the day.

Carl Fink of Troy started the 1961 season at Rhinebeck Speedway just the way he left off last fall, a winner.

Fink fought for his win this time and he never had certain victory in his grasp until the checkered flag fell. Veteran Buddy Glass of Hurley was the first leader, but fell back of Ken Gootermote in the seventh lap. Gootermote then led until the 21st lap when his throttle linkage came loose and Fink took over the lead.

The flying Fink was followed to the checker in turn by Glass, Harry Barzee, Ben Stone, Hoppy Jensen, Barry Tripp, Al Ostrander, Paul Dickinger, Terry Zimmerman and Duane Lane.

In the main event Lou Judson of Watertown, Conn., flipped his car on the back stretch. A few laps later, Johnny Van Leuvan of Poughkeepsie rapped the fence on the back stretch. During the heat races Pete Peterson of Albany and Gordon Cavanagh of Cornwall, Conn., suffered major damage to their cars.

Keesler Is Winner

The sedan main event was won handily by Al Keesler of Hurley, with Ted Smith and Mike DeGraff trailing in that order. Wild Walt Wasowski of Rhinebeck entertained the crowd as usual by spinning 10 times during the course of the evening as well as landing on his roof during the warmups.

The pit area was jammed with over 880 cars taking part in the program. Two thousand customers viewed the king sized program.

The summaries:

1st Heat—J. Van Leuvan, Ben Stone, Cavanagh.

3rd Heat—Fink, Judson, Gootermote.

4th Heat—Hoyt, Wilbur, Hoban.

Coates Wins Twice As Detroit Lead Is Now 2½ Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yogi Berra's pinch single in the 11th inning of the opener and a six-straight single attack in the first inning of the second game gave the New York Yankees a 5-4 and 8-6 sweep of a double-header from Detroit.

The twin victories Sunday enabled the Yankees to whittle the Tigers' American League lead to 2½ games.

Minnesota moved into third place, past Baltimore, edging Los Angeles 4-3 while Cleveland was taking two from the Orioles, 1-0, in 15 innings and 6-4 Chicago and Kansas City split a twin bill, the White Sox winning the first game 6-1 and the A's taking the second 5-3. Washington defeated the Boston Red Sox twice, 3-0 and 2-1.

Washington's sweep gave the Senators the series from the Red Sox, three games to one. McClain yielded five hits for his fourth victory. Daniels pitched a three-hitter for his second triumph.

A Four Game Winner
McClain, picked up in the minor league draft for $25,000, retired the first 16 batters as he became the first Washington pitcher to win four games. He scored what proved to be the winning run himself in the third inning. He doubled off Billy Muffett and came around on Billy Klau's single and an infield out.

Yogi Berra's bases loaded single in the 11th inning of the first game and a five-run first inning in the second game gave the New York Yankees a 5-4 and 8-6 sweep of a doubleheader over Detroit.

Jim Coates, in relief, was credited with both victories.

Detroit, trailing 4-1, tied the first game score in the ninth, scoring three runs but in the 11th, Mickey Mantle singled and scored the winning run on Berra's pinch hit.

In the second game the first six Yankees to face Jim Bunning singled, providing the winners with a 5-0 lead. Detroit made it close on homers by Rocky Colavito, Dick Brown and Charley Maxwell.

A throwing error by Baltimore shortstop Jerry Adair provided the Indians with an unearned run in the 13th inning to end the longest game in the major leagues this season. Willie Kirkland's three-run homer won the second game for Cleveland.

The White Sox and Athletics traded victories on two-run homers. In the first game, Luis Aparicio, Wes Covington and Jim Landis each homered with a man on base to help Bob Shaw register his third victory. In the nightcap, catcher Joe Pignatano homered with a mate aboard to give Joe Nuxhall his first A's victory.

Bob Allison's sacrifice fly scored the winning run in the eighth after the Twins had scored the tying run on a bunt, two fielder's choices, a walk and three errors.

NC State Stars Will Stand Trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Three North Carolina State College basketball players, including Captain Stan Niewierowski, face trial here June 5 on charges of accepting bribes to shave points or throw games.

Niewierowski was taken into custody Sunday by police in his hometown of Brooklyn, N.Y., and held as a material witness pending arrival of a North Carolina warrant.

The other two, Anton Muehlbauer of Brooklyn and Terry Litchfield of Louisville, Ky., were arrested over the weekend.

Muehlbauer was freed under $1,000 bond posted by a friend. Tom Cain, a basketball fan and Raleigh insurance salesman.

Litchfield was held under house arrest at the college infirmary where he is recovering from a sore throat and fever.

The State Bureau of Investigation (SBI), which disclosed the charges at a news conference Saturday, did not know whether Los Angeles police had arrested a fourth man, Lou Barshak of Brooklyn, identified as the contact man in the alleged gambling conspiracy.

SBI Director Walter Anderson said he understood Barshak is a student at Los Angeles State College, but officials at that college said he had never enrolled.

The four men face maximum sentences of 15 years on each count when they come to trial in Superior Court.

Sanders Colonial Winner

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Doug Sanders is $7,500 richer and sporting a Colonial National Invitational golf title today.

Sanders, a five-tournament winner in his relatively brief professional career, edged Australian Kel Nagle by one shot. Nagle scored the 7,041-yard Colonial course in 67 strokes to climb from a three-way tie for ninth into the runnerup slot. He picked up $3,500 for second place.

Eilly Casper, the chunky veteran from Apple Valley, Calif., captured third place with 283 and collected $2,500.

Gene Littler and Arnold Palmer, who also was just a stroke off the pace, fell apart in the final round with miserable 75s. Littler wound up tied with Don Whitte for fourth at 284 and Palmer was all alone in fifth place at 285.

They earned $1,000 and $1,700 respectively.

Tied for seventh at 287 were Doug Ford and Stan Leonard, who won $1,500 each.

Dick Tiger Set To Fight Casey In New Orleans

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Shut out of the world title picture for at least another six months, Nigeria's Dick Tiger will attempt to take it out on Hank Casey of San Francisco in a battle of midweight contenders in New Orleans tonight.

The 32-year-old British Empire champion had hoped to get a crack at either Paul Pender or Gene Fullmer after he had scored his third straight knockout victory. That impressive kayo was a sixth round blitz of Spider Webb, onetime leading contender, last April 15.

But Tiger's hopes were blasted when both Pender and Fullmer signed last week for title defenses in July. Pender, recognized as champion in New York, Massachusetts and Europe, will meet Britain's Terry Downes in London, July 11. Fullmer, the NBA king, will risk his piece of the crown against Cuban Florentino Fernandez at Ogden, Utah, July 8.

Argentina's Alex Miteff risks his slim title chances in a ten-rounder with Cleveland Williams, of Houston at Houston, Texas, Tuesday night. Miteff is ranked seventh by Ring and ninth by the NBA. Williams is unranked but he hits like a champion.

Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson said recently he plans a title defense in September against one of the top ten contenders but he barred three for this year—Sonny Liston, Eddie Machen and Henry Cooper. So big Alex still can hope although the odds against his getting a title fight must be at least 50 to 1.

Another Argentine, welterweight Jorge Fernandez takes on Teddy Wright of Detroit in a clash of contenders at New York's St. Nicholas arena Saturday night.

Chamber Making Record on Its Member Drive

Over half of the membership renewals have been received by the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce by the thirteenth day of the new fiscal year. This sets a new record since the Chamber of Commerce was re-organized in 1945.

Twenty-six memberships which become payable at other times of the fiscal year will, when payable, be pro-rated to April 30, 1962. After this date all annual memberships renewals will coincide with the fiscal year which starts on May 1.

The next phase of organizational activities of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce will be the completion of the committee structure and personnel. All chairmen have been appointed but the names of committee members should be selected within the next month. In releasing this information today, Albert Kurt, Chamber manager, also stated that all the officers and committee chairmen would appreciate suggestions or constructive criticisms that the organization can serve the community effectively. Kurt concluded.

Improper Drugs Are Assailed by Upstate Doctor

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP)—Unless drug companies control the number and variations of drugs on the market, chaos will result and patients will suffer, a Cornell University pharmacologist says.

Dr. Walter Modell called the current rate of new drugs hitting the market "alarming and said the future looked "dismal."

Drugs should be introduced only because of a need for them, Modell said. He charged drug companies with often placing drugs on the market to invade a market created by someone else's discovery of a useful drug.

Vigorous drug promotions, he said, then build up pressure for their use.

The Cornell professor cited a report showing that 1 in 20 patients at a large hospital were there to recover from the effects of the "sanctioned and well-intentioned use of improper drugs."

He said 75 per cent of the 150,000 drugs used today poured onto the market in a 10-year period.

"As the number of new and active drugs increases," Modell said, "and both knowledge and experience with each therefore becomes smaller and proportionately more difficult to obtain, it is a mathematical inevitability that adverse drug reactions also will mount."

Modell's observations are contained in the recent issue of "Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics," which he edits.

Local Minister Attends Conclave Of Alliance Group

The Rev. and Mrs. Willard D. Crunkilton, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church of this city, left today for Columbus, Ohio, where they will attend the 64th annual Council of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, in session at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium, May 17-22.

"The AAlliance, a gateway to the world" is the theme for this annual business and devotional meeting of the denomination.

A high point of the council each year is the foreign missionary rally, a parade through the streets of the host city with more than 100 missionaries and their children dressed in the colorful costumes of the lands they have chosen for their missionary endeavors.

The Crunkiltons will attend the special missionary conference held before the actual business sessions begin at the Desher-Hilton Hotel. World conditions will be discussed by Alliance missionary-statesmen, and missionary news direct from the 22 missionary fields of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be submitted.

A special meeting for pastors coming in from all over the country will be held Wednesday afternoon, planned for a greater Sunday school effort. The local pastor was a speaker at the first of the annual sessions, and will attend this one.

Russia Threatens Tests of Weapons Unless U. S. Acts

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet government said today it might have to resume testing nuclear and hydrogen weapons unless the United States and Britain get France to abandon its testing program.

The assertion was contained in a formal statement the Soviet delegate, Semyon K. Tsarapkin, read into the record of the deadlocked nuclear conference at its 305th session.

"The Soviet Union has repeatedly stated that the French tests complicate the reaching of an agreement" on a worldwide suspension of nuclear weapons testing, the statement said.

This may force the Soviet Union to resume testing of nuclear and hydrogen bombs.

Tsarapkin asked U. S. negotiator Arthur H. Dean and Sir Michael Wright of Britain to forward the Soviet statement to their governments.

He repeated charges he made March 21 that the French were in effect conducting tests on behalf of the two Western powers who have observed a moratorium on weapons tests since those talks began more than 2 1/2 years ago.

Dean categorically rejected the Soviet statement. Sir Michael termed it "ludicrous." Both accused the Soviet delegate of raising the matter to cover up Soviet "intransigence" on the crucial issue of how to control a treaty.

Twisters Batter Midwest Sectors, Snow in 2 Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms rumbled across areas in the midcontinent today after a rash of tornadoes and damaging wind and rain storms in a half dozen states.

The twisters erupted along a severe thunderstorm belt which stretched from eastern Minnesota through Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas to eastern Louisiana.

No deaths were reported in the storm zone, but nine persons were injured in Illinois and one in Wisconsin. Property damage was extensive.

The storms followed an unseasonable wintry blast of heavy snow in Colorado and Wyoming. Snowfall measured 9 inches in Cheyenne, Wyo., and 5 inches in Lararue, Wyo., and Denver.

More than a dozen tornadoes hit along a 150-mile path from the Mississippi River near Hannibal, Mo., northeastward to near Peoria, in north central Illinois. The tornado winds hammered wide areas in west central and Southern Illinois, damaging many homes and farm buildings.

A series of tornadoes and tornado winds lashed midsections of Wisconsin, wrecking some buildings and knocking down power and communication lines. Only minor damage was reported in a tornado that struck Waseca, in southern Minnesota, but a twister that swept the area of Castor, La., damaged nine houses. Heavy windstorms buffeted Pocahontas, Stuttgart and Holly Grove, Ark.

The immediate effects of the heavy rains in flooded sections of Southern Illinois and southern Indiana were not determined. Although rivers and streams generally were leveling off or beginning to drop, hundreds of persons still were barred from their homes by the floodwaters. National Guardsmen remained on duty in both states.
